Grief Over Wife's Death Told in Note Left by Pennsylvanian.

PISTOL IN HIS HAND; SUICIDE IS VERDICT

Member of Congress for 14 Years Was Active in Postal Legislation.

Seeking from death an anodyne that life denied him, Representative Samuel Austin Kendall, 73-year-old Pennsylvania Republican, yesterday calmly ended his career with a .38-caliber pistol as he sat in his easy chair at his suite in the House Office Building.

A neatly penned note lay on the dead Representative's desk, saying he had been unable to "throw off my grief" caused by the death of his wife last August and of a favorite son 20 years ago, and was going to "join them in heaven."

The body of Representative Kendall was found by William Whelan, House mail clerk, just before 11 o'clock yesterday morning. A number of persons in the office building said they heard a shot some time between 10:15 and 10:45 a. m. Among these was Representative Hall (Republican), North Dakota.

Third Note Is Found.

A second note simply declared "notify J. W. Kendall, son, 2401 Calvert street," giving the telephone number. Another son, Samuel A. Kendall, jr., also was notified and, searching among effects of his father at his home, discovered another missive identical with that found on the representative's desk. This indicated to Capitol authorities that Representative Kendall's death had been contemplated for weeks. The note found on his desk read:

"Dear children: My work on earth is completed. The sudden death of your dear mother was the most severe shock of my whole life and I have been unable to throw off my grief.

"Every day has added to my sorrow, and I can no longer bear my suffering which I have kept from you.

"Mother has been calling me to join her and little Van in Heaven and I can no longer resist the call and am going to join them. Goodbye. "FATHER."

Wife Died In August.

Mrs. Kendall died on August 22 and the son he referred to as little Van died as a boy in 1913.

The Pennsylvania legislator had breakfasted an hour before he took his life at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Grace Angus, 2401 Calvert street northwest. He gave no indication, family members said, of his intention. He lived at the Shoreham Hotel.

Capitol authorities immediately summoned local police and Headquarters Detective Sergts. Dennis J. Murphy and Jerry Flaherty were dispatched. They found the pistol

Herriot's Party Gains In French Senate Vote

Paris, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Former Premier Edouard Herriot's Radical party gained one seat and retained another in two senatorial byelections today.

In Puy de Dome, Dr. Malsang, a newcomer in national politics, beat the veteran Socialist deputy, Alexandre Varenne, former governor of Indo-China, with 290 votes to spare, for the post occupied by the late Socialist, Dr. Darteyre. In Saone et Loire, Philibert Dochard, a hitherto unknown Radical, beat the Socialist opponent by 211 votes. Dochard will succeed the late Radical, Claude Theodore Petitjean.

POLICE FAIL TO FIND AUTO BOMB CLEWS

Call Murder Perfect Crime; Servants Are Questioned; Funeral Rites Today.

Detectives last night described the bomb murder of wealthy Miss Ida Kirk as a perfect crime when the second day of their investigation of the Leonardtown, Md., atrocity failed to provide a single clew.

They admit they are without a single tangible bit of evidence pointing to the identity of the person who placed the infernal machine in the 76-year-old spinster's automobile.

Miss Kirk was fatally injured Saturday morning near Chaptico when the bomb was detonated shortly after she and Mrs. Joseph T. Gibson, wife of the Episcopal rector at Chaptico, had begun a drive to Washington. Mrs. Gibson miraculously escaped with only minor hurts.

Several persons were taken to Leonardtown for questioning yesterday. They included members of Miss Kirk's household at her Sunnyside estate north of Chaptico.

Police are still holding John Gross, colored, a friend of Miss Kirk's cook. He was questioned further, but authorities said he had failed to throw any light on the mysterious explosion.

Those questioned yesterday by authorities were Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Shay, colored, servants at Miss Kirk's estate; Dixon Hill, her overseer, and Nelson Thompson, a neighbor.

Aiding State's Attorney John Briscoe in the case are Detective Sergts. William J. Feehley and Walter Martin, of the Baltimore police department.

Again yesterday they made a sec-

Peru-Ecuador Boundary Dispute Reported Settled

Lima, Peru, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—El Comercio in a dispatch from Tumbez, Ecuador, says that, according to a reliable source, the Peruvian and Ecuadorean boundary incident has been settled between the authorities of both countries.

It also was learned that an entente cordiale has been agreed upon in order to prevent further incidents.

Blind Duel

Two Sightless Men Fight for Woman's Love; One Dying.

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Two blind men fought for the love of a woman here today, police said, and one of them fell, seriously wounded from repeated knife thrusts.

Joseph Parker, 45, the wounded man, was reported near death at the hospital to which he was taken and his alleged assailant, Manuel Licon, 38, inmate of a home for the blind, was placed in jail.

Police said the woman, whose charms caused her sightless admirers to battle after they had cane-tapped their ways to her home, was Elena Aguilar, 45, who has her sight.

Officers said the two men were old friends and that they each met Mrs. Aguilar about three years ago. At their meeting in the woman's home today, police said the two demanded she choose between them and that she expressed a preference for Parker. The fight followed, police said the participants and Mrs. Aguilar told them.

Licon, who fled from the scene, leaving his hat behind, was captured several hours later as officers found him tapping his way back toward Mrs. Aguilar's home.

FIRE DAMAGES LINER FRANCE; BIG PLOT SEEN

ALL DE LUXE BOATS IN DANGER, IS FEAR

Probe Goes Back to 1929; Sabotage Suspected on Mail Vessel.

Paris, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Suspicion in shipping circles that unexplained fires and reported sabotage on French liners all over the world were part of a concerted plot grew today when fire broke out mysteriously in the liner France, in port at Le Havre.

The fire aboard the France occurred at 2:30 a. m., and spread rapidly through several first cabin passengers quarters. The alarm was promptly given, however, and the blaze was extinguished at 4:30 a. m., before extensive damage had been done.

The incident, coming on the heels of the unexplained fire which ruined the once-luxurious liner Atlantique last week while on a reconditioning run off the coast of France, aroused mounting suspicion in many quarters.

Fear of Plot Increases.

Opinion in shipping circles that the fires were part of a scheme to destroy all first-class liners in the Nation's Merchant Marine increased.

The "plot scare" grew with reports from Lisbon published in the newspaper Seculo, relating that Portuguese members of the crew in the Atlantique disclosed that the atmosphere aboard had been disquieting for some time.

The reports said anonymous letters had been received threatening destruction of the Atlantique. Seculo repeated a theory that the fire on the liner might have been started by radio-electric waves from an airplane hidden in low-hanging clouds, and pointed out the vessel might have been considered a menace because it could easily have been converted into a warship.

Five Bodies Found.

The Ministry of Merchant Marine ordered reopening of the old inquiry into the fire on the steamer Amerique, which broke out when the vessel was undergoing repairs at St.

Strike Bomb Wounds Canary Islands Man

Teneriffe, Canary Islands, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A general strike of street cars and taxicabs was declared here today. The strikers exploded bombs in a chocolate factory, gravely wounding an employe.

Soldiers were patrolling the streets after a short fight, in which firearms were used, but in which no one was injured. Later, two other bombs were exploded in a soup paste factory, wrecking the windows of nearby houses and causing alarm throughout the city.

Akron in Maneuvers Over Santiago de Cuba

Craft in Which 2 Harvard Students Crashed Into Ocean Is Found.

Nahant, Mass., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The airplane in which two Harvard students crashed into the ocean off here December 29 was located today, and the body of one, Donald Mackay Frost, jr., of Boston, taken from the wreckage. The body of Edward Mallinckrodt 3d, of St. Louis, could not be found.

The search for the plane had been carried on since the day of the accident at the instigation of Mallinckrodt's father, one of the largest chemical manufacturers in the country. The father has been here directing the search.

A highly sensitized instrument operated by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey located the plane on the ocean's floor within 50 yards of the place where the Coast Guard had been searching. A diver immediately descended and took Frost's body from the forward cockpit.

Son of Ball Player Hurt Badly in Chinese Air Crash.

Shanghai, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Christopher Mathewson, jr., of Philadelphia, was killed and her husband, of Saranac Lake, N. Y., suffered two broken arms, a broken left leg and severe body cuts and bruises this afternoon when the amphibian plane Mathewson was piloting en route to Hangchow crashed into the Whangpoo River.

The accident occurred on the outskirts of Shanghai as the flier was taking off.

The plane, a giant twin-motored craft, had risen only 50 feet above the water when it nose-dived, crashed into the river bank and overturned.

Mrs. Mathewson was crushed in the impact and died a half hour later in a hospital.

Mathewson, despite his injuries, retained consciousness, his first words when Chinese rivermen rescuers arrived being, "Look after my wife."

The flier, the son of the late renowned New York Giants' baseball player, and Mrs. Mathewson were

WALSH SEES EARLY WORLD COURT VOTE

Montanan, After Parley With Roosevelt, Also Predicts Waterway Action.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Senate action on the World Court and the new St. Lawrence Waterways pact at the special session to be called on March 4 was predicted today by Senator Walsh, of Montana, after a conference with President-elect Roosevelt.

The Senate is always called into immediate session by an incoming administration for consideration of the new President's nominations. Senator Walsh, a ranking member on the Foreign Relations Committee, told newspapermen he believed the two treaties could be taken up and disposed of at that time.

Foreign affairs is receiving close attention from Mr. Roosevelt. He will confer tomorrow with Secretary Stimson, with the whole subject of the complicated international situation due for study, particularly the impending economic conference, war debts and disarmament.

Senator Walsh, who is also assistant party floor leader, put his indorse-

42 Marathon Dancers Bagged by Blue Laws

York, Pa., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—State police today closed a marathon dance at a roadhouse near New Cumberland and arrested the alleged promoter, J. P. King, and 42 dancers on charges of violating the State "blue laws."

The dance began December 18. Those arrested posted bail for a hearing tomorrow. MAN AND GIRL, 17, ARE SLAIN IN FEUD

Warrants Charging Murder Are Sworn Out for Six in Kentucky.

Manchester, Ky., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Two persons, one of them a 17-year-old girl, were killed today when snipers fired into the home of Will Smith in the Double Creek section of Clay County in what authorities said was another outbreak of factional differences that already had taken several lives.

Those killed today were Bropha Lipps, 25, and Esther Smith, 17. Rifle bullets poured into the Smith home from a nearby hillside and struck them both. Bropha Lipps was Smith's son-in-law.

Immediately after the shooting, which occurred early in the morning, warrants charging murder were issued for six men. The warrants were sworn to by Speed Collins, who was at the Smith home at the time of the killing. They named as defendants John Wagers, whose wife was killed several weeks ago when snipers fired into her home; his two sons, Noah Wagers and Jim Wagers, both charged with banding and confederating in connection with previous troubles; Reuben Smith, Wood Lipps and Tom Gray. None of them had been arrested this afternoon.

Miss Smith was the second woman to fall victim to sporadic outbreaks of violence in the Double Creek section in recent weeks. Mrs. John Wagers was shot and killed at her home the day before Ford Lipps and Willie Wagers were slain in the same neighborhood. Previously, Tom Wagers had been killed.

Although the exact cause of the recent troubles has not been revealed, many residents of Clay County attribute them to bad feeling between two factions dating back several years. The troubles have been ascribed variously to political differences and family dislikes sharpened by petty quarrels.

30 Persons Hurt in Dublin As Voters and Police Fight

Pistols Fired at Random as Battle Is Staged to Popular Airs.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Thirty persons were injured, among them a woman and a child, during rioting and fighting at a Cumann and Gaedhael election rally in O'Connell street this afternoon. There was some indiscriminate firing of revolvers, but so far as could be learned, no one was injured by gunfire.

Crowds sympathetic to President Eamon de Valera drowned out the voices of the speakers during periods in which there was no violence with a concerted singing of "Daisy, Give Me Your Answer, Do," a popular song which is climaxed with the lines about a honeymoon "On a Bicycle Built For Two."

Gen. Richard Mulcahy, a member of the Dail Eireann, was shouted

HOUSE REPORT HITS HOOVER'S CONSOLIDATION

REPUBLICANS SCORE DEMOCRATIC STAND

Attitude Regrouping Should Be Left to Roosevelt Is Criticized.

(Associated Press.)

Another prelude to anticipated House rejection of President Hoover's Government regrouping program appeared yesterday in a report by the House expenditures committee asserting there was "no present economy" in what Mr. Hoover advocates.

The report accompanied a resolution, already adopted by the committee, which urges the shelving of the Chief Executive's plan. A strong dissent to Democratic arguments was made by five Republican committee members.

Representatives Williamson, of South Dakota; Colton, Utah; Wigglesworth, Massachusetts, and Hollister, Ohio, said the Democrats seemed to reject the President's orders "solely upon the ground that the incoming President should have a free hand in reorganizing along such lines as he may deem expedient."

Dissent by Schafer.

"Could anything more farcical and partisan be seriously advanced by intelligent men?" their report asked.

Representative Schafer, Wisconsin, in still another dissent, said he felt the committee should have considered each separate consolidation proposed by Mr. Hoover on its merits.

Democratic leaders in the House have indicated they are supporting the move to disapprove the President's recommendations. Action by either branch of Congress would block them. The resolution of disapproval may be taken up this week.

Lack of Support Cited.

One reason for Democratic opposition is the movement under way to leave regrouping to Roosevelt and broaden his powers so that both

Classmates Hunt Missing Student

Philadelphia Is Scoured for Washington Youth; Father Hopeful.

The classmates of Henry H. Gibbs, University of Pennsylvania sophomore and Central High School honor graduate, yesterday conducted a fruitless search through Philadelphia and its environs for the youth who disappeared after leaving notes that he intended to take his life.

That the condition of his son's eyes may provide some link to the cause of his disappearance was expressed last night by Henry C. Gibbs, an administrative assistant in the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture.

During the Christmas holiday, he said, his son visited an optometrist. "The doctor must have told him something that caused him to lay aside the books he had brought home with him to study." During his stay at home, 1821 Newton street northwest, he had been ill with influenza, but apparently had recovered, his father said.

B. E. F. Leader Sues Bureau for $10,000

Robertson Says Disability Discontinued When He Organized Veterans.

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Ten thousand dollars for "service injuries" allegedly received in the World War is demanded in a suit filed in the Federal District Court here against the United States Veterans' Bureau by Royal W. Robertson, one of the leaders of Southern California's bonus marchers to Washington last year.

He said he enlisted in the Navy in 1918 and was injured in a fall from a hammock, being discharged for disability. The Veterans' Bureau, the complaint said, once listed him as totally disabled, but several years later "arbitrarily and without notice or testimony" changed his listing, holding that his injuries were not received while he was on active service and discontinuing his compensation.

Robertson said he incurred the displeasure of the Veterans' Bureau through his activity in organizing veterans and because he assisted "comrades in airing their grievances."

Barcelona Storm Center as Radicals Make Bomb Raid on Police Station.

Barcelona, Spain, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—At least 17 persons were killed here and in Lerida in outbreaks of Syndicalist violence today. Thirty-five persons were wounded, several of them perhaps fatally, and scores of alleged Extremists and Communists were arrested as all armed forces were called out to cope with the situation.

Police hinted that Monarchists and Communists sponsored the outbreaks, which were marked by frequent bombings and seizures of firearms. Among those who died was a woman, who succumbed because of the excitement attending the shooting. Five women and three militiamen were among the wounded.

Outbreaks also occurred in the nearby town of Sallert, where a civil guard killed an Extremist who was attempting to disarm the officer; in Madrid, and in the town of Carabanchel, where the Syndicalists attempted to storm the barracks and where one Extremist was wounded and 11 arrested. In several places the Extremists tried to storm barracks and police stations.

In Lerida, capital of the Province of Lerida, Extremists attempted to attack the Castillo barracks, but guards repelled them. One Syndical-

Harlan Deputy Slayer Draws Life in Prison

Harlan, Ky., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Al Benson, 37, former Evarts policeman, was sentenced to life imprisonment when found guilty of murder today by a jury in Harlan County Circuit Court. He was tried on a charge of having slain Deputy Sheriff Jim Daniels, one of four men killed in the Evarts outbreak in May, 1931, when officers and striking coal miners clashed.

Benson was the thirteenth person sentenced in connection with the Evarts battle. Seven were given life sentences and six pleaded guilty and received sentences ranging from two to four years. Eleven others remain to be tried.

Chase Is On

Maj. Parker West's Car Is Taken From Driver by Two Gunmen.

Two armed robbers last night threatened the life of Samuel Newman, colored chauffeur for Maj. Parker West, deputy governor of Soldiers Home, forced him from the latter's limousine parked in front of Wardman Park Hotel, and sped off in the machine.

Maj. West was visiting friends in the hotel, and, after leaving him at the entrance, Newman drove the car to a parking space nearby. As he sat waiting, two young, well-dressed men stepped up to the car.

After exchanging a few words, both men produced guns and ordered Newman to get out "or suffer the consequences." As the chauffeur stepped out, one of the men leaped to the driver's seat, and, with his companion, sped away in full view of pedestrians.

Newman notified Maj. West, and, within a short time, police broadcast a lookout. Shortly before midnight, Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby called police headquarters and ordered that no efforts be spared in recovering the machine. He said the occupants should be apprehended "at all costs."

Advance by Foes Explanation of Japanese.

MUCH DAMAGE IS INFLICTED

Leaders Plan Determined Defense of Province.

Tokyo (Monday), Jan. 9.—(A.P.).—Dispatches from Chinchow said that a Japanese air squadron from Chinchow bombed Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang's Sixteenth and Nineteenth brigades at a point 60 miles north of Shanhaikwan this morning and inflicted heavy damage.

The Japanese asserted that these brigades recently had been marching eastward steadily and had been menacing the Japanese line of communications between Shanhaikwan, occupied by the Japanese a week ago, and Chinchow.

The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency said that the war office lacked confirmation of the bombing reports.

Attack Is in Jehol.

According to the accounts reaching here, the asserted bombings occurred at Peichangyingtze, inside the Province of Jehol, the buffer state between Manchuria and China proper, where Marshal Chang, the war lord charged with defending the northern provinces, previously was said to be massing his forces.

Chinchow is in the southeastern part of Shansi Province, which lies directly west of Jehol and Manchuria.

The reports followed by a few hours upon advices that Chinese leaders in Shanghai were determined to defend Jehol against any attempt to put it under the administration of Manchukuo, the Japanese-sponsored government in Manchuria.

Recently Japanese leaders were reported as saying that a Japanese offensive in Jehol was only a matter of time.

Chinwangtao Raid Denied.

Peiping, China, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Manchurian headquarters were in communication by telephone tonight with Chingwangtao, which was reported quiet under Chinese control, with the customs functioning normally.

Hence, a report from Nanking that the Japanese have occupied the city and taken over the customs were categorically denied here.

United States Minister Nelson T. Johnson denied a Japanese press report that he had offered to mediate in the Shanhaikwan affair, stating that he had made no move whatever.

British Leader's Action.

However, it was learned that Commander Taylor, the senior British naval officer in Chinwangtao, had been keeping in touch with the Chinese and Japanese authorities to insure the protection of British interests and had placed the good offices at his command at the disposal of both sides. It was hoped that this would result in a meeting, not yet arranged.

The Chinese general Ho Chu-Kuo telegraphed Peiping for instructions and Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang referred the matter to Nanking.

PEGLER SEES DEBRIS RACKET OVERPLAYED

Capital Is Assembling Place for Everything Useless, He Opines.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

There is something about a national capital which automatically elects it the attic and catch-all for a nation's debris. It becomes the repository for a country's busted chairs, old letters and receipts, horse-hair watch fobs, old magazines, old straw hats, fish poles, baby shoes, hose nozzles, locks of hair, cuff links, of which the mates have been lost; darning eggs, buttons, broken watches and bottle caps, wedding clothes, worn-out hammocks, lodge regalia, stereopticons, souvenir badges and high school diplomas.

Almost any object, in fact, which has been or is alleged to have been more or less intimately associated with some departed statesman, however insignificant or paltry he may have been, and which has become so useless as to defy the resources of the salvage bureau of the Salvation Army, may be forwarded to Washington with a certainty that somewhere in the Capital, in some corridor of some Government museum, room will be found in which to preserve it forever and ever, under glass.

It is no exaggeration to say that in the course of time the Government will be willing to accept and cherish forever a tuft from the true shaving brush used by United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, or a shoe lace, duly authenticated by affidavits as having been worn by Congressman the Honorable Thomas Blanton, of Texas. Willing may not be the correct word and cherish may not be the correct word, either. Better say, perhaps, that the Government will be compelled by the morbid tradition which controls this vice to accept such relics and endure the stewardship until such time as a fortuitous lack of funds, a war or other providential favor makes a clean sweep of the accumulated junk and enables us to start over.

Put to Great Cost.

I doubt that my countrymen understand to what cost they are put to house and maintain, forever and ever, or approximately 100 years, the trash which is in constant process of accumulation, all of it sacred to the memory of this or that hero of the Republic, who may have had the intellect of a coroner, the ethics of a criminal lawyer, or, even worse, of a regular party politician, and no more idea of what it was all about than a chicken thief in a grand jury room.

A national capital becomes in a very short time the junk-heap of the country and, as the clutter accumulates, nothwithstanding a sifting process to reject the more irrelevant souvenirs, the problems of stowage, roofage and attendance, including political appointees to dust of these historical leavings, runs into appreciable money. There must be marble columns on the front of the building and bandy-legged organization men in blue, appointed from all over, to patrol the foyers and aisles lest some tourist, in an excess of patriotic devotion lift a letter from John Tyler to his cousin, and when these matters are paid for there must be another building, much bigger and more expensive, to replace the old one which has now been knocked over by act of Congress to make room for a bigger and more expensive one, due to the growth of the treasure in the meanwhile.

All Entitled to Room.

Does Eddie Hungry, of East Whiffletree, Neb., trap him an outsize crow and slay the same evoking a stick or half-stick in the local Banner? If so, he must have the rind of this unfortunate fowl stuffed with wires, hay and shavings and the eyeholes plugged with glass marbles and ship it on to Washington, D. C., where his congressman will find room for it in some Government mausoleum beneath $25 worth of plate glass, there to be preserved at Government expense until the end of time or such times as the British or whoever kick the Copitol apart once more, according to ancient and irrevocable precedent.

Woodchuck, buzzard, badger, barn-owl, they all are entitled to room in some cranny of the national attic and not only that but the statesman does not breathe who is so trivial and utterly unimportant but that, given a few years in which to become cannonized, he can hope to be reproduced in bronze, or marble somewhere in Washington, D. C., as a problem to posterity. Statuary Hall already is sagging beneath the dead weight of departed Americans, including some whose intellectual weight was in direct contrast to the heft of their effigies and there is this consolation, if no other, that some day there may come a war time when they may be melted down and shot from guns to keep the foe away.

Traffic Has Abated.

There used to be a custom in Washington of inflicting on the occupant of the White House all manner of live and snarling vermin, from the Eastern bobcat to the California grizzly, but Mr. Hoover was not fond of pets and the traffic in this live stock has abated in the last four years. However, I believe the Hoovers did not find it in their hearts or in their political plans to send a secret service man out to the front door, where the detachment of Girl Scouts waited with movies to present them with the most gigantic apple pie in the history of the world, flown here from Oregon in a plane called the Big Red Apple under the auspices of the Apple Chamber of Commerce and tell them to get that dam thing out of there.

Government is a goofy business, say what you will.

A Mr. Green, a congressman from Florida, resigned the other day his chairmanship of the Committee on Useless Government Papers. It was the duty of his committee to read thousands, millions, bales of trivial, idiotic communications and winnow out those which ought to be preserved in the museums as national treasures. Mr. Green did not say as much, but there were others who said as much as that Mr. Green should have started one great bonfire and burned them all.

Edna Ferber, in London, Is Seriously Ill of Flu

London, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Edna Ferber, American writer, was seriously ill today with influenza in a London hotel.

She came here to see the London premier of the play, "Dinner at Eight," of which she is a coauthor, but she was not able to do so.

Gold's Fall in South Africa Blamed Chiefly on People

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Plans for bulwarking the gold standard of the American dollar will play a prominent part in the preliminary discussions of the world economic conference, it became known here recently. The American delegates who will shortly take up again discussions of the agenda for the conference at Geneva have received instructions from President-elect Roosevelt to this effect.

The two American experts are John H. Williams and Edmund E. Day. There was some doubt whether they would return to the second meeting of the experts committee in view of the lack of specific instructions from the new administration. However, President-elect Roosevelt held a lengthy conference with Norman H. Davis, who had been a member of the steering committee for the conference, and as a result of his conversation the decision to send two experts was made.

Influences Are Felt.

The gold standard has been shelved in favor of some form of "controlled currency" in every country of the world except the United States, France, Switzerland and Holland. Indications are rife that the same influences which have been depressing other currencies are beginning operations against at least one of these countries.

The last country to go off gold was the Union of South Africa, a country producing more than 52 per cent of the entire supply of the world's precious metal and with more than 100 per cent gold coverage for all of its bank notes. Financial circles here and abroad have been reporting bear raids on the Dutch florin that have not made any appreciable effect on the stability of the currency of Holland. However, it was pointed out that the proximity of Dutch colonies to British possessions where the devalorized pound enables British merchants to underseli their competitors has caused considerable unrest and uneasiness in Dutch colonial circles.

The foreign office at The Hague and the powerful banking international consortiums that have their offices at Amsterdam are solidly arrayed against the tendency for cheap money. The prospect of allied financial cooperation between New York, Basel and Paris to keep the Dutch florin on the gold standard is believed by some experts to be likely.

Courageous Futile Fight.

The fight to keep the Union of South Africa on gold was a courageous but futile effort. Alone of all the other British nations, the Union had resisted the efforts of the imperialist elements in the Union to unhorse the gold sovereign as standard of currency. However, there were other important elements which played leading roles in the drama. These were:

First. The people of South Africa themselves seem to be chiefly to blame for their fall from gold as they "sold South Africa short" by hurrying some 3,000,000 pounds in gold balances out of the country in the last few days of the gold standard regime of Prime Minister Hertzog.

Second. The run on gold was started by the creation of a new political party by Tielman Roos, which was pledged to the departure from the gold standard. Mr. Roos is a former member of the cabinet and later a member of the Supreme Court.

Mine Owners' Campaign.

Third, was the campaign of the gold mine owners themselves, who were anxious to reduce the costs of labor so as to begin working some of the lesser grade ores which could not be profitably started as long as labor was being paid in gold;

Fourth, was the powerful influence of the London controlled press of the Union, which carried stories of South African decision to quit the gold standard and emasculated for cable transmission several of the premier's speeches.

These four charges were made public by the minister from the Union of South Africa to the United States, Eric Hendrik Louw, in a recent speech before a group of economists in Canada. Minister Louw, who has been a student of politics and finance, was at one time member for the Union in the House of Commons, and has been a conscientious upholder of the gold standard for South Africa.

Cites Advantages.

The decision to go off the gold standard was made by South Africa in the face of the following advantages which the minister made public at that time. He said:

"Some of the more immediate advantages for maintaining the integrity of money are the following:

"(1) The substantial gain to the Union in saving effected on interest payments on Government, municipal and corporate loans raised in London in the past and still outstanding—and those to be raised in future. In the case of Union Government loans alone, there will be a saving of 1,600,000 pounds in interest payments during the current financial year.

"(2) Another immediate and substantial advantage was the saving effected by the reduction in shipping and freight rates payable in sterling. This advantage will continue while the English pound is at a discount.

Imported Merchandise.

"(3) A third immediate advantage is the saving resulting from the reduction in the prices of merchandise imported from Great Britain and other non-gold standard countries—and also on the large volume of Government stores imported for the railroads, public works, &c.

"(4) And, of course, there is the less tangible, but much more important 'advantages' of maintaining the integrity of the currency and preserving intact the credit and good name of the country an 'advantage' on which we will 'cash in' in years to come;

"(5) Finally, there is the fact that South Africa produces 55 per cent of the world's gold—that the price of gold was not affected by what had happened in Great Britain. On the contrary, gold prices improved and gold shares rose in value. For the world's greatest producing country to have gone off the gold standard has been to put it mildly an anachronism. Gold is mainly used for monetary purposes and it appears perfectly clear that it could not possibly be to the advantage of South Africa to support a policy which would have the effect of discrediting the gold standard or of encouraging the world to seek another medium of exchange, thereby lessening the value of South Africa's principal and most valuable product."

Paul-Boncour Pledges Himself to End War

St. Aignan, France, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour has assigned to himself "the task of seeing to it that war never returns," he told fellow veterans and townspeople during the ceremonies here today. While he assured the former soldiers that he remained unalterably attached to the memories of his late comradeship in arms, the premier warned them that they must expect to bear their share of the forthcoming budgetary cuts.

"It will be a week of lean kind," he said, referring to financial debates in Parliament starting next Tuesday. "The reductions will hit everybody," he added.

Paris Symphony Plays New Freed Composition

Paris, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia composer, Isadore Freed, is the first American ever to have the premier audition of his work played by the Paris Symphony Orchestra.

His composition, "Jeux de Timbres," was played this afternoon, and critics praised the work. Pierre Monteux conducted the orchestra.

$75,000 Michigan College Fire.

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Fire of undetermined origin today destroyed the training school building of Central State Teachers College. The building, a two-story brick structure, contained valuable alumni records and other irreplacable data which also were lost. The loss was unofficially estimated at $75,000.

KENDALL, MEMBER OF HOUSE ENDS LIFE IN OFFICE BUILDING

The bullet entered back of the right ear and came out near the left temple.

Deputy Coroner A. Magruder Macdonald, after examining the note found by the detectives and Lieut. Philip Crook, of the Capitol Police, and talking with the sons of the dead representative, issued a certificate of death by suicide.

House Sergeant-at-Arms Kenneth J. Rommey participated in the investigation.

The marriage of Representative Kendall had lasted nearly 50 years. He married Miss Minnie Edith Wiley, of Liscomb, Iowa, on September 22, 1883. At the time of her death last year, the son said, Mr. Kendall as overcome with grief, but of late had become somewhat consoled, and his death came as a shock.

Was Born on Farm.

Representative Kendall was born on a farm in Somerset County, Pa., on November 1, 1859, and for the last several years had made his home at Myersdale, Pa. He attended public schools in his native township and was a student for some time at Valparaiso University, Indiana, and Mount Union College, Alliance, Ohio. At the age of 18 he began teaching school and continued in that profession for 14 years, the last five years of which he was superintendent of schools at Jefferson, Iowa. Then he returned to his native home and served in the Pennsylvania Legislature from Somerset County from 1899 to 1903.

He also was in the lumber business with a brother. This brother was killed in an automobile accident several years ago. Representative Kendall was involved in the same accident, but escaped with slight injury.

Representative Kendall had served the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania District in Congress for the last 14 years, having first been elected to the Sixty-sixth Congress. He was defeated at the last elections, but friends said he had not been greatly affected by the defeat.

Active in Postal Legislation.

As a high-ranking and energetic member of the House postoffice committee, Representative Kendall had attained great renown among postal workers for his sponsoring of legislation in their behalf. Among measures he sponsored for postal workers was a bill reducing the working hours of postal clerks from 48 to 44 hours a week. He engaged in other postal legislation of importance.

Surviving him are the two sons, Samuel Austin, jr., and John Wiley Kendall, and his daughter, Mrs. Angus, all of whom live in this city.

Funeral services for Mr. Kendall will be held in the Lutheran Church at his home town at 2 p. m. Wednesday, with interment there. A committee of twelve members of the House and a smaller delegation from the Senate will be appointed, under custom, today by the Speaker and Vice President, to be present at the rites.

Veteran attaches yesterday said that suicide of the Pennsylvanian was the first in their memory to take place in the House Office Building, although other members had taken their lives elsewhere.

REPEAL IS UP TODAY BEFORE SENATE UNIT

Judiciary Committee Fight Predicted, With Speed Promised.

(Associated Press.)

The newly framed Congressional proposal for repealing the eighteenth amendment faces its second test today in a Senate committee friendly to its purpose but skeptical of its form.

The resolution, bearing a favorable report from the Blaine subcommittee, will be taken up for the first time by the full judiciary committee at its weekly meeting.

There are evident signs of trouble ahead for the resolution despite the 4-to-1 vote in the subcommittee headed by Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin.

Whether the fight over the form of the resolution breaks in the committee or on the Senate floor is largely up to the Democrats, who have indicated they will seek a measure more along the lines of the Democratic platform declaration.

Would Give Protection.

The Democrats, in their campaign plank, called for outright repeal, while the pending measure would repeal but would protect dry States and give Congress authority to legislate against the saloon.

Also, the Democratic as well as the Republican plank called for submitting the question of repeal to State conventions, while the present resolution would go to State legislatures.

Strangely enough, the greatest criticism of the resolution in its present form has come from those favoring repeal, rather than opponents of it.

Most of the antiprohibitionists have served notice they will oppose the clause giving Congress authority to legislate against return of the saloon and there have been rumblings against the clause to prevent the importation of liquor for use in dry States.

Indicative of the attitude of antiprohibition bodies was the stand of Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, who telegraphed members of the committee yesterday urging them not to support the resolution.

"The American people have definitely expressed their desire for outright repeal and the restoration to each State of its former power to regulate its own liquor problem without Federal interference," Mrs. Sabin said, "such amendment to be ratified by conventions in the several States according to both political party platforms.

"As the resolution does not conform to these requirements we hope that it will not receive your support."

Taking an opposing view, sever l former supporters of the dry laws as they stand now have indicated they will vote for the new resolution.

Speed Is Promised.

No final action on the legislation today is expected by members of the committee, though they have indicated it will be given speedy consideration.

With the House beer bill nearing the committee door, sponsors of the repeal move are hopeful of getting their measure out of the way first.

The Blaine subcommittee completed hearings on the beer bill Saturday, and the Wisconsin senator said he would call a meeting early this week to act on it.

Friends and foes of prohibition presented sharply contrasting views on the constitutionality of the measure, which would legalize 3.2 per cent beer, and it may be redrafted by the subcommittee before being reported back to the full committee.

Plot to Betray Citizens In Liquor Issue Charged

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League, said in a statement yesterday: "The Constitutional citizens of America will not be fooled by the carefully worked out plot by certain so-called drys to further betray the American people in their advocacy of turning the liquor problems over to a group of wet exploiters to solve."

Her statement added:

"A press release from a small meeting of 50 prohibitionists in Atlantic City, the past week, presided over by Dr. John Mott, states that James Schermerhorn, former publisher of the Detroit Times, in an address last week, urged that the opponents of prohibition be given a free hand in solving the liquor question, and that the Constitutional citizens who have obeyed the laws should acquiesce for the time being, to the wets in the destroying of prohibition and its gains, as an evidence of true sportsmanship, and further states that the November election was a wet mandate by the people, notwithstanding that both the Republican and Democratic platforms were wet, should not be given the slightest attention by those who have consistently worked for law enforcement and law observance.

"We would like to ask Mr. Schermerhorn what he has done in the past to help law enforcement and law observance? And if the November election was a wet mandate of the people, why were the most outstanding wets, Senator Bingham, Senator Blaine, Senator Moses and Representative La Guardia, defeated?

"We would like further to ask Dr. John Mott, who presided over this small group, who is financing and putting up the money for the wet propaganda which he and others associated with him are disseminating? For the Constitutional women of this country remember only too well what a strangle-hold the liquor interests had upon our country through the alien industry before the passing of the eighteenth amendment."

Railroads Are Canvassed On Change in Beer Rules

(Associated Press.)

A canvass of railroad presidents to ascertain their attitude on allowing their employes to drink beer if it is legalized was announced last night by Mrs. William Tilton, vice chairman of the Radio Education Committee.

She said the committee, of which Dr. Richard C. Cabot, of Cambridge, Mass., is chairman, had sent a letter to its members asking them to write the rail officials in their States and ask them "whether, when if 4 per cent beer by volume becomes legal, they will change their present rule which requires complete abstinence from all liquors by their employes and allow their engineers, for example, to imbibe freely of beer before making their runs."

Mrs. Tilton added that "the general public is naturally concerned to know what railroads might treat beer as a soft drink."

MILLERS DENOUNCE FARM PRICE-FIXING

(Associated Press.)

A charge by the Millers National Federation that the domestic allotment farm relief plan would cost consumers $1,167,000,000 was hurled at the bill's Democratic sponsors yesterday as they prepared to drive it through the House this week.

In an open letter to every representative, the Federation said the emergency bill "would levy an average sales tax of $10 per capita against every man, woman and child in the country."

This attack was issued as Progressive Republicans, joining Democratic farm leaders in support of the price-fixing plan, announced plans to propose amendments when that stage of consideration is reached in the House late today, to prevent pyramiding of the processing tax and to protect the farmer's bonus certificates from his creditors.

Would Guard Certificates.

"We will propose amendments to protect the certificate in the hands of the farmers from attachment until they are cashed," explained Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, Progressive leader.

"We also will offer an amendment to qualify the duties of the Secretary of Agriculture in publishing market prices and bonus rates to cover retail prices, so that pyramiding of the tax can be prevented."

From a Republican regular—Fish, of New York—meanwhile came a statement that the bill "is an amazing piece of legislation to originate in the fertile political mind of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the President-elect, who received 900,000 majority in the City of New York, and now proposes to assess the consumers in New York City and up-State cities, which he carried by substantial majorities, for the benefit of Southern and Western States."

"Only two weeks ago," Fish added, "Mr. Roosevelt stated that he was 'horrified' at the suggestion of a sales tax, and this proposal is nothing more than a sales tax in its worst form—upon food products and clothing, the two items which everyone agreed should be eliminated from any general sales tax."

The letter from the millers, signed by Herman Fakler, local representative, said that farmers themselves would pay nearly $300,000,000 of the tax by which it is proposed to raise funds for paying them a bounty on each one's share of the domestic consumption.

Distribution Unequal.

"Thirty-two States and the District of Columbia," it said, "would actually pay out more in sales taxes than they would receive in the form of bonuses. In ten States the farmers themselves would pay out more in sales taxes than they would receive in bonuses.

"Seven States, namely, Iowa, Kansas, Texas, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota and Nebraska, would receive over half the total bonus."

Representative Knutson (Republican), Minnesota, announced he will offer an amendment for a 10-cent-a-pound tax on all foreign oil and fats used in the manufacture of any edible oil or fat product.

ist was killed. Two unidentified bodies were found in front of Syndicalist headquarters.

One civilian was killed in an affray in Conde de Asalto street here. More than 100 Extremists attacked the France station, hurling bombs. Guards quickly drove away the assailants.

Later several Extremists rushed upon the San Augustin barracks and one sentinel and one guard were wounded in gunfire there. In the Sanaeren district one guard and two civilians were wounded in a clash.

A short gun battle occurred near the Palace of Justice, following which several persons were arrested.

It was reported that in the nearby town of San Vicente Extremists halted a train and informed travelers that communism had been proclaimed in Barcelona.

Extremists killed a militiaman in the Clot district when Communists attempted to disarm a civil guard. The guard refused to obey the Communist demands and fired into the throng. Two Communists were killed.

Reinforcements of assault guards were armed with machine guns after it was learned that Extremists had allegedly decided to blow up police headquarters.

Later tonight authorities declared they believed the movement was collapsing because of the precautions taken.

Madrid, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Armed guards were placed around police headquarters today in order to quell any possible disturbance.

SMOOT JOINS RANKS OF INFLATION ARMY

Remonetizing Silver, He Feels, Best Way to Improve Trade Situation.

(Associated Press.)

The move for inflation as a stimulant for economic conditions has drawn into its ranks Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee, who believes remonetization of silver at a specified price would turn the trick.

The veteran Utah Republican expressed the opinion yesterday that "there has got to be some form of inflation very soon, if we are to improve conditions," and he said he was preparing legislation looking to aiding the silver industry.

Many bills dealing with the silver and currency question are on the Senate calendar or in the course of preparation. Smoot's present plan is to offer his proposal as an amendment to the Pittman bill, which provides for the purchase of silver and the issuance of silver certificates.

Dissatisfied with the bill because it fails to specify a price, Smoot said his amendment would take care of that, but he has not yet determined upon a figure.

"We have got to have some inflation, but not paper inflation," he asserted. "If we increase the price of silver and strengthen the money situation in that way by bringing to the metal an active value here, it will employ tens of thousands of people and help the general situation tremendously."

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, has under consideration legislation to inflate the currency, either by issuance of new money or by reducing the gold content of the dollar and thereby lowering its purchasing power.

He has not determined which alternative he will offer or whether he will propose it at all this session.

Other senators sponsoring money bills are Hayden (Democrat), Arizona, who seeks authority for war debt payments in silver, and Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, who wants free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 with gold.

A number of similar bills are pending in the House, including that of Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, to pay the soldiers' bonus with new money.

Butler Funeral Rites To Be Arranged Today

(Associated Press.)

Kenneth Romney, sergeant-at-arms of the House, said yesterday that funeral arrangements for Representative Robert R. Butler, of Oregon, who died Saturday, would not be completed until today.

Burial will be at The Dalles, Oregon, later in the week, but final arrangements are in abeyance pending the arrival today of relatives from Butler, Tenn., his birthplace. Speaker Garner will announce today, the official congressional funeral committee.

ment to the program for balancing the budget at this session and said he saw no other way of doing it than the plan proposed at Friday's conference of Congressional leaders for increasing income taxes.

A member of the judiciary committee considering the beer and repeal proposals, Senator Walsh expressed confidence to the President-elect that this Congress would dispose of both. He warmly defended the repeal resolution advanced in the Senate, providing for Federal protection of dry States, on the ground that only a resolution of this form could expect to receive ratification from 36 States.

Silent on Cabinet.

Asked if he was going to be the Attorney General in the Roosevelt Cabinet, the gray-haired Montana senator, who prosecuted the Senate inquiry into the oil leases of the Harding administration, merely smiled. He would not commit Mr. Roosevelt on any proposition and said he only spoke for himself on the World Court and the St. Lawrence pact. While he is for the latter proposition, Walsh said he would hazard no guess on the result of a Senate vote on it. He did believe it would come from the foreign relations committee to the Senate before long.

Walsh is a leader of the contest for American adherence to the World Court, and he is most optimistic that the new Senate will give its indorsement to the revised protocol already approved, with reservations, by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Pinchot Roosevelt Guest.

Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, a Republican Independent, also was a guest today at the Hyde Park estate of Mr. Roosevelt, together with Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the chairman of the inaugural committee.

The President-elect kept to his home and indulged in what he calls "putting on the lid," meaning no newspaper interviews. Senator Walsh was seen at the train as he left. Gov. Pinchot left for Harrisburg by automobile. As a result of the Walsh conference, there is increased belief in the Roosevelt household that almost united Democratic support will be in line for the budget balancing and prohibition programs, which the President-elect wants to be enacted at this session of Congress, together with a farm relief bill.

Close Accord Predicted.

Nevertheless, it is likely that Mr. Roosevelt will keep close contact with the congressional movements at this session through continued conferences with the party leaders.

He will resume these in New York City, where he will return late tomorrow. The conferences also will be resumed next week in Washington when Mr. Roosevelt stops over at the Capital City for a day en route to the South.

Disposition of the World Court and St. Lawrence proposals in the special session of the new Senate next spring, would go a long way in clearing the calendar of unfinished business to be picked up by the President-elect when he takes office March 4.

GLASS IS TOLD BILL WILL END FAILURES

Banking Reform Measure Is Defended by Official of National Association.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Glass of Virginia and advocates of his banking reform bill yesterday were given assurance by the treasurer of the American Bankers Association that the legislation would arrest further bank failures.

Discussing the heart of the proposal which opponents hope to eliminate or, at least, modify—the provision allowing national banks to have branches within State lines by taking over weaker institutions—P. D. Houston, of Nashville, Tenn., said in a statement the smaller banks would be the beneficiaries.

"I firmly believe," he said, "that many small banks, particularly in smaller communities, which are now finding it difficult to survive in the face of tragically adverse economic conditions will find it possible to continue to serve their communities after consolidation with a stronger bank.

Democratic Ranks Split.

"The alternative to consolidation and absorption appears to be suspension with resultant loss to depositors, stockholders and the community generally."

The legislation has split Democratic ranks.

Led by Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, the opposition contends State-wide branch banking would ultimately place the Nation's financial structure under the control of a few big chains. Long has an amendment pending to confine branches to cities in which the principal bank is located.

Senator Glass, author of the bill now in the Senate, like Houston, feels the branch banking provision is essential to sound banking and will block further closings. He is confident the bill will pass with its many other provisions, including those to curb the use of Federal Reserve credit for speculation.

Sees Curb on Losses.

"If we can stop banks from failing," Houston said, "We accomplish two immediate objectives. We prevent further losses to bank depositors and bank stockholders, and we restore confidence in our banks to an extent which will induce return of hoarded currency to circulation, where it will form the basis of an extension of credit.

"This will in turn provide increased purchasing power for many manufacturers, merchants, farmers, etc., as well as individuals, with the resulting increase in exchange of goods and services, unemployment will be decreased and a normal volume of business should be enjoyed."

Milwaukee Broker Dies in Hollywood

He Was Engaged in Long Income Tax Dispute With Wisconsin.

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Lawrence A. Wagner, wealthy Milwaukee, Wis., loan broker, died at his Hollywood home today. He had lived here several months and had been ill about two months.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Lawrence A. Wagner, who died at Hollywood today, conducted an investment and small-loan business with branches in 46 cities. He became ill in September, and he left here seeking to restore his health.

He was involved recently in an income tax dispute with the State of Wisconsin. The State sought to examine books of his firm, but Wagner refused to permit it. The State carried its action to the United States Supreme Court and was sustained. Then it was ascertained that Wagner had sent them out of the State and more litigation was in prospect.

HOOVER REGROUPING HIT BY HOUSE GROUP

houses would have to reject changes he may propose in order to shelve them.

The majority report, written by Chairman Cochran, said that all witnesses who wanted to be heard were called and that outside of Col. J. Clawson Roop, Director of the Budget, the only witness who supported Mr. Hoover was Williamson.

"At the conclusion of his testimony," the report said, " * * * Col. Roop expressed his personal opinion that it would be unwise to make the proposed changes on the eve of the inauguration of a new President."

Cochran said the President had supplied little information on realignments affecting 58 agencies; that there were legal questions involved, and that Mr. Hoover seemed to have exceeded his authority. He said it was possible that in time some of the readjustments might save money, but that the need for economy was imperative now.

"We are firmly of the opinion, "especially in view of the condition of the Treasury and the imperative necessity of drastic reductions in Government expenditures," the general minority report said, "that the President's executive orders should be allowed to stand, except as to that part thereof which to the committee would appear unwise after due consideration. * * *

"The President-elect and Democratic leaders in both the House and the Senate are using every effort to avoid a special session. This means that if the President's reorganization is upset nothing at all can be accomplished during the next 12 months."

THREE ARE KILLED IN FARM TRAGEDY

Man and Housekeeper Slain by Enraged Hand, Who Is Posse Victim.

Oregon, Ill., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Dan W. Fisher, 53, farmer, near here, and his housekeeper, Bessie Mead, 35, former operator of a Chicago tea room, were beaten to death today by an enraged farm hand. The farm hand, John Bellarques, 27, was slain a few hours later as he attempted to elude a posse.

The couple was found dead on a bed by Peter Kuturich, another laborer employed on the farm. Bellarques had fled after packing his few belongings. Kuturich ran to a neighbor's and notified authorities of the killings.

When he returned, he said, he found the bodies had been moved into another room and covered with canvas. Apparently, he said, Bellarques came back while Kuturich was telephoning.

A posse was organized under direction of Ernie Smith, a State policeman, and Bellarques was cornered on a neighboring farm. He was fatally shot by a posse member as he sought t oattack the man with a crowbar.

Kuturich said the four had breakfast at 10 a. m., and that he then went to the barn to work, while Fisher and Bellarques went out to skin a calf. When Kuturich returned to the house he found the bodies. Both had been beaten with a heavy instrument.

The posse tracked the slayer to another farm and closed in as he attempted to break in a locked tool shed to hide. Trapped, he lunged at Harold Swanson with the bar, and Swanson fired. The man died from the shotgun wound while on the way to the hospital.

Authorities said the motive for the killings had not been determined. Bellarques had been employed on the farm only about three months. Police said it was possible the men had difficulties over wages.

ARGENTINE REBELS DEFEATED IN FIGHT

Buenos Aires Reports Three Wounded in Attack on Railway Troops.

Buenos Aires, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—In a bulletin today, the ministry of war said a lieutenant had been seriously wounded and two soldiers slightly hurt when 30 rebels attacked the first railway battalion at Concordia.

The insurgents were repulsed quickly. Later Uruguayan authorities arrested Lieut. Col. Gregorio Pomar and Dr. X. Sabattini as participants in the attack while the two men were landing at Salto, Uruguay.

Meanwhile, President Justo was hurrying here on a special train from Mar Del Plate.

The ministry of war in the communique said the rebels were irresponsible persons who close Corrientes, Concordia and La Paz to stage the disorders, since these are frontier zones and the insurgents would be able to escape.

The communique added that the rest of the country was completely quiet.

In a bulletin Saturday morning the war department said that an armed group of fifteen civilians took by assault the police station in the village of San Isidro, near the Brazilian border. When they later tried to storm a police station in nearby San Carlos they were repulsed and fled into Brazilian territory, abandoning their arms.

The communique, however, minimized the incident as "purely a police episode."

TWO KILLED AS CAR CRASHES INTO TREE

Boy and Girl of Cumberland Are Dead; Two Others Are Injured.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 8.—Victor J. Lucas, 18, son of Mrs. N. Pearl Lucas, and Alleda W. Willison, 19, daughter of Lemuel Willison, both of this city, were killed last night in a motor accident near Finzel, Garrett County, in which Gretchen J. Lucas, 19, sister of the dead youth and inspector at Footers Dye Works, and Garfield Marsh, 22, son of Mrs. Robert Marsh, of Westernport, Md., were injured.

Miss Lucas is at Minors Hospital, Frostburg, with serious lacerations, bruises and abrasions. Marsh, after being given minor treatment, was released.

The Maryland authorities turned over investigation of the accident to the Pennsylvania State Patrol after it was found it occurred in that State within a few yards of the Maryland line. The four were in a car belonging to Marsh's mother and the survivors of the accident say Lucas was driving.

The machine evidently got beyond control and crashed into a tree, turning over, and the gasoline tank exploding. Marsh was able to remove his three companions before the flames reached them. Young Lucas and Miss Willison were dead from broken necks.

Young Lucas' father, Clarence C. Lucas, Baltimore & Ohio employe and prominent in fraternal societies, died four weeks ago. Miss Willison is survived by her parents, four sisters and two brothers.

CHILE TOLD NITRATE WAR ONLY WAY OUT

Columbia Expert Warns U.S. Can Undersell Cosach by $6 Per Ton.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A report stating that the "only salvation" of Chile's nitrate industry lies in "destruction" of the American synthetic nitrate industry was issued tonight by the Chemical Foundation, Inc.

The report was written by J. Enrique Zanetti, professor of chemistry at Columbia University, who was employed by the Chemical Foundation to investigate nitrates and who visited Chile last year in this capacity.

The report is introduced in a foreword by Francis P. Garvan, president of the Chemical Foundation. It is dated December 1, last, and says:

"Last week, in Germany, an agreement was signed of the utmost importance to the people of the United States. It was an agreement controlling production and sale of natural and synthetic nitrogen by the nitrogen companies of every country in Europe and by Cosach, the Chilean nitrate monopoly. So secret were the proceedings that only one copy was signed by the different companies involved, and then only with initials, and this secret copy was deposited in a safe deposit box in Germany, each of the signing companies being handed a carbon copy of this agreement, without any signatures attached.

"This concert followed a general concert of the chemical companies of Europe in the international dye cartel and is almost simultaneous with the foreign debt concert, which has now demanded the cancellation of its debts to this country. Lonely America is right!"

American synthetic nitrogen plants, says Prof. Zanetti, now have an annual production capacity of 518,600 tons of nitrogen, "which is far in excess of our normal peace-time consumption, placed at 370,000 tons."

Cosach, he says, at the present price of $21 a ton in the United States, is selling its nitrates at a "loss of at least $6 a ton." He adds that there are now 3,000,000 tons of Chilean nitrates unsold, two-thirds in storage in Chile, the remainder in other countries, chiefly England.

"On a fair basis of competition," he says of the American industry, "the synthetic nitrogen industry can more than cope with the Chilean industry. The synthetic industry has lowered the cost of nitrogen to the farmer beyond what he might have reasonably hoped ten years ago.

"The Chilean industry's only salvation lies in the destruction of our fixed nitrogen industry and we may expect every effort in that direction by outright dumping in our market. With the 3,000,000 tons of stocks shut out from all countries except our own and Egypt, which takes only about 200,000 tons a year, this dumping could proceed long enough to spell disaster to our industry.

"The American industry is at a distinct disadvantage, for it can not organize as its foreign creditors do, on account of antitrust law regulations and each unit must fight by itself against a common enemy."

Prof. Zanetti says that America has become self-contained in either synthetic manufacture or home sources of all the fertilizers, potash, phosphate and nitrogen, and adds:

"We are now, therefore, independent of any nation for our military requirements of nitrogen, but that independence will not last long if we allow ourselves to fall into the hands of the monopolies and cartels and again have to pay millions, if not billions, before the 'inexorable economic law' be again in process of operating."

Last of Turtle's Two Heads Dies

Freak in Quandary Most of Its Life Over Which Way to Walk.

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A two-headed snapping turtle, which spent most of its life trying to decide which way to go, died today in a research laboratory.

Until yesterday, when the left head died, the turtle appeared in a quandry, according to the laboratory staff, as to which way to walk, when to sleep and when to stay awake. For the last 24 hours, Joseph Druzba, of the General Electric Co.'s research laboratory, who witnessed the death, noted that the right head finally had things all its own way, and the turtle became more lively than it had been since it was brought to the laboratory last September. Today the right head also died.

Nine-year-old Norwood Cliffe, daughter of a research worker, found the turtle on the banks of a pond and gave it to the laboratory, where it was kept in an aquarium for observation by Dr. Willis R. Whitney, of the research staff.

Nazaire in March 1929. The inquiry had been abandoned despite finding of pools of gasoline in several parts of the ship.

This inquiry and the investigation of the Atlantique fire were expected to disclose "exciting details" in connection with the rumored plot, it was said.

Meanwhile, Capt. Rene Schoof, of the Atlantique in port at Cherbourg, reported an inspection of the hulk revealed the charred bodies of five seamen. Three could not be identified.

Angkor Damaged in Orient.

Marseilles, France, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Messageries Maritimes liner Angkor, which left here in October, today was reported to have incurred a broken propeller blade near Singapore.

From that port, it was said, she proceeded with only one propeller blade to Saigon, where she is awaiting spares from Marseilles. A rumor of sabotage was categorically denied here.

COL. CHARLES H. MARCH.

COL. MARCH HEADS TRADE COMMISSION

Succeeds W. E. Humphrey as Chairman; Member Since 1929.

Election of Col. Charles H. March as chairman of the Federal Trade Commission by his fellow members was announced yesterday. He succeeds William E. Humphrey, who remains a member of the commission.

A native of Minnesota and a lawyer of many years' experience, Col. March has been a member of the commission since 1929. He has expressed himself as being particularly interested in the causes and preventive measures of the business depression and the application of the antitrust laws to the question of overproduction of commodities and products.

These matters, Col. March believes, should be studied by the commission with a view to gathering all available facts and presenting them to the public and to Congress.

Adequate publicity regarding business and corporate matters is favored by the new chairman. Investigation of electric and gas utilities should be vigorously pushed, he asserted. Col. March expressed hope that this investigation will result in proposal of reforms in public utility regulation of sufficient import to avoid such catastrophies in the future as the collapse of the Insull companies.

One of the functions of the commission is its protection of the honest business man, Col. March pointed out. The honest business man, he believes, should be guaranteed the opportunity to carry on his trade under the benefits of free competition, unmolested by monopoly.

ond minute examination of the wrecked automobile, but were unable to find a single trace of the bomb's material.

It is thought the explosive was tied to the muffler of the car with string or some other material which was burned in the blast.

Miss Kirk, grandniece of W. W. Corcoran, founder of the Corcoran Art Gallery, and a first cousin of Corcoran P. Thom, president of the American Security & Trust Co., spent Friday night at the home of Mrs. Gibson, preparatory to getting an early start to Washington.

During the night the car was parked beside the minister's house. Detectives declare the bomb was placed in the car some time during the night.

Saturday morning the two women drove to a nearby filling station and had water put in the radiator which had been drained by Mr. Gibson the night before.

Near the Gibson home investigators found a shotgun shell with the powder removed. They think this powder was used in the construction of the fuse which set off the charge of dynamite.

Miss Kirk, who was known throughout the county for her philanthropy, will be buried this afternoon in the cemetery at Christ Church in Chaptico. Funeral services will be held in the church at 3 o'clock.

30 PERSONS INJURED IN DUBLIN RALLY RIOT

down and had to leave the platform. Police had a hard fight to protect Mrs. Collins O'Driscoll, sister of the late Michael Collins, former minister of finance in the Dail cabinet, from a rush of rioters when she arose to speak.

The Army Comrades Association fought hand-in-hand with the police to quell the disturbances, while Gen. Mulcahy and the other speakers carried on against great odds.

Rocks were thrown and loudspeakers torn down. The speakers were heckled mercilessly by crowds singing pro-De Valera songs. At times there was danger of the speakers' platform itself being overwhelmed, but each time the police were able to beat back the rioters with their clubs.

Police reinforcements were rushed to the scene, but even then they were unable to cope with the situation and the disturbance continued until the meeting had run its course.

A concerted attack was made upon the speakers as they left O'Connell street. Bricks, eggs and stones were thrown and the police were able to save them from injury only by the liberal use of their batons.

It was learned that 300 police were on duty during the riot and that they were reinforced by 700 of the Army Comrades Association, known as the "White Army."

The members of the comrades' association had been specially mobilized to help put down the disorder.

The crowd was estimated at 15,000 to 25,000.

SIX SLIGHTLY HURT IN PRISON DISORDER

Five Convicts and Guard Are Injured in Clash at Dorchester, N. B.

Ottawa, Ontario, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Five prisoners and one guard were slightly injured in a disturbance Saturday at Dorchester Penitentiary, New Brunswick, a report today to Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, said. The riot was quickly suppressed and the 400 inmates were placed in their cells. Quiet prevailed in the prison last night and today.

The trouble started in the stone shed, the report stated, and a small fire was started in the laundry by the convicts. Most of the prisoners were not involved in the disturbance, although some joined in the yelling after being placed back in their cells.

Mr. Guthrie instructed Warden G. T. Goad of the penitentiary to give newspapermen details of the disturbance, which apparently resulted from a prearranged scheme that was frustrated through advance information given the prison staff.

It was reported that 60 Royal Canadian mounted policemen, equipped with rifles, moved to the prison from various points in the province. It was believed that the prisoners intended only a demonstration because of alleged dissatisfaction with their meals.

Officials disrupted any plan the prisoners might have had by moving the men from the shops fifteen minutes before the usual time.

"Phantom Gangster" Is Caught in Toledo

Toledo, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Robert Zwick, 33, sought since 1928 for the alleged slaying of Marshal Pete Dumele in a Cincinnati poolroom holdup, was shot by a rookie policeman he had wounded today, and captured. Zwick, known in police circles as the "phantom gangster" because of his elusiveness, admitted his identity, Capt. George Timiney said.

Zwick is under indictment in Cincinnati for one killing and is wanted for questioning in a dozen gangland slayings and numerous bank robberies in southwestern Ohio, northern Kentucky and southeastern Indiana.

Lost V. M. I. Cadet Held as Vagrant

Fugitive Tells Police He Left School to Avoid Army Training.

Aiken, S. C., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Myron J. Lockwood, 18, missing from his studies at Virginia Military Institute since December 31, was being held in the county jail here tonight under a technical charge of vagrancy, pending arrival here tomorrow of his uncle, W. J. Dickson, of New Canaan, Conn.

Lockwood, arrested at Langley yesterday, revealed his identity when brought to jail here, and said he was hitch-hiking to Florida. He told officers he left the Virginia school because he did not like military training.

Young Lockwood, officers said, lives with Dickson in New Canaan. They said Dickson asked them to hold the youth until he arrived.

Gasoline Tank Cap Lock Makes Auto Show Bow

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Among the accessories on display at the annual automobile show in Grand Central Palace this year is a gasoline tank cap with a lock. Not only will this prevent thefts of gasoline, its sponsors say, but if the whole car is stolen it can be driven only until the tank runs dry, for no fuel can be added without using the key.

Manufacturers and salesman generally expressed delight at the reception accorded their products at the show, which opened yesterday and will continue through next week.

PHILADELPHIA PILOT MIAMI SPEED VICTOR

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Closing the fifth annual All-American air races with a last second burst of speed, Henry Little, of Philadelphia, today won a 25-mile event for sportsmen pilots in planes of less than 500 cubic inches displacement.

He dived close to the ground in the last 100 yards of the race to beat John Wright, of Utica, N. Y., across the finish line by only a few feet. His average speed was 146.775 miles an hour. Wright averaged 146.167. William Rausch, of White Plains, N. Y., finished third at 128.167 miles an hour.

The Sunday program drew a crowd of fewer than 1,500 persons. A brisk wind was whipping across the field, which slowed the racers.

Ben Stegall, of Savannah, Ga., won a sportsman pilots' race for planes of 500 to 800 inches, averaging 148.843 miles an hour. J. W. Start, of New York, was second, 142.599 miles, and Eugene J. Detmer, of Tarrytown, N. Y., was third, 127.206 miles an hour.

Foster Thomas, of Miami, won the Sunday bomb-dropping contest, missing the mark by 87 feet 6 inches, as the strong wind blew his flour-filled sack. Marcellus King, of Fairmont, Minn., was second, 94 feet, and Joe Musleh, of Jacksonville, Fla., was third, 96 feet. First prize was $50, second $40 and third $30.

The slim crowd thrilled to an exhibition of stunt flying by Betty Lund, widow of Freddie Lund, noted stunt flier killed in 1931 in Kentucky. She rolled her plane high over the field, pulled it into various spins, flew upside down and generally opened a bag of tricks.

A group of 87 "amateur" fliers, from the Aviation Country Club in New York, who participated in the Florida-Year-Round Club's air derby from Daytona Beach to Miami for prizes totaling $2,500, flew today in salute to Henry L. Doherty, who gave the prize money.

MARINE AIR FLEET FLYING TO CAPITAL

Group En Route North, After Service in Nicaragua, Led by Mulcahy.

The aviation force of the Second Brigade, United States Marine Corps, of Nicaragua, will arrive at the naval air station at Anacostia early this week at the conclusion of a flight of more than 2,500 miles from Archibald Field, Managua.

Secretary of the Navy Adams, Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, Rear Admiral Moffett and other dignitaries of the Navy and Marine Corps will be present to welcome the returning fliers.

The combined squadrons are commanded by Capt. Patrick Mulcahy, who holds the Distinguished Service Medal for combat work in the World War.

It is expected that more than 22 planes will land at the naval air station during the ceremony. These include amphibian, attack, observation and transport ships.

The returning fliers are coming by two routes. A squadron of five amphibians flew across the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico. The remainder of the planes, which are of land type, are following the coast line of Central America and Mexico and will cross the border near Brownsville, Tex. The squadrons will reunite at Charleston, S. C., and fly north together. Due to the fact that some of the planes coming overland by way of Texas have been held up by weather, and others have been participating in the all-American air races at Miami, it is not known exactly what day they will arrive here.

De Pachmann, 85, Has Simple Rites

Famed Pianist, Who Spent Wealth on Poor, Buried in Full Dress.

Rome, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Vladimir de Pachmann, 85-year-old pianist, whose magic fingers charmed presidents, kings, princes and hundreds of thousands of "just people," was buried this morning more simply than the ordinary workman, who sat in the gallery to hear him play. This was in accordance with his own wishes, since he said a few days before he died: "I have given all my money to help poor musicians, and I don't want an expensive funeral."

A hearse with only three wreaths, followed by an automobile bearing his two sons, both of Paris, and his impresario, Francesco Pallotelli-Corinaldesi, carried the body to Campo Verano Cemetery without a preliminary ceremony.

There a Capuchin monk read the last prayers. The coffin was opened, disclosing the pianist in full dress attire with a white tie, which he always wore while playing at concerts. The monk sprinkled holy water over the coffin, which then was closed and lowered into the grave.

2 Bombings Mark New Mine Trouble

None Injured in $10,000 Explosions in Illinois; Store Wrecked.

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Two bombs were exploded in the Christian County coal region today, both in business establishments operated by persons thought to be in sympathy with the new Progressive Miner's Union movement. Property damage estimated at $10,000 was caused by the explosives. No one was injured.

A Kincaid general store, owned by Police Chief Albert Matozza, now charged with murder in connection with the mine disorders there January 3, was the target for the first bomb. A powerful charge of black powder reduced the interior to a mass of debris and wrecked living apartments on the second floor.

The second bomb was hurled into the Taylorville lunchstand of John Crapalese, which Sheriff Charles Wieneke described as a meeting place for persons opposed to the United Mine Workers of America organization.

Saint Canonized As Pope Presides

Miracle in Tennessee Is Cited in Beatification of Maria Pelletier.

Vatican City, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Pope Pius today presided at the reading of a final decree of canonization for the blessed Andre Fournet, founder of the Daughters of the Order of the Pguf, and a decree of beatification of the venerable Maria Pelletier, founder of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, which has many chapters in the United States.

The Pope's decree approved the genuineness of two miracles advanced for the beatification of Pelletier, one of which occured in Nashville, Tenn., October 11, 1913.

Mary Magdalene Hodges, of the Good Shepherd Home, praying for the intercession of Pelletier, was relieved of a stomach cancer, which was attested to by five physicians.

Jinxed FoundlingUnhurt In Fall; Tagged No. 13

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—As if to be abandoned were not hard luck enough, more trouble dogged a baby girl who was found in a hallway in Brooklyn today. Policewoman Alice Thompson, starting to take her to an infants' hospital, tripped and fell down the steps of a police station. She kept the baby from injury at the expense of severe cuts and bruises to herself, for which she required hospital treatment.

At the hospital the number that fell to the baby was 13.

Kansas Internal Revenue Bookkeeper Ends Life

Wichita, Kans., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Elmer E. Soderstrom, 60-year-old bookkeeper for the Internal Revenue Department, was found shot to death in the wash room of the Federal Building here today. A .38-caliber pistol lay beside his body.

H. H. Motter, Internal Revenue collector, expressed belief he had committed suicide because of ill health. Motter said his records were in good order.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

THE last time they counted the number of fraternal orders in which Harry E. Rieseberg, chief tonnage division, steamboat inspection, Navigation Bureau, is a member, it was found he was enrolled in "more than seventeen" lodges. But that was 18 months ago. Later the number went to 23. The total now "is around 30."

RIESEBERG.

There are some orders and lodges, too, to which Mr. Rieseberg once belonged but in which he no longer is a member. In short, Mr. Rieseberg is very well joined-up.

"Do you try to average a meeting a night each month for those 30 lodges, Mr. Rieseberg?"

"I couldn't possibly get to all the meetings but I am interested in all the work."

Only the other night Mr. Rieseberg was chosen unanimously as junior deputy grand Tall Cedar, Capitol Forest, No. 104, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, Washington, which means that in 1934 he will be elevated to grand tall cedar.

Our friend, F. F. Magruder, Postoffice Department, had tipped us off to this great American "joiner."

Mr. Rieseberg has set a mark for Government workers to try to shoot at as a fraternalist. Three or four lodge affiliations are frequent but 30, that's another chapter.

And yet in his spare time, Mr. Rieseberg has the task of thinking out details on how to attract 50,000 visitors to the Tall Cedars convention in Washington May 19, 20, 21, and 22, 1933. He is publicity and program chairman.

While we are on the subject of that convention, we can mention the names of other Government workers interested in its success.

Thomas C. Havell, assistant director, Land Office, is general chairman. Charles R. Brill, National Parks, vice chairman. John Harvey, superintendent, Interior Building, treasurer, and F. R. Steffens, Internal Revenue, secretary. H. M. Vandervort, Veterans' Bureau, hotel committee chairman. C. A. Jaquette, Internal Revenue, transportation and auto committee chairman. Alvah W. Patterson, chairman, board of appeals, Interior, reception chairman. F. A. Birgfeld, chief clerk, Treasury, finance chairman. J. Q. Slye, Treasury, entertainment chairman. Samuel H. Marks, assistant chief clerk, Treasury, subscribers fund chairman. P. M. Rice, Land Office, grand ball chairman. T. E. Franklin, Bureau of Engraving, membership chairman. W. C. Heider, electrical department, District Building, concessions chairman. R. S. Miller, Indian Office, is registration director.

"We intend to use both ballrooms on the top floor of the Willard, something that has never been done, for the grand ball," said Mr. Rieseberg.

Now for a sketch of Harry E. Rieseberg:

He was born here, some years ago, let us say, and was educated in public schools, business colleges and the University of Southern California. His legal voting residence is Prescott, Ariz.

He was assistant postmaster at El Centro, Calif. Later he became assistant chief clerk, Federal Board of Vocational Education, New Orleans. Early in the war he was with the Department of Agriculture, handling work in the War Emergency Food Survey. He left to be chief of acturial statistics, War Risk Insurance Bureau (now Veterans' Administration), where he directed more than 400 employes. He became administrative assistant in charge, United States Public Health Service Hospital, Whipple Barracks, Ariz., then he was transferred as a personnel officer, Public Health Hospital, Oteen, N. C. He came back here in 1921 to his present station. He is a commissioned officer, Quartermaster Reserve Corps, as lieutenant.

He is a member of Mount Pleasant Lodge, No. 33, F. A. A. M., a thirty-second-degree Mason, holding membership in Mithras Lodge of Perfection, No. 1, A. A. Scottish Rite; Evangelist Chapter, Rose Croix, No. 1, A. A. Scottish Rite; Robert de Bruce Council, Knights Kadosh, No. 1, A. A. Scottish Rite; Albert Pike Consistory, No. 1, A. A. Scottish Rite, Southern Jurisdiction; a member of Alma Temple, Ancient Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine; charter and life member of Capitol Forest, No. 104, Tall Cedars of Lebanon; Washington Chapter, No. 3, National Sojourners Club of Masons, and several other Masonic clubs; a member of the A. E. Talbot Camp, Modern Woodmen of America; Adventurers Club of New York City, Yavapai Club, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, American Statistical Society of America; Logan Tribe, No. 8, Improved Order of Red Men; Washington Council, No. 13, Junior Order of United American Mechanics; Knights of Nem Der, and honorary member of seven Mystic Shrine Temples.

"HE couldn't really kick." So goes the last line of the preceding installment of Swarmi Fedd's experiences at the hands of the hospitable French.

"I'll simply have to default on taking you to that address," said the driver, unless we can find some one to show us the way." Swarmi nodded, for he understood every word.

"Oke," said Mr. Fedd. "It's K. O. by me. Where's the some one?"

"Here comes one of those janitors with a long apron and cap now," said the driver as he prepared to get out and crank his cranky cab. At this point we are reminded of the words of Swarmi Fedd describing the cab, as he recalled his journeys through Paris:

The outside was cranky,
The inside was swanky,
The topside was leaky,
The bottom was squeaky."

That story we ran about 701 words on one side of a post card. Abraham J. Gancher, New York, read it, and informed us the stunt was puerile. He has scribbled 5,320 words on a special delivery stamp and 1,479 on an ordinary stamp, practically ruining it for postage purposes. He ran away with the 17,000-word record of Charles Monier, Detroit, by writing 40,000 words on a postal card. Nothing like having spare time.

WE thought we spied a new-fangled traffic signal E. W. Condon, traffic referee, at Twelfth street northwest and the Avenue was turning.

"Got a new signal, haven't you?" we ventured.

"Well, we used to have it here seven months ago."

"It reflects auto lights at night with 'stop-go' letters, doesn't it?"

"Supposed to."

Howdy, Chief J. Sig Marks, Medical Records Section, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy Department. Happy to see you back from your recent illness.

"Are you interested in building a house?" reads a blank sent around Agriculture offices recently. No, we're all interested in moving a house. Mrs. Mary House, Navy Department, will be leaving soon for the new airport at Sunnyvale, Calif. We feel as if California has her share of sunshine. We dislike losing this charming worker.

Janina Kokiernak, swimming instructor and examiner, Red Cross, has just received her medal for five years' service with the Red Cross. Congratulations. They say Janina went home Christmas to "talk over" a certain matter with Ma and Pa. You should hear about all the hearts Janina has broken.

American shipping passing through Suez Canal declined during the first nine months of this year, says Consul Horace Remillard, Port Said. Which reminds us that Port Said is S. Fedd's former home.

New officers, Hospital Guild, War Department, Union, No. 261, N. F. F. E., Mrs. Rebekah K. Pedigo, president; Miss Gertrude E. Coyle, first vice president; Carl J. You haven't had all the thrills of playing bridge until you play partner with James A. McDonnell, warehouse, surface department. "Jimmie" beams with boyish glee and his smiling eyes betray his happiness as he tells the scorekeeper to put the figures down right.

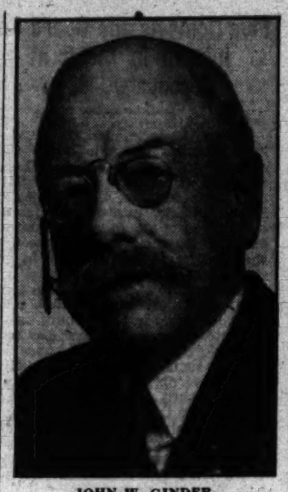
From Public Printer George H. Carter we learn that public sales of books and printed matter for the year at Commerce amounted to $700,000, or $140 for every one of the 5,000 employes in the building, as against sales of $576,466 total sales by all other Government departments.

"The Department of Commerce was foremost in the reduction of printing expenditures during the fiscal year 1932, with a decrease of $577,846.02," said Mr. Carter.

People can take advantage of your offer the same day it appears in a Post Classified Ad. Phone National 4205.



JOHN W. GINDER.

Mr. Ginder, superintendent Architectural Engineering Division, Treasury Department, and president District Federation of Federal Employes Unions, will preside at the banquet at the Willard Wednesday evening in honor of national officers and the executive council, N. F. F. E.

SCHMITT.

DR. W. L. SCHMITT, curator, War Department, has just left Washington to join an expedition sponsored by G. Allan Hancock, of Los Angeles. An intensive zoological investigation of the fauna of the Galapagos Islands and the adjacent mainland is planned during the three months the party will be in the field. Dr. Schmitt goes to Panama to join Capt. Hancock's vessel, the Valero III, a 200-foot all-steel craft built according to the specifications of a navy destroyer, Diesel powered. All participating in the expedition, through the generosity of Capt. Hancock are the Santiago Zoological Society, the University of Southern California and the Scripps Institution.

Following up that story we had Saturday about flags on schools, we notice the Commerce Building is one where the Stars and Stripes do not fly from the highest point. The building's flagpoles extend at an angle from the second story.

THE new stamped envelopes which will shortly make their appearance will be of interest to collectors. Under the new contract the watermark in the extra quality envelopes will be changed somewhat in color. Instead of the present cream finish shown in the envelopes, the color will be changed to an extra quality of blue-white finish. The mark "United States—1933" will be plainly shown in the paper.

In experimenting with the Bicentennial extra quality stamped envelopes it was demonstrated to officials that the blue-white finish, instead of the cream finish, was eminently more satisfactory from every standpoint. Accordingly, it has been decided to make this change in the watermark with issuance of the stamped envelopes called for under the new contract.

Again, it was pointed out that the new finish more nearly matches the letterheads of business firms who have extensive business with the postal service.

The Postoffice Department announces that, while manufacture of Bicentennial stamped envelopes has been discontinued, postmasters who have not disposed of their stocks of such envelopes have been directed to continues their sale until all stocks on hand have been exhausted.

Collectors have been notified that 2-cent Bicentennial envelopes, so far as unsalable, will be retained by postmasters to meet future requirements and to supply philatelists who apply through proper channels.

E. G. Moore, assistant chief, press information, Agriculture, stopped us in the hall to say the department no longer distributes free garden seed and hasn't for twenty years. But it's still a good idea.

Nice party, nice time at Farmers' Seed Loan dance Saturday evening at the Washington Hotel. Bridge, too.

"Your article in today's Federal Diary on Government printing reminds me of the Irishman who was employed to help build a railroad and was to take his pay in stock," quotes a letter signed W. H. Edwards, Danville, Ky., and Soldiers Home, D. C. "So when the road was finished they handed Pat his stock and he refused to take it. 'No,' said Pat, 'I don't want that bit of paper, what I want is pigs, horses and sheep.' Moral: There is entirely too much wealth on paper in this country of ours."

ORGANIZED employes of the Government are anticipating March 4. Feeling that President-elect Roosevelt should be able to exert influence on the congressional members of his party, the American Federation of Government Employes, through its national president, John Arthur Shaw, has called upon F. D. R. to "discourage any attempts to levy further reductions on salaries."

The telegram Mr. Shaw sent to Roosevelt followed close on one dispatched by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, which shows that the A. F. of L. is sparing no effort to stave off further pay cuts for Federal workers. The American Federation of Government Employes is the interdepartmental employes organization affiliated to the A. F. of L. and offers an avenue of cooperation with organized labor for much-harrassed Government workers.

In his telegram President Shaw told the President-elect that employes of the Government had "proved their loyalty in performing their duties unselfishly when their pay was even more incommensurate with that of private business than it is today."

U. S. Leaders for Progress.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president of General Motors Corporation, announced today he had received telegrams and letters from more than 150 leaders of American life, expressing the belief that "the inevitable progress and momentum of American trade and production go on in spite of depressions."

MARRIED PROVISION WILL BE DISCUSSED

Mrs. Avery, Council Chairman, Will Be Speaker at A.F.G.E. Meeting.

Special consideration of the married person provision in the economy legislation affecting Federal personnel will be accorded by the District department of the American Federation of Government Employes at a meeting Wednesday night at the Hamilton Hotel, it was announced yesterday by Michael D. Schaefer, department president.

Mrs. Edwina Avery, chairman of the Government Workers Council of the National Woman's Party, will be the principal speaker. She will discuss the harmful effects of the married person clause which dictates the dismissal of either husband or wife if both are employed by the Government and reductions of personnel are to be made.

Portion Called Unjust.

It was pointed out by Mr. Schaefer that the organization represented by Mrs. Avery last spring led the fight against that portion of the economy bill which "made marital status unjust ground for dismissal from the civil service." Concerted opposition by his organization to what he termed gross discrimination will be continued, said Mr. Schaefer.

"Marital status is not a proper element to consider in any employment policy to be followed by the Government," he declared. "It is illogical and unfair, for efficiency should be the primary consideration in the selection or retention of persons who hold positions in the civil service.

"Penalizing men or women because of marriage is not only unfair, but it is a policy that has far-reaching and serious social consequences. It will mean the disruption of homes through separation of husband and wife because of economic necessity that in many instances demands the employment of both. Thus does it threaten the institution of marriage and place a penalty upon home-making.

Resume of Development.

"We are supposed to have the merit system as a basis of our Federal personnel policy, and yet ability to do a job well is disregarded and an artificial standard such as that created by the married person clause in the economy bill is set up in its place. Organized Government employes are opposed to such a provision because it is based upon a false premise and violates the fundamental principles of good personnel administration."

John Arthur Shaw, national president of the federation, will give a resume of legislative developments in Congress since the last department meeting.

Hoover and Aids Confer on Train

However, No New Action Is Decided Upon During Return From Rites.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover and his "big four" assistants on Capitol Hill talked over the general legislative and business situation in an informal chat Saturday night as the group was returning to Washington from the funeral services for former President Coolidge.

The quartet of congressional Republican chieftains — Vice President Curtis, Senators Watson, of Indiana, and Moses, of New Hampshire, and Representative Snell, of New York, sat with the President in the latter's special car after dinner, but as far as could be learned no decision was reached regarding any new Presidential moves.

"It was just a general informal discussion," Senator Watson said last night. "If the President has any new message to Congress or public statement in mind, as has been reported, it was not made known to us."

U. S. Stock Regulation Forseen by Untermyer

Palm Springs, Calif., Jan. 8 (A.P.). Samuel Untermyer, prominent New York attorney, and a perennial critic of high finance today predicted that the "coming special session" of Congress would enact a law for the governmental regulation of stock exchanges. Mr. Untermyer issued a statement which, he said, was in response to requests that he comment on the proposed regulatory legislation.

He declared that "national regulation is now seen to be inevitable" and that it was "the overshadowing, sinister power of big financial interests" that defeated the reforms proposed in the Pujo report based upon the famous money trust investigation directed by Mr. Untermyer in 1912.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BRIDE IS KILLED IN CHINESE AIR CRASH

married only last December 24 in Shanghai. She was Miss Margaret Phillips. She arrived in Shanghai December 23 and was married in a double wedding ceremony. Ellis Shannon, of Evergreen, Ala., and Miss Elizabeth Reid, of Richmond, Va., were the other couple.

The plane Mathewson was piloting belongs to T. V. Soong, minister of finance in the national government.

Mathewson's mother, who accompanied his bride to China, was in Hangchow today, and, when advised of the accident, started for Shanghai.

The accident brought a tragic end to a pleasant week-end the Mathewsons spent in Shanghai with Mr. and Mrs. Shannon. The Shannons had planned to return to Hangchow with the Mathewsons by air, but suddenly decided to go by train shortly before the Mathewsons started.

Cause of Crash Unknown.

Only Mathewson and his wife were in the plane. Mathewson was considered an expert pilot and the cause of the accident was unknown.

The flight was the first Mrs. Mathewson was to have undertaken with her husband. Before starting she said she was greatly thrilled at the prospect of her initial flight with the instructor.

Mathewson, who arrived in China in July, 1932, formerly was employed at Rantoul, Ill. He was a graduate of Bucknell University and of the Army Flying School.

Was "Supremely Happy."

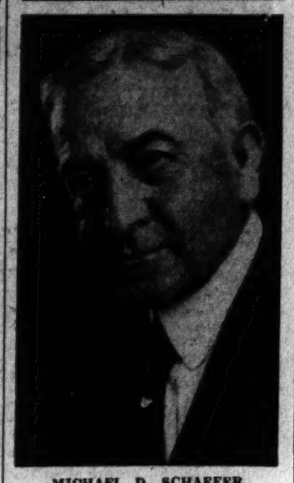
She told friends she was "supremely happy" as she set out to make her home in China, her trunks filled with gifts of necessities and luxuries for the new residence.

Mrs. Mathewson, who was Miss Margaret Phillips, a daughter of Mrs. John D. Phillips, was 23 years old. She was graduated from Beaver College, at Jenkintown, Pa., and she had been engaged to Mathewson four years.

They met through her brother, Arthur, an engineer formerly employed in an electrical laboratory in Schenectady, N. Y., where Mathewson also was employed at one time.

In addition to her mother and brother, she is survived by two sisters, Miss Edna Phillips, first harpist in the Philadelphia Orchestra, and Mrs. Caroline Munts, of Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT



MICHAEL D. SCHAEFER.

TURNER IS INDORSED BY COLORED GROUP

Federation for Promotion of Better Race Relations Reaffirms Aims.

The executive committee of the National Federation for Promotion of Better Race Relations, formerly the Federated Colored Catholics of America, met yesterday at the Holy Name Guild and, following a statement by Thomas W. Hurner, president of the federation, adopted resolutions indorsing his conduct of the organization and reaffirming its aims and purposes. The Rev. William J. Markoe, of St. Louis, was charged with conspiring to destroy the organization, and was repudiated.

The federation which was organized here eight years ago, has had for its purpose development of a better understanding and larger cooperation among colored members of the Roman Catholic Church, and has served as a medium of exchange for their views with the liberal bishops and clergy, meeting with them on a plane of equality.

Father Markoe, according to the Turner statement, conceived the idea of changing the name and purpose of the organization, arbitrarily changed the name of its organ, The Chronicle, to the Interracial Review, and gave up his church, without request of the federation, to further the work of that organization.

He brought a delegation from St. Louis to the New York convention in September, succeeding in removing the word "colored" from the name of the federation, which he described as a "jim-crow" Catholic organization, extirpated the word "Negro" from the constitution, and changed the federation name. At a later meeting in Chicago in December Turner was ousted as president and George W. B. Conrad, an attorney, named as his successor.

The executive committee resolutions condemned Turner's removal as irregular and illegal, disparaged acceptance by Conrad of the presidency, condemned the Interracial Review as an unreliable organ for expression of federation views, and condemned the misuse of the name of the organization as an invasion of its corporate rights.

Dr. Turner, the federation head, was for many years a professor at Howard University, and later at Hampton Institute, Virginia.

Raskob's Daughter To Wed Shoe Man

Engagement Is Announced to Swarthmore Suitor She Met on Visit.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A romance that began three years ago when Miss Helena Raskob, daughter of John J. Raskob, visited friends in Swarthmore, Pa., has been revealed with announcement of her engagement to Joseph T. Geuting, jr., son of the superintendent of a shoe manufacturing company here.

The engagement was announced at a party given here last night by Mr. Raskob, former Democratic national chairman.

Miss Raskob is 23 and her fiance 24. Since his graduation from high school, Geuting has been studying the shoe business. His uncle, A. H. Geuting, is head of a shoe company. The date of the wedding has not been decided.

Lloyd George Declares Man Must Curb Machine

London, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Technocracy, or some similar theory put into practice, may save the world from utter chaos and "ultimate revolution," in the opinion of David Lloyd George, England's war-time premier, expressed in an article in the Sunday Dispatch today. Lloyd George is one of the numerous men high in the confidence of the people who have been giving serious consideration to the problems created by man's competition with machinery. He wrote:

"Until peace has been made between man and the machine, there will be chaos, unemployment and ultimately revolution."

Quezon May Come Here To Press Freedom Aim

Manila, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Manuel Quezon President of the Insular Senate, announced today he would leave for Washington to work for a "more satisfactory" Philippine Independence bill, probably the latter part of this month in the event President Hoover vetoes the pending measure.

Members of the Philippine independence Mission who have been in Washington several months cabled they would remain. Quezon has been one of the outspoken opponents of the Philippine Independence measure recently passed by Congress.

Boy Put on Probation In Threats.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Harry Laberhandler, 18, who sought the favor of David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, by offering to trace four threatening letters he had written himself, was placed on a year's probation today by Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud. He was arrested December 20 when he called at Sarnoff's home to ask for an interview, and later admitted writing the letters.

RHEUMATIC TWINGES?

■ Is "ouch" your only answer to a rheumatic twinge? You can do more than that.

You can, and should, avoid caffeine, the drug found in ordinary coffee. Caffeine is often a producer of uric acid, and excess uric acid may be contributing to those rheumatic pains.

So, you'd better fight shy of caffeine. But that doesn't mean: "no coffee."

Make a 2-weeks' test of Kellogg's Kaffee-Hag Coffee. It is 97% caffeine-free, but your taste won't know the difference.

COOLIDGE HONORED BY HIS OLD FRIENDS

Final Tribute Paid to Leader in Memorial Services at Plymouth, Vt.

Plymouth, Vt., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The home folk, to whom he came back in death, today paid final tribute to Calvin Coolidge.

They gathered in the neat white Union Church across the street from the Coolidge family homestead and conducted memorial services—a funeral service, simple and impressive, like that held yesterday in the Jonathan Edwards Congregational Church in Northampton, his home city, where he died Thursday. It was, in ritual, the same service as that at which a Nation yesterday mourned his passing.

In the twilight of a gray, wintry afternoon the former President returned to the hamlet among the Vermont hills where he was born 60 years ago, to find a last resting place.

Old Friends Attend.

Here, as a boy, Calvin Coolidge worshiped with his father, John Coolidge, and with some of those who assembled today. They came from the villages and from isolated farms scattered through the countryside. They had been notified by telephone, and a hundred or more of them responded.

It was the idea of Clarence Blanchard, who played with Calvin Coolidge as a boy. Mrs. Lena Rogers, who is in charge of the church, made the arrangements. From the telephone exchange in Bridgewater a call was sent out—the general summons, five short rings and a long one—and those on the rural lines answered.

A snowy mantle lay across the grave as the sun broke over the hills this morning. The rain and hail that fell during the burial service turned to snow during the night. The sky was clear this morning and much of the snow melted before the hour of the memorial service.

Grave Banked With Flowers.

The grave was banked high today with the flowers that accompanied the body when it was brought here yesterday. They were taken from the grave last night and kept in the church until morning to prevent freezing.

Throughout the night uniformed men of the Vermont National Guard stood watch at the grave. The guard was continued today and will be kept at the cemetery for at least ten days.

There were occasional visitors to the grave today, mostly men and women from nearby towns and villages who had not been able to come for the burial yesterday.

At the Coolidge homestead only Miss Aurora Pierce, housekeeper there for many years, remained. She attended the burial service yesterday and returned to the house to comfort Mrs. Coolidge who went there for a few moments before returning to Northampton.

Widow Remains Brave.

Throughout the long day, the widow of the former President bore up bravely. At her side during the funeral and at the burial was her son, John, and his wife, Florence. It was dark when they arrived back in Northampton last night and Mrs. Coolidge went immediately to her home, The Beeches, where her husband died and where she had remained until the funeral service.

Today she attended church services as usual at the Edwards Congregational Church, where yesterday she heard the funeral rites for her husband. With her then were President and Mrs. Hoover and others high in public life, gathered to pay last honors to the former President.

Tributes Still Arrive.

Today there was no pressing throng outside the door, although within the church were more than usual. Many of them were students from Smith College. Mrs. Coolidge was driven to the church in the family automobile and she returned immediately to her home after the service.

The Beeches, where it is believed Mrs. Coolidge will continue to live for the present, at least, remained under guard to prevent intrusion. Messages of condolence continued to arrive there for Mrs. Coolidge.

Whether Mr. Coolidge left any will disposing of his estate was a matter of speculation among acquaintances in Northampton, although none of those most likely to know possessed any knowledge as to whether he ever had made one. If he had, it was believed it probably had been drawn while he was in the White House and had been filed away with his many papers and effects.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The American says a confidential police alarm has revealed the disappearance four days ago of two Worcester (Mass.) girls and two university students. The paper says the two couples were seen last in a yellow convertible coupe with a Massachusetts license (310-773 or 310-273).

The American listed the missing persons as Miss Marie Anne DuBois, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eleazar P. DuBois, of Worcester; Miss Evelyn Becker, of Worcester; Dwight Lindsey Pierce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight S. Pierce, of Worcester, and a student at Harvard University; John MacKlin, son of Paul M. BENTON M'MILLIN DIES IN TENNESSEE

Pneumonia Fatal at 87 to Former Governor and Veteran Politician.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Benton McMillin, 87, known as the "Democratic war horse of Tennessee," died at his home here tonight, closing a career that included 20 years in Congress and service as minister to Peru and Guatemala during the World War. Death resulted from pneumonia.

The veteran politician, who started his public career in 1874 as a member of the Tennessee Legislature that elected Andrew Johnson to the United States Senate after the end of his presidential term, had been active in national affairs for more than half a century.

Except for the convention that nominated President Wilson for a second term, at which time he was serving as minister, McMillin had attended every Democratic convention from 1876 through the one at Chicago last june. He was Democratic national committeeman from Tennessee. Last year he managed Franklin D. Roosevelt's preconvention campaign in the State.

McMillin was elected to Congress from the old Fourth District in 1878 and served continuously until 1898, when he became the Democratic nominee for governor. He served two terms as governor—from 1899 to 1903.

Death came at 6:05 p. m., after a brief illness. When he retired Friday night he complained of a sore throat, but arose as usual Saturday morning. He took to his bed later in the day and his illness was diagnosed as double pneumonia. He was unconscious about 24 hours before death.

Institute Opposes Allotment Plan.

SERVICES FOR GOFF ARE HELD IN GEORGIA

Former Senator From West Virginia to Be Buried at Arlington.

Thomasville, Ga., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Private funeral services were held here today for former Senator Guy Despard Goff, of West Virginia, and the body was sent to Washington tonight for interment in Arlington National Cemetery.

The Rev. Robb White, Episcopal rector, officiated at the brief services.

The former senator, who started his political career as prosecuting attorney for Milwaukee County, Wis., died Saturday morning after a long illness. He retired from the Senate because of ill heath in 1931 and his condition became acute a short time ago.

Goff was born in Carksburg, W. Va., and his father, Nathan Goff, was a United States senator before him, and also Secertary of the Navy for a short time in the Hayes Cabinet.

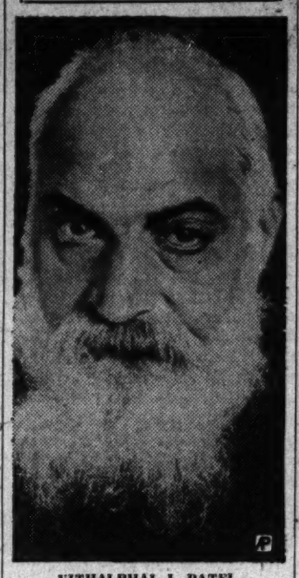
The funeral today was held from the home of Goff's daughter, Mrs. B. Carroll Reece, wife of the Republican representative-elect from the First Tennessee District.

4 Basket Ball Players Killed in Auto Crash

Ely, Nev., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Four McGill, Nev., high school basket ball players were killed and a fifth was injured dangerously in a motor car collision on the Ely-McGill highway last night. The dead were Charles Eberle, jr., Chris Collis, Tom Baker and Joe Montillione. Erland Linnell was injured so seriously physicians fear he will not recover.

Three other McGill High School players, less seriously injured, were brought to a hospital here, together with J. A. Mahoney, McGill business man, who was driving the car with which their machine collided. Mahoney's right leg was gashed and a knee cap was broken and his chest was injured.

HONOR GUEST.



VITHALBHAI J. PATEL.

Unusual interest is shown in the lecture to be delivered tonight at the Playhouse, 1814 N street northwest, by V. J. Patel, the Indian patriot and statesman. His subject is on "India and World Peace."

He has been lord mayor of Bombay and president of the Indian National Congress, and it is expected he will give an inside view of the international aspects of the peaceful revolt in India.

Paul M. Linebarger, who for several years was a Federal judge in the Philippine Islands and who has studied the Indian question at first hand, will preside. When Mr. Linebarger was in India he became well acquainted with Mahatma Gandhi and his cause and he will probably add his own observations upon the Indian crisis.

With more than 1,500 men in attendance, the annual celebration of the Feast of the Holy Name Society of Washington was held last night at St. Joseph's Church, Second and C streets northeast. The attendance included representatives of 53 affiliated parish branches of the society and 20 visiting priests.

The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Lawrence J. Kelly, pastor of St. Aloysius Church, and former superior of the Society of Jesus. The Right Rev. Mgr. Eugene J. Connelly, pastor of St. Peter's Church, was in charge of the service, and was celebrant at the Solemn Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

Father Connelly was assisted by the Rev. John F. Fannon, pastor of the Nativity Church, and the Rev. Patrick Conray, pastor of St. Anthony's Church. The Rev. Joseph Kennedy, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's, was master of ceremonies.

Preaching on the merits and value of the Holy Name Society, Father Kelly pointed with pride to the fact that more than 2,000,000 men actively affiliated with the society in the United States have pledged themselves to refrain from perjury, profanity and all unclean speech. The celebration, Father Kelly added, presents an opportunity for the Holy Name of Washington to renew their pledges to these ideals.

After the services, the Rev. Edward P. McAdams, pastor of St. Joseph's, entertained the 20 visiting priests at the rectory.

"Chesterfields taste Better"

WE HAVE been telling the public for a good many years that Chesterfields taste better. They satisfy!

That wouldn't mean a thing if smokers found out that it wasn't so. Nobody can fool the people very long.

But a great many smokers have smoked Chesterfields for a long time, and they know that they taste right. And so they say to their friends, "If you want a cigarette that really tastes better, try Chesterfields!"

Chesterfields taste better because they are made of mild tobaccos that have been aged for two years. And there is just enough Turkish in them ...but not too much.

We are sure that you, too, will enjoy their Mildness and Better Taste.

BONUS STRATEGY.

A new drive to secure payment of the veterans' bonus is in the making. Representative Patman, leader of the bonusites in the House, has held a number of conferences with officials of ex-service men's organizations to outline the strategy to be followed. Indications are that they will not attempt to force the bonus through Congress during the short session, but will gather their forces for a united assault upon the extra session to be called by President-elect Roosevelt.

It would be useless to present the bonus issue to the Senate before March 4. That body voted it down by a decided majority last spring. Even if the Senate should weaken, President Hoover would veto the bonus. There is not the slightest chance of its enactment before the new administration is ushered in.

There is a grave possibility that the bonus demand may wreck the proposed extra session. Leaders of the bonus forces have decided upon a nation-wide "educational campaign". Propaganda is being carried to every congressional district and efforts will be made to build fires under any member of either house who is not inclined to sanction the bonus grab. The issue must be faced in the extra session, and it may go to President-elect Roosevelt for the ultimate decision.

Mr. Roosevelt has not promised to support bonus legislation, but he has intimated that he would favor this $2,300,000,000 outlay when the status of the budget is favorable. If the next Congress should pass a bonus measure, terrific pressure will be brought to bear upon him to sign it, regardless of conditions in the Treasury. The whole Democratic program to bring about economic recovery will be threatened with delay, if not disruption, unless this raid on the Treasury is stopped.

The desire of Mr. Roosevelt to retain the good will of veterans during the campaign can be understood. Now that the campaign is over a decisive stand on this vital issue would be in order. The President-elect could doubtless squelch the bonus drive now, while it is just beginning, but if the bonusites are allowed to take the new Congress by storm under the impression that Mr. Roosevelt would sign a bonus bill, it might then be too late to stop this indefensible measure, even if the new President should veto it.

Like all other national problems, the bonus issue falls into the lap of the Democratic party. That party may expect to assume responsibility for whatever action is taken. If it acts courageously now in forming a bonus policy, it will undoubtedly be able to withstand the pressure from the veterans' lobby. But if the present smouldering fire is allowed to become a conflagration this issue may bring more grief to the new national leaders than any other.

NO REMEDY FOR FLU.

A mild epidemic of influenza is sweeping through various sections of the United States. Apparently the disease is not virulent this year, but thousands are suffering from congestion of the nasal passages and lungs, sore throats, headaches and fever. Fatalities resulting from this epidemic are not numerous, compared with those of previous epidemics, but the victims find the malady very disagreeable. When accompanied by other complications even mild forms of influenza are serious.

Physicians have not yet found a remedy for influenza, although considerable research along this line has been done. But the quacks proclaim a hundred different cures in the most eloquent and glowing terms. So numerous have the quack remedies on the market become that the Federal Food and Drug Administration is attempting to warn the public against "worthless nostrums."

The labeling of any preparation as a treatment for influenza, grippe or pneumonia is regarded as misbranding within the meaning of the pure food and drug act. These products are subject to seizure and their manufacturers to prosecution. During past epidemics hundreds of drugs and medicines fraudently labeled as cures for influenza and related diseases have been removed from the market. Dr. F. J. Cullen, of the Food and Drug Administration, announces that similar action will be taken against nostrums that are now being offered to the public.

"According to medical authority," says a statement from the Food and Drug Administration, "there is no known drug or mixture of drugs nor any food which will prevent or cure flu." But the public is still gullible. Thousands rely upon quack remedies instead of going to bed at once and calling a reliable physician.

The American people spend $700,000,000 per year on drugs and medicines, a large part of which have no curative value. This is not much less than the entire sum paid to doctors and physicians. The cost of medical care will continue to be excessive so long as such a large sum is squandered on nostrums.

INTEREST AND ECONOMY.

Refinancing of the public debt will be a major task of the Roosevelt administration. A large volume of short-term indebtedness has accumulated during the last two years. Sooner or later this must be converted into long-term bonds. A considerable volume of bonds will also mature, and new securities must be issued to replace them. Skillful handling of these transactions may save the Government considerable money that is now paid in interest.

Several European governments have taken advantage of the present low interest rates to refund portions of their national debts. The possibility of similar action by the United States Treasury has undoubtedly been considered. In October of this year an issue of Fourth Liberty Loan bonds, bearing 4¼ per cent interest, becomes callable by the Treasury on six months' notice to the bondholders. This issue aggregates more than $6,000,000,000. Why should not the Government call in these bonds and issue in their place bonds bearing a lower interest rate?

At present the Government can obtain short-term credit at extremely low rates. The banks have large volumes of money which they are glad to put into Federal securities, even though the return is small. Private investors, too, are inclined to place security above interest yield. If the Treasury could substitute 3 per cent bonds for the Fourth Liberty Loan issue, it would be able to save more than $75,000,000 per year in interest.

The one serious obstacle to any large refinancing program is the unbalanced budget. So long as Congress shows a disposition to let large deficits accumulate without either reducing expenditures or raising additional revenue to correct the situation, the Treasury will be seriously handicapped. The saving of $75,000,000 through a refinancing program may be contingent upon courageous action on Capitol Hill at this session. If the budget is not balanced it might be difficult to refinance the bonds that are coming due at a favorable rate, even though short-term credit is cheap.

Apparently Congress has given no thought to this aspect of the budget problem. Members of both houses are inclined to view new taxes from the viewpoint of their political significance. Instead of determing what the Government needs and then setting out to provide that need, they speculate upon the effect of the proposed tax on their next campaigns. The opposition of Democrats to the tax program suggested by President-elect Roosevelt is a great disappointment to the country. If they persist in this attitude, they will not only miss an opportunity to cut down interest charges, but new deficits will be added to the public debt, on which taxpayers are now paying $750,000,000 per year in interest.

ADULTERATED MONEY.

The lamentations of the inflationists are again abroad in the land. As usual, they are almost entirely numbered among the senators from the silver-producing States. They may be just as sincere advocates of depreciated currency as any others, but it just happens that they always take the lead. The dollar must be depreciated, not to help the price of silver—that is just incidental—but to make a cheap dollar so that it will be easier for the farmer to pay his debts.

Cheap money, if it could be delivered to the farmer overnight, and he were not bound to pay off his indebtedness in dollars of a certain gold fineness, might help him. The difficulty is that before money becomes cheap all the world knows that it is going to be cheapened, and there is a rush to secure more tangible security than certificates and promises to pay. The value of the dollar goes down with a vengeance, the economic system is deranged, values many times the amount of the farm mortgages are destroyed, and millions of thrifty people with bank deposits, securities and property become sufferers.

Business becomes so demoralized that the farmer finds it harder to secure possession of the cheap dollar than the dear one. There is no magic formula by which the Treasury delivers depreciated money to the mortgagee for debt payments, and yet maintains other obligations unimpaired.

The United States, instead of abandoning the solid ground of the gold standard to encounter the difficulties and losses that are suffered by so many other nations, must maintain a sound financial structure that will help the others back to stability based upon honest value in their currencies.

BRANCH BANKING.

The banking problem confronts the Senate. When that body settles down to work again it must decide whether an attempt will be made to overhaul the banking law at the short session, and, if so, what form the new legislation will take. In his message to Congress President Hoover characterized the banking problem as one of the most serious confronting the Nation. Every economist and business man supports that opinion.

The Senate is fortunate in having a comprehensive banking bill to work on. Some parts of the measure sponsored by Senator Glass are highly controversial, but it affords a basis on which the Senate may rebuild the Nation's banking structure. The bill has been revised a number of times. As it now stands it represents the views of many leading bankers and financiers. Congress should have no difficulty in shaping it to meet the needs of the country.

Probably the most important section of the Glass bill would legalize State-wide branch banking. The senator from Virginia was formerly opposed to branch banking, but after a long study of the critical situation in the United States he has concluded that it is the only remedy by which small communities can be assured of stable banking facilities. A number of senators from the rural areas are still opposed to the extension of branch banks. But they offer no other alternative to halt the ruthless destruction of country banks too small to weather the economic storm. They hold to the principle of decentralized banking even though it threatens the destruction of thousands of banks in the next few years. Apparently they believe that branch banks are worse than no banks at all.

This attitude is doubly absurd because it is the rural areas that are deprived of banking facilities by the present unsound policy. Out of the 11,000 banks that have failed in recent years 80 per cent have been capitalized at $25,000 or less. These village pawn shops, as Senator Glass calls them, can not possibly survive the strain of the economic crisis. Hundreds of them are now on the brink of failure, carrying with them the farmer's savings and working capital. It is madness to oppose a sound program that would convert these flimsy institutions into strong financial units.

Bank failures in 1932 were reduced to 1,400 institutions with deposits amounting to $700,000,000. That is a considerable improvement over 1931, when 2,298 banks failed, tying up $1,691,000,000 in deposits. But even the 1932 casualty list is appalling. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has upheld hundreds of banks that were in danger, but the aid it extends is only temporary. It can not correct the fundamental weakness of American banks. Action by Congress is imperative to strengthen the whole system of financial institutions.

Congress might well enact a banking measure at this session. Both parties are pledged to banking reforms. It is not a partisan question. If Congress spends its energy on partisan issues, its work may be destroyed by presidential vetoes. But both parties can go forward with banking legislation without fear of wasting their efforts.

WORKERS VS. PENSIONERS.

Further savings at the expense of Government employes are recommended by the economy committee of the Senate. The committee refused to accept President Hoover's drastic pay cut proposals, but it proposes a petty cut of its own. It would subject Federal employes to the inconvenience and the adverse psychological effects of a pay cut without making substantial savings.

Senator Bingham, chairman of the committee, estimates that the total savings in the new economy bill, aside from the savings effected by the present economy law, would amount to $30,000,000. That is less than one-tenth of the amount needed to balance the budget. The proposed reduction of 1 2-3 per cent in Government salaries would save $18,000,000. This amount is too trivial to justify the Government in dealing a blow at personnel morale.

The committee deserves credit for recommending the restoration of automatic salary increases based on promotions and length of service. Elimination of these increases by the present law worked grave injustice to many faithful Government employes. Congress ought not to penalize efficiency and remove the incentive for advancement for the sake of $4,000,000 per year.

A keen sense of irony is manifested in the committee's proposal to cut $8,570,000 from the $1,000,000,000 allowance to war veterans. Under its recommendations 10 per cent would be cut from pensions in excess of $1,000 per year. Both the pay cut and the furlough would be applied to Government workers receiving more than $1,000 annually. Thus employes and pensioners are put on the same footing. This extremely thin shaving from the upper peaks on the pension rolls will serve to center attention on the absurd policy of slashing salaries while exorbitant allowances to veterans who have no legitimate claim upon the Government remain untouched.

Aside from the injustice to Government workers, adoption of this uniform cut in allowances to veterans would be an insult to the disabled. Thousands who were crippled in the war must live on the meager allowances they obtain from the Government. Hundreds of thousands who suffered no injury in the war and who are today able to earn a living are drawing benefits from the Treasury. Yet the economy committee would make no distinction between them. The maimed soldier and the parasite would be treated alike. This recommendation merely offers fresh evidence of the cowardice of Congress in dealing with veterans' allowances.

A special committee is studying expenditures on veterans' relief. Congress ought not to evade the real issue by adopting this petty cut in a few pensions. Certainly, no further reduction in Government salaries should be made while several hundred million dollars are being squandered on undeserving ex-service men. If Congress would eliminate the unwarranted benefits to veterans it would save more than enough to balance the budget without requiring additional sacrifices from Government workers.

Representative Beck insists that 3.2 per cent beer becomes lawful whenever Congress thinks so, because Congress thinks lawfully and not unlawfully. Why doesn't Congress think the deficit out of existence?

Fagged Democrats on Capitol Hill are looking with envious eyes upon Joe Stalin's program of ousting from the Communist party all members for whom there are no jobs.

Gov. Pinchot suggests that Gen. Smed Butler be given a place in the Roosevelt administration. Why not make him envoy to Mussolini?

Speaker Garner says there are 50 ways of raising the revenue to balance the budget, each of which would command at least one vote.

The bonus boys threaten another march next spring. Let's hope it will not be March 4.

It's Yours. —Kansas City Star.

POST HASTE.

The proposal to cut Federal salaries another 1 1-3 per cent can only be explained by an obsessional complex superinduced by those beer fractions.

Pity a President! Consider how busy Mr. Roosevelt could be in March on any one set of problems connected with pie distribution, Federal finances, farm relief, Government reorganization, domestic economy or foreign extravagance.

Jewel robbery publicity for screen stars now gets superacceleration by trying to call off the police for fear of gang reprisals.

The United States Treasurer says $5 bills last a year. When we wear them out in six months, that doubles the circulating medium and we get a rest from the inflationists.

Jim Farley would wring lame duck necks because they forced a special session by defeating repeal. How many times will the Seventy-third wish a repeal resolution were the only thing it had to worry about?

Well, why should a senator give up his independent position for the drudgery of a Cabinet post, where the best he can expect is to escape without censure?

A diagram might be useful showing that the proposed new income taxes will take more from many of the same people than a sales tax, but generally produce less and cause greater pocket pain.

Gov. Pinchot is reported to be urging upon the President-elect the appointment of Smedley Butler as Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Under B. E. F. Commander Waters?

The attitude of some congressmen indicates that they think it would be harder for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation just to shovel out the millions with its eyes shut.

Consider that France's nerves are a bit jumpy. Visions of returning German equality are much more pestering than debt payments.

The House majority is doubly interested in beer and a farm panacea—delivery of platform planks if they get by, alibis if they get vetoed.

"Extra session now seems sure." Just as certain as it has been every day since election.

THIRTEEN CHANCE TAKERS.

Between 1:56 and 4:29 on a recent afternoon the drivers of thirteen motor vehicles dashed across the Northern Pacific tracks a half-mile west of Villard with total disregard of the stop requirement or of what might be coming at high speed on the railroad tracks, a check taken at that location disclosed. The crossing is a dangerous one, according to Minnesota Highway News. Thirteen did not prove an unlucky number in this particular instance, but it might very easily to the hosts of drivers who fail to take common-sense precautions at railroad crossings.

ARSENIC EATERS.

In the iron mountain regions of the Austrian Province of Styria, where arsenic is a by-product of iron smelting, some peasants eat this virulent poison, according to the National Geographic Magazine. It is taken in small doses, which are gradually increased as the system becomes used to it, until it may be taken daily, without visible ill effect, in quantity sufficient to kill an average person. The arsenic is supposed to clear the complexion, increase the appetite, and improve breathing, especially for mountain climbers.

Eat or Be Eaten Is Jungle Law, But the Killer Kills No More Than He Needs

By ROBERT QUILLEN

When you see a man wearing that kind of hat, you seldom err by assuming that somebody bought it for him. His father bequeathed him the power to command such wealth; long-suffering taxpayers furnished the money to buy it; or he somehow obtained the earnings of many who create wealth.

The existence of a few fabulously rich men indicates the existence of many desperately poor men. There is only so much wealth to divide, and when the few have too much the many must have too little.

Even in these times, America is creating great wealth. If all earnings were equally divided, there would be abundance for all—not riches; not even enough to afford a fine car—but enough to support every family in comfort.

Men now recognize the injustice of the system that enables the few to obtain vast fortunes while the many live in want. Even the law takes cognizance of the wrong and levies punitive taxes to correct it.

But as usual the law is an ass, and its efforts are stupid and unjust.

If a horse thief is caught by vigilantes, who take the horse from him for their own use, in what way is the owner of the horse benefitted?

If a rogue somehow defrauds 50 honest workers of their wages, is justice done when the law seizes and holds the money?

Taxing rich men and using the confiscated money to support government extravagance doesn't benefit those who earned the money in the first place.

The essential thing is to prevent theft of the horse, not to punish the thief.

Of course it would be both unjust and stupid to make an equal division of the Nation's wealth or income. Some men are lazy, inefficient, worthless. Others, more gifted and more useful, deserve rewards above the average because they render to society more than average service.

Also it is true that somebody—individual, group or State—must collect at one time enough capital (that is, working money) to buy machines and finance industry.

But the system is wrong while it permits any man, by "out smarting" the unsuspicious, to obtain more than his service to society is worth. Legal or not, that is trickery, and to give it sanction of law is to license wolves to catch what sheep they can.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Revising Monetary System.

Houston Post.

The idea that the value of the gold dollar should be depreciated and the prices of commodities appreciated correspondingly is gaining among prominent members of both houses of Congress at Washington. And the contention that silver can be used to advantage in bringing this about is likewise receiving new and important support. Prospects for silver legislation are better now than at any time in the last third of a century.

Senator Borah is adding his powerful voice to the demand that reform of currency laws be undertaken, with the view of bringing the value of the dollar and the prices of commodities more nearly into accord. The Idaho senator takes the position that since 32 other nations have gone off the gold standard, revision of monetary values in this country must be brought about, if producers are to have any hope of surviving.

One Debt Settlement.

Minneapolis Journal.

On no lesser authority than that of Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to Washington, it is stated that his Government has no intention of reopening debt discussions with the United States. The default stands, for the present. "We won't be discussing debts for a long time yet," says M. Claudel.

To be sure, M. Claudel is a diplomat, and sometimes diplomats say one thing and mean another. But in this instance, there need be no doubt. The debtor governments have pretty complete understanding of the situation in Washington. They know they can reach no conclusions on the debt question, except as to one point.

They know whose baby it is.

And No Detours.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

Capable Judges.

Dallas News.

Whether or not 3.2 beer is intoxicating, there are lots of people willing to experiment.

Looking Back.

Toledo Blade.

We shall always remember 1932 as the year we got a lame back bowing to the inevitable.

Aftermath.

Toledo Blade.

Not all is lost. If President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt had not tried to get together they might never have known how far apart they were.

Fair Enough.

Arkansas City Traveler.

Attorney General Boynton's county consolidation bill is arousing considerable discussion in Kansas.

It provides that on petition of 25 per cent of the voters of the counties interested, an election shall be held to decide whether the counties shall be consolidated. If a majority vote favorably in each of the counties, they would be consolidated and would take the name of the county with the largest population. The largest county seat town would become the county seat and, until the next general election, the officials of the largest county would be the officials for the consolidated county.

The proposal is eminently fair. It puts it up to the counties themselves whether they wish to go into this economical arrangement. No county can be dragooned into it, because if that county doesn't like the proposal, it can vote against it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Atrocious English and Inappropriate Subjects Used in Broadcasts for Juveniles.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am in sympathy with Mr. Fred Parker in his protest published in your paper on January 7 relative to the blood-curdling juvenile radio broadcasters.

My small son has a happy common-sense turn of mind, and his own idea of the fitness of things, and when one of these lady broadcasters starts her stuff in that high pitched, fright-ladened rasp, he says, "There is that goat-getter again," and turns the radio off or to another station.

To my mind, the most objectionable feature of the juvenile broadcast is the atrocious English. Such expressions as: "He has got his hat"; "he ain't got no gun"; "Freddie done it"; "Tommy laid on the bed"; "Sammy busted the door down," &c., are not educational, and no more expressive than correct diction. The children hear enough of this variety of discourse during the day without having an extra dose via radio at bedtime.

I propose a censorship of juvenile broadcasts, to include subject matter, language and delivery.

Uncle Sam Should Acquire All Outlying Islands for Air Defense Purposes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every thinking person must realize that the time is not far distant when the American Government must acquire all foreign owned islands adjacent to our shores. Why not buy them now, while prices are low, and not wait until such time as we may have to pay very heavily to get them?

In these days when a fleet of great bombing planes could fly from one of these islands and in an hour's time demolish one of our coast cities these foreign possessions in our waters offer a real threat to our security.

Our European friends who are now so hard up that they can not pay even the small sums they owe us for interest on war debts would no doubt be delighted to sell these islands to our Uncle Boob at a good price. Sure, we should pay them for the islands—with their own worthless I O U's.

Walker Says the Left-Turn Speeder Is a Danger to Life.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is a curious paradox that as the automobile drivers of Washington become more familiar with the left turn regulation, adopted last year, the more dangerous it becomes to pedestrians. While there was some uncertainty about it motorists were more careful. Drivers were particular about drawing up to a crossing in the left-hand or center lane of traffic, slowing down and then making a wide turn into the right-hand side of the intersecting street. Today with practice many drivers abuse the left turn outrageously. They cut across traffic from any lane, and the greatest danger comes from those who approach a corner at full speed just as the lights change and make left turns without slackening, and often cutting corners in an inexcusable manner.

The situation is this: A pedestrian starts across the street properly on a green light; two-thirds of the way across the right-turn cars shut him off from the further curb; he stops in mid street and then the left turners appear and the pedestrian is obliged to stand between two streams of traffic, unable to go forward or retreat.

New York traffic rules oblige the driver who wants to make a left turn to draw up in the middle of the street and turn into the left-bound traffic when it starts. New York rules also permit right turns on the red light. This avoids both turns being made on green, and the right turn, being a sharp turn, can not be made at a fast speed. Are not these points worth considering for Washington?

LUCK.

Oh, there isn't a doubt that the fellow who wins
May need the assistance of luck
When the going is hard and the struggle begins
To help out his strength and his pluck.
Every observer of life here must own
That chance sometimes raises men high,
But the thing men call Luck here has never been known
To help out the chap who won't try.

The man who goes fishing when all signs are wrong
To catch a fish lucky may be,
But the idler refusing to follow along
And take out his rowboat to sea
Won't have any fish when the night settles down
To cook, either large ones or small.
For the angler who chooses to stay in the town
Good luck can do nothing at all.

That some men are lucky there's none can deny,
But of them it is usually true
They're the fellows full-willing to get out and try,
What many a scoffer won't do.
They don't sit and wait till the times are just right,
They don't wait that signs are all wrong,
They get out and hustle and work and they fight—
They're on hand when luck happens along.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, one of England's most celebrated advocates, has been briefed by Sir Simon Flaquer, solicitor, to defend his client, Mrs. Paradine, against a charge of murdering her husband, Col. Paradine.

While Mrs. Paradine is in Halloway Jail awaiting trial, Lord Horfield is appointed judge of the case.

Sir Malcolm and his pretty wife, Gay, who bears a subtle resemblance to Mrs. Paradine, have been happily married for ten years, but the husband's obsession with the Paradine case is beginning to cast a dark shadow over their happiness. Sir Malcolm finds himself fascinated by the mysterious blonde, whom he passionately desires to save. Subconsciously he is not wholly convinced of her innocence, but he declares emphatically to Sir Simon that he believes her innocent. Sir Simon is skeptical about the defense Sir Malcolm has prepared, which is to suggest that the colonel's servant, William Marsh, who had been Paradine's batman in the war, might have had a hand in the murder. Sir Malcolm is afraid of Lord Horfield, who seems to have a streak of cruelty that manifests itself toward women who come up for trial before him.

Col. Paradine had been blinded in the war and had never seen his beautiful wife, who had been a servant before her marriage. She is a Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation by a philanthropic American. After a short period in the United States, she had settled in London to earn her living, and had married the rich Col. Paradine after the war.

Sir Malcolm goes alone to the north of England to look over the Paradine home at Hindley. On his return he invites the Horfields to dinner and the theater, against Gay's wishes. The dinner passes off in a friendly enough spirit. Leaving for the theater Keane takes Lady Horfield in his car and Gay accompanies Lord Horfield, who makes love to her, much to her disgust.

When the Paradine trial opens, Gay goes to it with Judith Flaquer, unknown to Malcolm.

"As you like!" she said stolidly, as if it didn't matter at all one way or the other. "Out of pity and the devotion of a faithful servant who could not bear to see him suffering. I gave in to that. You made me."

"O, no! I couldn't make you do anything!"

"Anyhow I gave in. And now——"

"All that's no real use. I felt it in court today. Looking at the judge, the jury. I felt I had to make a change, shift my ground. I'm an old hand. I know! It lies between Marsh and you."

He stopped and added:

"One of you killed him. That's certain!"

The words were a violent murmur. All that they said was still said in low voices.

"The evidence shows that it might have been Marsh. There was the possibility. It was my absolute duty as your defender to show that."

He felt that he had made some impression upon her at last, for she said slowly, and as if reluctantly:

"That may be. But you broke it upon me without warning, without telling me what you were going to do."

"I didn't know what I was going to do till I had the man in front of me and began to speak to him."

He stopped, looked hard at her with terrible eyes, then said:

"Do you love William Marsh?"

"Yes," she said at once, without hesitation.

"Now I know why you have attacked me in this terribly cruel way," said Keane.

And something within him muttered: "Now I know! Now I know!"

"Marsh lied today," he said.

"Of course!"

She said it with a sort of dreadful indifference, as if speaking of an everyday matter, that could be of no real consequence, so obvious was it that, of course, it had to be so.

"I know what the truth was."

"In court I guessed that you must," she said.

"Your husband had found out about you and Marsh."

"Yes."

"But how did he find out?"

"I told him."

"You! Ah!" he exclaimed, but always in a low voice, mindful even in his painful excitement and misery of the nearness of the officer. "Now I understand all Marsh's hatred of you. You caused him to be basely treacherous to his master and then in the end you told of his treachery."

"It had to be so. Things could not go on as they were. One cannot bear too much."

"Did Marsh deny it?"

"Yes. At least he wanted to, he tried to."

"What d'you mean? Wanted? Tried?"

"Is there not a saying in this country—truth will out?"

"Yes."

"My husband was blind. He could no longer read in a face. But the blind losing one faculty, sharpen others. That night my husband heard in a voice what he could not see in a face. He did not believe Will's denial."

"And Marsh knew that?"

"Of course! Now you must know how mad you were in your cross-examination of Will. You nearly drove him to call out the whole truth. And then you say you are fighting for me."

"It's you who are mad," Keane said drearily.

Suddenly he felt terribly tired, exhausted. He looked at the mean table on which his arms were leaning and longed to lay his head down on it and to sink away into unconsciousness, to give it all up, to have it all removed from him, or to be removed from it.

"Mad to tell me all this and to expect me to go on and fight for you and save you. What am I to do?" I meant—I had made up my mind before I came here tonight to cut out all our witnesses except you, to trust to your own evidence and my final speech to save you."

"Cut out the witnesses!" she said, for the first time showing uneasiness. Not anger, but just that—uneasiness.

"Yes. It's like this in our courts. If I call witnesses, as well as you, I have to make my speech for you immediately after the witnesses for the defense have given their evidence and counsel for the crown addresses the jury after me. But if I call no witnesses except the prisoner I have the right to speak last. That's how it is. It seemed to me that, as things are and after what has happened today, it would be safest to call only you and be the last to address the jury."

"Yes?"

"I can usually make a tremendous effect on a jury."

Brave words, but they were spoken without "go," without courage.

"Speak last!" she said. "It will be better. Trust me in the box and speak last."

She made a slight movement after looking at the figure beyond the glass and her right hand touched one of his hands. When that happened he realized in a flash the immense physical power this woman had over him. He hated it because it made him feel like a slave, but the whole of him without question acknowledged it. She was evidently the woman among women, who, for some mysterious reason entirely unfathomable by him, had the power to hold his flesh in thrall. And that was the secret of the whole of his obsession for her. It was not a question of spirit, but of flesh. And he knew why she had overcome William Marsh, turned him to baseness, made him disloyal, horribly treacherous to the man whom he, no doubt, loved far more than he could ever love her or perhaps any woman. She had the secret inexplicable gift that here and there a woman possesses, and by its possession, makes men do what are called "mad" things, not to be ever understood, explained, or forgiven by those who are held far off from her.

He left his hand by hers. He could see she was watching the officer, who must certainly at that moment not be looking at them.

"You will save me," she whispered. "I feel it. But I must not be saved at his expense. Do you hear?"

With a slight creeping movement her hand left his. The officer had moved, was again becoming attentive.

"I shall do things in my own way!" Keane said savagely. "I can't be ordered by those who know nothing. What do you know of law cases, of judges, of juries? Absolutely nothing! And you dare to tell me what I must do to get you off!"

"I know what must not be," she said with heavy obstinacy.

"And what's that?"

"You are not to destroy him. If you do I shall hate you as I have never hated a man."

Keane got up. For the moment he had forgotten the officer. As he got to his feet he remembered. But it didn't matter. He couldn't stay still.

He moved away two or three steps, came back and stood by the table.

"I can't help it now," he said. "It's too late. I must go on in the way I've begun. I shall not give in to you. Perhaps—if you don't help me—perhaps the jury may disagree. That's the most we can hope for—perhaps. Anyhow, I shall act according to my own view of what must be done. And you can do what you like. It will be on your own head. I shall scrap all the witnesses. They'd be no real use to us now. I shall put you in the box. Say what you like there. My questions will be mine—your answers yours! Fight me, of course"—he stared hard at her with terribly seeking eyes—"if you're reckless about your own life. I can't prevent you. Barring the judge, I shall have the last word with the jury. If you haven't destroyed yourself by the time I come to speak I'll do my best for you. That's all I can do. You've made things too difficult for me, as impossible almost, as you can. In all my life I've never had such a terrible time with a case."

As he said the last words he seemed to see the Paradine case rise up before him like a huge black shape drawing him on into its devouring darkness.

He turned and went out of the room.

"Guilty! Guilty!" he muttered as he stumbled into the corridor.

From the prison Keane drove to Hyde Park gardens. He only stayed for a short time with Sir Simon. Briefly he told him that he had resolved to call no witnesses but Mrs. Paradine, and had told her so; that she had raised no objection, and that, therefore, so it would be. Sir Simon was painfully struck by the dull misery shown in Keane's eyes and by the hopelessness of his manner. He spoke, indeed, with a certain cold decision, like a man who had absolutely made up his mind to a course of action; but there was no glow of life in him. He seemed to have no keen and fighting expectation of success in the course decided upon. Nevertheless, he said as he was going:

"We'll get her off."

When Keane had left him Sir Simon sat for a long time sunk in his chair brooding over the interview. It had occurred to him that perhaps Mrs. Paradine had made a confession of guilt to her counsel and that Keane was keeping it from him.

The case for the crown was concluded on the following day. A night intervened, and when the court resumed Keane rose to deliver his opening speech for the defense.

"Gentlemen of the jury and ladies," he said. "With my learned friend, Mr. Calling, I share the terribly responsible duty of defending against the awful charge of willful murder the lady who is before you in the dock, a foreigner, friendless, and alone in a country not her own, but a country, thank God, that had always prided itself on its passion for justice. I had, I tell you frankly, the intention to call before you numerous witnesses on her behalf, witnesses to speak to her character, to her deep affection and devotion to her husband, of whose murder she stands accused, to her self-sacrifice in giving up the life of pleasure and cheerfulness and gayety natural to a beautiful woman, still fascinating and still young, in order to bring the light of her affection into the darkness of a blinded man. But after hearing the case for the crown I and those who instruct me have changed our minds We find so little to rebut in the case for the prosecution that we have decided not to call witnesses who have been attending here in court ready to go into the box."

At this there was a stir of surprise through the court, and even Lord Horfield allowed an expression of astonishment to appear on his generally impassive face.

"We shall call no witnesses, gentlemen of the jury and ladies, except—the prisoner."

Here Keane paused for a moment. Then he added impressively.

"She will go into that box confident in her own innocence. You will hear from her lips her version of what took place before this tragedy. She will gladly and fearlessly submit herself to cross-examination. That has been her wish from the beginning, her decision ever since the dark shadow of this accusation fell across her life. 'Let me go into the box! Put me into the box!' The plea of an innocent woman, of a fearless woman!"

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Faces designed for you to embroider or transfer. (Dah-ray designs.)

A BRIGHT new penny for the lovely lady who guesses what the new slogan for midseason hats is! What? You can't guess? Well, I'll tell you! It's "Fold them up and take them away!"

No foolin'—that's no rude way of advising you to get rid of them, or throw them away; it's simply an adequate description of what you may do with the most delightful and chic hats of the season. And as there are many of us who are thinking happily of a trip away somewhere, that's good news, n'est-ce pas? These hats aren't just little knitted or crocheted affairs to mold on the head, either; they have definite personalities of their own on or off the head—shaped crowns and little brims 'n' everything. But the brims are so attached to the crowns, and the crowns themselves so securely tucked and pleated and stitched into a specific shape, that the hats may be packed and carried about without spoiling a bit. When the trimming is of the kind that might spoil if it were carelessly handled, it's detachable—so that's that!

The more I write about fashion—the better do I realize that it is not fashion which is important, but the individual—and her application of fashion to herself!

I think that if more of us were made to realize this at an early age—the whole world of women would be better dressed. Not that the style leaders are trying to mislead us, either—for they have never said that style was of more importance than she who wears it. Perhaps they have just not made clear to use the fact that the whirling and seemingly mysterious and endless changing of fashions is an effort to better and best suit miladi—and enhance her loveliness.

Speaking of finger work! I think this is the leaflet of the year, beyond a doubt. Bet you never thought you could do anything with those old automobile tires, now did you? Much less make something useful out of 'em; anything as useful as bedroom slippers and sandals for the kiddies! But that's just what you are going to make out of 'em—or have father make, rather, the first spare Saturday afternoon. First you must send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet which tells you how to do it—using the old tires and the old inner tubes, too, mind you—and making something that the whole family will simply love to wear! For the bedroom, for beach wear later, for playtime—and made of simply nothing that you have to buy—old automobile tires and tubes, nothing else. Isn't it a scream? But wait until you see 'em!

The faces I designed for you today are for you to embroider or trace or whatever you like—for that spare finger time, my deah. The one in the lower right has an outline in which you can write anything you wish—what I wrote there being just a fragment of something I wanted to write. Would you like any other design? Just ask for them when you send for any leaflet and I will try to make them for you.

• • • •

January is usually remnant and sales month—so if you have any spare pennies do take advantage of this! Remnants can be put aside until needed, or you can buy them with certain things in mind right then. Spare finger time, you know.

Au revoir!

Culbertson on Bridge

MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

MR. E. M. BAKER, of Cleveland, Ohio, has for years been recognized as one of the Nation's master Bridge players. Not only is his bidding accurate, but his play is brilliant. As evidence of this quality, the hand below, in which he discarded two good cards in order to prevent a ruff by one of his adversaries, is given:

South—Dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

	♠ A K J 8 4 ♡ J 10 6 3 ◇ 7 ♣ Q 9 5
♠ 9 6 3 2 ♡ A 7 ◇ A 6 3 ♣ J 8 7 3	N W E S	♠ Q 10 7 5 ♡ 8 5 2 ◇ J 10 8 5 ♣ A 4
	♠ — ♡ K Q 9 4 ◇ K Q 9 4 2 ♣ K 10 6 2

The Bidding.

South	West	North	East
1◇	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♡	Pass	4♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding, as given above, was practically stereotyped at all tables. Obviously, the correct contract had been reached.

Equally, the Opening lead found general agreement, the club 3 being the choice of West. At all the tables except that where Mr. Baker was seated, the contract was defeated, as East, after winning the first trick with the Ace, returned a club, and when West later obtained the lead with either the diamond Ace or the trump Ace, he led another round of clubs, which East ruffed and thus defeated the contract 1 trick.

Mr. Baker, however, planned the play more carefully. The Opening lead against him was the club 3, which East won and returned the suit. Mr. Baker correctly read the situation and, winning the club trick with the 9 in Dummy, he now led the Ace and King of spades, discarding on them the Ten and King of clubs from his own hand. After this, Dummy's singleton diamond was led, West winning Mr. Baker's Queen with the Ace. Then, with the plan of killing Dummy's club Queen for a later discard, West led a third club, which East ruffed and South overruffed.

If West, instead of leading the third club, had led two rounds of trumps, the contract would have been defeated. However, this was hot obvious, and West's play would generally be commended.

After winning the third club round, South led a small diamond, which was trumped in the Dummy. A spade was returned from Dummy and ruffed in the closed hand. Next the diamond King was cashed and a fourth diamond led, which was ruffed in Dummy, thereby making the contract.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A K 6 5 ♡ 7 3 ◇ K 8 ♣ A 10 7 6 5
♠ J 7 4 3 ♡ 8 4 ◇ J 7 4 3 2 ♣ 3 2	N W E S	♠ Q 10 9 ♡ 9 2 ◇ Q 10 5 ♣ K Q J 8 4
	♠ 8 2 ♡ A K Q J 10 6 5 ◇ A 9 6 ♣ 9

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

MRS. JAMIESON writes:

Dear Miss Pierce: I am sure there must be many women who like myself are quite active during the summer, swim or golf or play tennis or walk a lot, but feel positively inert during the winter months. Fortunately for me, I do not gain weight rapidly or I would be fit for the circus at the end of one winter. But this inactive, listless feeling. Couldn't you inspire us somehow to keep exercising and not feel so "blah."

• • • •

On a recent visit to Kansas City, I talked with a famous gymnasium instructor there and asked him how I could inspire women to keep up exercise. I felt that they all want to and that most women really start off bravely and energetically, only to lag behind after a while when enthusiasm wanes.

His classes have become nationally famous. He boasts grandmothers as well as young debs, and wonder of wonders, they never resign but reenroll each session!

Play.

His secret is play! He doesn't follow the usual principle of most physical instructors and say: "Heads up—walk in a straight line," but asks his pupils to relax and smile. Then they play games; amusing childhood games. I watched one class. They shriek and shout and laugh. It's all fun—no sadness there. No one regards it as exercise routine, a task or chore.

Exercise to Music and in Groups.

He advises women to exercise in groups. Appoint one a leader and others will follow. Exercising to music is splendid. A clever pianist can add much to an exercise group by clever improvised songs and snappy rhythm.

He urges women to play more. To adopt a form of exercise—yes. But follow the exercising, make a habit of it for the pleasure it gives you and the joy of feeling fit, rather than as a duty.

Those of you who can not join a gymnasium, think about it. Aren't there a few women in your community interested in keeping fit? Couldn't you form an exercise club, just as you do a sewing or bridge club? Play games, do a few acrobatic stunts, add one or two corrective exercises for the waist or hips. It's grand fun and when exercise is regarded as play it is bound to be kept up.

If you wish my complete set of general as well as special, corrective exercises, including exercises for waist, bust, abdomen, hips, &c., send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.

What Today Means

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m. and again from 7:30 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. the danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Influences on this day will be of a disturbing nature. You will find yourself on "pins and needles" and extremely restless. Conflicting forces will seem to make it difficult to make decisions, and even after you have made up your mind on a set court of actions, you will be hesitant about following it. A proposal of marriage is uncertain of outcome.

Born on this January 9, the child will be rather difficult to handle. Strong tempered and inclined to be willful it will always strive to have its own way. This child can not be handled with "kid gloves." To "spare the rod" early in life may lead to difficulties at an older age. The child should show marked leanings toward things mathematical and mechanical.

If January 9 is the date of your birthday, you are inclined to be one of the many "leaners" of the world. In other words, you are not a self-sufficient person. Constantly you turn to another or to others for support, both moral and physical. You are lacking in originality; you are not a person of ideas. If you are a woman, you are the so-called "clinging-vine" type. To men and women born on this date: Take care that you do not smother and destroy those to whom you cling. Learn to stand on your own feet, to do your own thinking, and to provide for your own moral and physical welfare.

Born on January 9, though you have a strong negative side to your character, you are not lacking in many fine qualities. You are gentle and kind and understanding. You are spiritually minded; and you can help many to find their winding way through the mists of material existence. People turn to you readily for help and sympathy which you are always ready to give. You are naturally a good person; you have little of evil in your own make-up and you do not see or look for evil in others.

Successful people born January 9:

John K. Paine, musician and composer.

Lizette W. Reese, poet.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SHIVERING.

THERE are several simple methods of warming cold feet and of overcoming the discomfort due to becoming chilled. One that nature habitually makes use of is shivering. Chattering of the teeth is a part of the shivering process. When the temperature of the skin falls to a certain level the trigger is pulled and, automatically, the wheels start moving to correct the trouble. We see the same thing in these automatic heat regulators located on the walls of certain buildings. The temperature of the room falls to a certain level, whereupon the apparatus clicks and immediately the radiators begin to size.

It has been proved by careful trial and observation that when the temperature of certain parts of the body falls below an ascertained level certain muscles begin to jerk. This causes shivering. These muscles burn up glycogen, take from it some heat and energy. The blood absorbs the heat and distributes it over the body. Shivering may not be pleasant, but it serves a useful purpose. It is better to turn on the steam that way than it is take a drink of hot whisky or a hot drink of anything else, for that matter. Chattering of the teeth is nothing more than shivering of the muscles of the jaws.

A method of warming up that we carry on voluntarily, but because of an urge that is not wholly voluntary, is stamping of the feet. In doing that our leg muscles build up some fuel to make heat and at the same time the act of stamping tends to throw blood into the feet, a location in which it is needed.

A simple procedure that is about as effective is to take several forced deep breaths. In doing this we get the increased manufacture of heat that results from all muscle movement, in addition to two other factors. Forced or great muscle excitation is a superior method of making heat and expanding the chest with air drives blood from the warm central areas to the cold skin areas.

The advice has already been given not to use hot whisky or other hot drinks as a warming-up measure.

"LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP"

In our grammar school days we learned this old proverb—Life's experience is further teaching us its soundness and Truth.

The Better Business Bureau in its "Before you Invest—Investigate" program to protect the public and oppose unfair methods, is merely urging the "Look before you leap" theory.

To quote another old saying—"Forewarned is Forearmed"—remember it does no good to look after having leaped nor is it sufficient to investigate after you have parted with your money.

Get the facts on any investment offered you. We will assist without cost or obligation.

Pork Chop Costs Thief Life.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A Negro burglar identified as Ira Wallace, 23, broke into the Harlem apartment of Bulah Agrestes today and was leaving by the fire escape when two policemen shot and killed him after he had failed to halt. His loot was in his pocket—a pork chop.

Clayburn suffered a fractured skull, Physicians say he may die. Miss Kuhn received a broken leg and jaw and other injuries. She was riding in Clayburn's car.

James Dayhoff, 47, of Hagerstown, driver of the other car, suffered a crushed chest and lacerations. Police have not been able to determine the accident's cause.

Clayburn lives at 1000 Pennsylvania avenue southeast. He is employed at a downtown department store here. Miss Kuhn's home is in Hagerstown, but she works in this city, authorities said.

NEW PUMPING PLANT WORK STARTS TODAY

Sanitary Commission to Give Pipe Excavation Jobs to Own Employes.

Work on the new filtering and pumping plant of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, at Burnt Mills, Md., will start today, it was said by Robert B. Morse, chief engineer of the commission.

The first part of the work, the excavation for pipe lines from the present plant 4,500 feet to Paint Branch, will all be done by the commission's own employes. Later, specialized work will be given to outside firms, although the commission will retain general supervision.

By summer the commission plans to have finished all the pipe lines at the plant, half the filter beds, a low-lift pumping station, a preliminary sedimentation basin, and the pipe line to Paint Branch. This work will cost between $125,000 and $140,000. The commission now has $250,000 at hand as the result of a bond issue last month.

After completion of the present work, the commission plans to lay from 7,000 to 8,000 feet of pipe line to the Patuxent River, to furnish even more water. The new plant, which is designed to make it unnecessary for the Maryland system to draw water from the District during dry spells, will have a filtering capacity of 12,000,000 gallons per day, with a pumping capacity of 20,000,000. The present plant has a filter capacity of 3,500,000, and a pumping capacity of 8,000,000 gallons. The new plant will be able to serve 125,000 persons, although the present population of the sanitary district is only 65,000.

Specifications for the new 1,500,000-gallon standpipe at Capitol Heights will be finished in about two weeks, Mr. Morse said. The structure, 50 feet high and 72 feet in diameter, will increase the water pressure in Capitol Heights and Seat Pleasant, and will insure a water supply in case of a break in the pipe line. This project is estimated to cost between $35,000 and $39,000.

POLICE LAW SHIFTS SOUGHT IN COUNTY

Changes in Prince Georges to Be Asked This Session of Legislature.

Changes in the present police law to provide for closer contact between constables and the Prince Georges County police and to give the police entire charge of the Hyattsville lockup, will be asked of the Maryland legislature at this session, it was learned authoritatively last night.

Changes will be asked to make effective the following suggestions:

1. The Hyattsville lockup to be under direct control of the chief of police.

2. The jailer of the lockup and the man to feed the prisoners to be appointed by the chief of police.

3. All constables to make reports of arrests and accidents to one of the two police stations in the county.

Records of All Arrests.

4. Records to be kept of all arrests and accidents, whether the arrests are made or the accidents investigated by police or constables.

5. All evidence and contraband seized in raids made by constables to be kept in the police storeroom until ordered destroyed by the court.

6. Police to have the power to go into the Marlboro jail and interview their own prisoners without having to get permission from the sheriff.

The Hyattsville lockup formerly was under control of the police force, but was turned over to the sheriff after a prisoner held in it had asked a habeas corpus writ on the grounds that the sheriff is given custody of all prisoners. The sheriff now appoints a deputy to act as jailer, and disposes of the contract for feeding the prisoners.

Soon Fell Into Disuse.

The system of keeping records of arrests and accidents coming to the notice of the police force was established when the force was organized, but soon fell into disuse. It is felt that to have the law require such records will insure that they will be kept.

At present all seizures made by police in raids are taken to the storerooms in either Marlboro or Hyattsville, but the constables may keep their evidence where they please. The last suggested change would remove the present necessity that faces police of having to go to the sheriff for permission to enter the jail before they can question prisoners. This slows up investigations, police believe, pointing out that persons arrested by them are really their prisoners.

The changes, if enacted into law, probably will iron out many of the differences which have arisen since the last session of the Legislature, when the police force was separated from the sheriff's office. These differences have been emphasized by the fact that the sheriff and chief of police are of different political persuasions.

Hanging Suicide Scares Children.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The children who romped forth to play on the swings and slides of Sunset Park, in Brooklyn today, ran home screaming to their parents when they saw what was there. John J. Gazzale, 24-year-old law student, had hanged himself from the horizontal bar during the night. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gazzale, said he recently had suffered a nervous breakdown from overwork.

ALEXANDRIA CHURCH SERVICE BROADCAST

First in Series of Religious Air Programs Is From M. E. Edifice.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

The first of the series of church services in Alexandria to be broadcast over Station WJSV each Sunday during January, February, March and April, was heard yesterday morning as the 11 o'clock service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, the Rev. Ernest W. Aaron, pastor, conducting, was put on the air. Music was by the regular choir and organist. The services will be heard from this church the remainder of the month.

On February 5 the broadcast will be from the First Baptist Church, the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor, and will continue from this church during February.

The Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, jr., pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, will inaugurate the broadcast from that church on March 5 for that month, and on April 2 the scene will shift to Christ Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, rector. This church has been on the air a number of times in the past few years, and services are always of especial interest in view of this having been the church in Alexandria attended by George Washington.

The Rev. Norris A. Lineweaver, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, and secretary of the Alexandria Ministerial Association, is in charge of arrangements for the broadcast, and will later arrange for services from other churches in the city.

Invitations have been issued by Col. Louis A. Watres, president of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association, which is building the memorial temple to Washington, the Mason, on Shooters Hill, Alexandria, to the annual meeting of the association, which will be held in Alexandria February 21 and 22. More than 150 distinguished Masons, representing the 49 grand jurisdictions throughout the United States, are expected to attend.

Reports on the progress of work on the memorial temple will be made at the meeting, and plans for its completion will be made. The date of placing the marble in the interior of the memorial hall, which occupies the greater part of the first floor and is one of the most important features of the building, is now under way. The ceiling of this hall has already been completed.

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club will require a bundle of clothing from every member attending the weekly luncheon on Thursday at 12:30 o'clock in the George Mason Hotel, the bundle to be turned over to the United Charities for distribution. President Irving Diener has announced that the bundle of clothing will be the admission card.

City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan, of Alexandria, has been instructed by the State game warden to notify the public that February 1 is the deadline for the payment of dog licenses. After that time a penalty will be added and delinquents summoned into police court.

The January meeting of the Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club will be held tomorrow night, at 7 o'clock, in the George Mason Hotel. Plans will be made for the observance of National Business Women's Week, March 5 to 11, and the entertainment by the local club of the State executive board on Saturday, March 11. The banquet in compliment to the State officers will be in conjunction with the annual public relations dinner of the club.

Thrifty Norman Entrusted With French Purse Strings

Once Denied Tardieu Plea He Have Tuxedo Made by Paris Tailor.

Lisieux, Normandy, France, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A typical Norman, thrifty, shrewd, and a keen horse-trader, is Henri Cheron, France's new minister of finance.

Besides his cabinet post, he is mayor of Lisieux, and senator from this department of Calvados.

He is rotund and jovial and likes the good cider and rich food of his native countryside.

He practices public and private economy. When he was minister of finance under Tardieu, he revealed to an astonished chamber of deputies that his department had 18,000,000,000 francs tucked away, on the credit side. He has often been blamed for that revelation, for the big surplus soon melted away.

Before he went to the Young plan conference at The Hague in 1929, Cheron had never owned a dinner jacket. He had, to be sure, a full dress suit for formal ceremonies, but his opponents said its cut dated from 1900.

Tardieu, most sartorially elegant of latter-day premiers, told him he must buy a "tux" if he were to accompany the French delegation.

"I will give you the address of my tailor," the head of the government told him, "and it will cost you only $35."

"Mr. President," replied Cheron, "for 40 years I have been patronizing the same tailor in Caen, my county seat. He will make me one for $20—better than any of your fancy Parisians!"

So Cheron went to The Hague with his Caen dinner jacket. Rumor has it, though, that Tardieu paid an expert cutter to aid the Norman tailor.

For every-day wear Cheron affects a gray or black cutaway, with baggy trousers. He wears an old-fashioned high collar with a bow tie. Seeing him on the street, few people recognize him as the master of the nation's monetary destinies.

When in the capital Cheron lives in a modest walk-up flat in the Avenue d'Eylau. He does not own an automobile, contenting himself with buses and taxis when he is out of office. Once in a ministry, of course, a car is furnished by the government.

Cheron likes public banquets, with their good cheer and sonorous oratory. When the enthusiasm lags, he starts things going again by calling for "La Marseillaise" and leading in its singing. He has a good time, and wants everybody else to join in.

At one of those parties, over which he was presiding when he was minister of agriculture, the dowager Duchess d'Uzes, for whom hunting has been a lifelong passion almost as much as her devotion to the royalist cause, asked him to make her a "lieutenant de louveterie," or an honorary officer engaged in warfare against the wolves that still infest some of France's forests.

"Willingly, madame," replied Cheron. "Only I must warn you that all such officers have to be sworn in. And then we shall have the piquant spectacle of the Duchess d'Uzes taking an oath of loyalty to the republic."

As to his attitude on the debts, the French recall an old proverb: "A Norman never says yes, and never says no!"

HENRI CHERON.

Final Rites Conducted For Henry L. Lane, 68

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 8.—Henry L. Lane, 68, former resident of Albemarle County, died yesterday at his home at Altavista. His death came as the result of a stroke of paralysis, suffered about a week ago. The funeral was held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the home at Altavista.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Ellen Jones, of Esmont, and two sons—H. M. Lane, of Altavista, and A. L. Lane, of Esmont. There are three brothers—W. G. Lane, of Altavista; J. F. POLITICAL FOG HELD RETARDING BUSINESS

Uncertainty Over Program of New Regime Blamed by Magazine Steel.

Cleveland, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Magazine Steel today said, "Unquestionably, ignorance of the program of the incoming administration at Washington is holding back business possibly to a greater extent than the uncertainty over the outcome of the election did last fall."

Lack of railroad tonnage, the magazine said in its weekly review, is attributed in some measure to uncertainty over long-time politics.

Steel operation for the week ended January 7 expanded to 15-16 per cent, the review said, supported principally by output of tin plate for stock and carryover from December of automobile needs, and of miscellaneous requirements for shipping after inventory time.

"Bookings, however, were not the equal of production last week, for one reason because many consumers had not resumed following their holiday shutdown, and whether the steel rate lifts this week is wholly dependent on current orders.

"In finished steel, demand is mediocre from every major outlet, even including the automobile. January steel requirements for this industry are fast being worked off and February hinges on retail sales following the shows and the Ford program, both of which are still obscure.

"A possible 90-day suspension in the east Texas oil field is dreaded by pipe mills. Railroad shops have resume on an encouraging scale this month. Tin plate mills are now operating at 45 per cent, an improvement of 5 points."

German Official Scores Situation in Provinces

Berlin, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Franz Bracht, minister of the interior, opening the East Prussia exhibition at the institute of education today, called the situation in the provinces arising from the borders fixed by the Treaty of Versailles "intolerable."

Referring to government subsidies to distressed provinces, he said, "these measures are merely a bridge to span an untenable situation and are by no means to be considered a final solution." A distinguished audience, including some officials, heartily applauded.

Issuance authorized by the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia.

Further information regarding the Company, these Bonds and the security therefor is contained in a circular, copies of which will be furnished on request, and from which, among other things, it will be noted that:

Washington Gas Light Company, incorporated in 1848, distributes gas without competition directly and through The Georgetown Gaslight Company, a subsidiary, to the entire District of Columbia and through other subsidiaries to contiguous territory in the adjoining states of Maryland and Virginia. The territory served includes the City of Washington and has a population estimated to exceed 550,000.

The preponderance of domestic and commercial customers served tends to minimize the effects of business fluctuations on the earnings of the Company and subsidiaries and at the same time furnishes exceptional possibilities for future growth through active merchandising of gas consuming appliances.

Funds from the proceeds of the sale of these Bonds will be deposited for payment at maturity on April 1, 1933, of $4,000,000 mortgage debt and the redemption on March 1, 1933, of $3,000,000 notes of the Company. The balance will be used for other corporate purposes.

Consolidated net earnings of the Company and subsidiaries for the twelve months ended September 30, 1932, as certified by Messrs. Haskins & Sells, and as set forth in the circular mentioned above, were, before reserve for retirements $2,229,938 or over 2.7 times annual interest charges on $16,199,500 of funded debt to be outstanding upon completion of this financing and the application of the proceeds thereof. Over 87% of consolidated net earnings before credit to retirement reserve was, for the same period, derived from earnings of Washington Gas Light Company alone.

Valuations of the properties in the District of Columbia and in Maryland are now being made by the respective Public Utility Commissions and by the Companies, and the Company and subsidiaries have agreed to a temporary discount of 8½% on all bills based on meter readings taken in the District and in Maryland from August 1, 1932, through January 31, 1933, except minimum bills and bills for gas sold to municipalities and the government within the District.

The operations of the Company are under the supervision of its Board of Directors which consists of the President of the Company and six representative business and professional men, all of whom are residents of the District of Columbia. Dividends have been paid on the Company's capital stock for more than 56 consecutive years.

Trade Unit Asks Bids Restriction

Ralph M. Hendricks Named President of Board in Kensington.

A resolution calling upon the Montgomery County (Md.) Commissioners to restrict bids on county construction to builders and contractors of the county and Maryland was adopted by the Kensington Board of Trade at its meeting in Kensington Armory.

The board declared itself opposed to the present practice of receiving bids from all comers which results, it alleges, in firms shipping labor into the county and paying starvation wages and at the same time leaving local taxpayers and citizens without work. A similar petition was presented by a group of seven contractors several weeks ago.

Ralph M. Hendricks was elected president to succeed Kenneth W. Simpson. Albert C. Warthen was elected vice president. Louis C. Beall was reelected secretary and treasurer. A resolution was adopted asking the State Roads Commission to straighten Capitol View road from Kensington to Forest Glen, while another asked the county commissioners to arrange for payment on the instalment plan of taxes, and a third asked for passage of a law permitting women to serve on juries.

Three Die, 26 Hurt In Bombay Rioting

Disorder Is Caused When Man Is Struck by Ball of Playing Children.

Bombay, India, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A bounding cricket ball which struck a Pathan pedestrian led to serious rioting here today. Two Moslems and one Hindu were killed and 26 persons were hurt. Police finally restored order, but the crowds remained in the streets for many hours.

The trouble began when the Pathan was struck by the ball from a child's bat. He began to threaten the playing children. A Hindu watchman challenged him and words developed into blows. Rival groups gathered quickly, and within a few minutes a strenuous battle was in progress. Stones were thrown and knives and sticks were used in the narrow gullies and lanes in the area.

The rioting quickly spread over a large district. Two street cars, 2 miles apart, were held up by the mobs. Passengers were dragged from them, and those who could not escape were knifed.

Virginia to Profit On $500,000 Loan

Money Borrowed at 1.75 Will Return State at Least 2 Per Cent.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Virginia is going to make money by borrowing some. The State has borrowed $500,000 from the American Bank & Trust Co., of Richmond, to tide the Commonwealth over until delayed automobile license taxes are paid by April 1. The loan carries an interest rate of 1.75 per cent.

Statutes require that State money be deposited at not less than 2 per cent interest, so the unique situation arises that the State will be paying 1.75 per cent for the money while the loan will draw at least 2 per cent.

The State received bids on the loan, some of them being as low as .87 per cent interest, but members of the board of sinking fund commissioners said they were not accompanied by assurances of security for State deposits required by law.

SOME FOXY STAGE DOINGS!

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT IS due strictly to a hunch that Verree Teasdale, prominently cast with ZaSu Pitts and "Slim" Summerville in "They Just Had to Get Married," at the Rialto, is in pictures.

Verree Teasdale

Miss Teasdale, we are led to believe, conceived a violent prejudice against the movies back in 1927, while she was playing "The Constant Wife," with Ethel Barrymore, after she had seen a few feet of a test film of herself. She was, it seems, inexpertly made up—which, by the way, was one of the drawbacks of Miss Barrymore's early adventures before the camera—poorly lighted and miserably photographed. All of the resultant defects which revealed themselves upon the screen she took to be inherent in the Teasdale person, which, of course, they were not.

"I decided I just wasn't the movie type—one hears so much about 'types,' you know—so gave up the idea of ever migrating to Hollywood," says Miss Teasdale. "There were other offers, but I simply couldn't forget how awful I looked the one time I saw myself on the screen."

Last May, just after she had started rehearsals in an operetta—Miss Teasdale sings as well as acts and has made a few appearances before the radio mikes—another opportunity to be in pictures came along, thus largely laying that ancient aphorism that opportunity only knocks once. It came at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. At 9 that night, she was on a train, Hollywood-bound. She had a hunch it was the place to be.

How right she was you may judge for yourself as this tall, good-looking blonde goes about the chore of vamping poor old "Slim" Summerville right out of his wife's heart, his home and his millions, on the Rialto screen.

Any man would have two strikes on him the minute she entered the room!

Speaking of ZaSu Pitts reminds me that she and Lloyd Hamilton are more or less prevalent locally this week.

In addition to costarring with Master Summerville at the Rialto, Miss Pitts also is paired with the platinum Miss Todd in one of their less exhilarating short comedies at the Palace.

Mr. Hamilton, following a protracted, but not too lamented, disappearance from the more discerning of the movie marts, comes back to life in two of his mildly soporific buffooneries, occupying places of importance on the current bills at Warner Brothers' Earle and Loew's Columbia.

Now that the talkies have made Mr. Hamilton audible, it becomes apparent that all these years on the screen he has still been playing a blackface and in minstrels—the genesis, I believe, of his theatrical prominence.

As long as the thing has come up, "Sneak Easily," the ZaSu Pitts-Thelma Todd comicality at the Palace, bases its climax upon the same indelicate circumstance as marked the final episode of Marie Dressler's performance in "Prosperity"—a bit of vulgarity that strikes this department as being especially unfunny.

The good Signor Orangelo Ratto—"Angie" to you—manager of Loew's Palace, I regret to report, is laid low by a malignant combination of common cold, Spanish influenza and la belle grippe, or some comparable physical discomfiture, which it is to be hoped will be of short duration. This, I beg leave to point out to Mr Eddie Gilmore, only goes to show the unfortunate power of a bad example!

The 24 sheets are being put up by the Pierce Hall players, announcing that on Wednesday evening, as the feature of their opening meeting, Mr. Eddie Melcher, of the Evening Star, will deliver an address upon the topic of "The Theater, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

This announcement, significant enough in itself, is transcended in importance by the fact that it reveals to the general public for the first time what the "de S." in Prof. Melcher's name really stands for.

Prof. Melcher's full name, it seems, is not Edward de Sales Melcher as Mr. Cochran, of the National, thought, nor yet Edward de Sibour Melcher, as I thought, but Edward de Selding Melcher—or so the Pierce Hall Players think!

The New York commentators upon the drama are quite understandably elated over Mr. Arthur J. Beckhard's ability to demonstrate himself not any mere flash in the pan.

Mr. Backhard, you will recall, after a week of almost complete Washington indifference, startled Broadway last April by presenting it with one of the hits of the year in Rose Franken's "Another Language." Again the laurel wreaths are cluttering the Beckhard dooryard because his second production also is a hit.

This new one, "Goodbye Again," is described as "a bag of hilarious nonsense," authored by Allan Scott and George Haight, who take for their subject a lecturer on literary topics—ah, there, Mr. Melcher!—who is what the Spanish call just a little "mad in the head." (The analogy probably ended along there somewhere just ahead of the quotes, Eddie.) Stranded for 24 hours in a little Ohio town, the lecturer, who betrays a slight tendency to philander—maybe I'd better go back and leave you out of this entirely, de Selding—soon finds himself confronted by a situation that is ominously pointed toward the altar. The consequent evolvements are devised solely to make an audience laugh—which, it is said, they do.

This delightfully insane character, so we are told, emerges as an unforgettable personality in the able hands of Osgood Perkins.

This afternoon at 3, The Great Nicola, one of the stage's foremost contemporary masters of magic, headlining this week's stage bill at Loew's Fox, will put on a special program for the little patients at the Children's Hospital, Thirteenth and W streets, under the auspices of The Washington Post. Nicola is taking along his midget elephant and sufficient paraphernalia to give the youngsters the treat of their lives!

One of the most effective "frohts" so far devised to disguise the normal contours of a theater is that installed at the Palace this week to attract attention to the fact that Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper are playing there in "A Farewell to Arms." Executed in gray and black, it is even more striking than the crimson false face put on the house for Jean Harlow and Clark Gable, in "Red Dust," which was of practically the same design.

If you crave a mental image of this Ernest Hemingway fellow, who wrote "A Farewell to Arms," he is reputed to be something over 6 feet in height and 200 pounds in weight. There is, you know, the legend about the night, years ago, when he was living in an attic on the left bank in Paris, trying to evolve a literary style—and, mister, did he succeed!—when, in attendance at a championship middleweight prize fight he became so irked by the champion's persistent fouling of his opponent that he scrambled through the ropes and completely scrambled the champion with one good sock on the jaw.

It is, perhaps, to be expected that a heavyweight should knock out a middleweight—Mr. Mickey Walker to the contrary notwithstanding—but that also is the way Mr. Hemingway writes. Plenty punch!

You will be interested, I am sure, to know that a Sanskrit play, Bhasa's "Svapnavasavadatta," lost to the world for fifteen centuries until recently discovered in a library in India, will be given its first production in modern times Saturday, January 14, by the Vassar College Experimental Theater, on the college campus at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. The play will be this year's contribution to the historical sequence which has been part of the Vassar program for several years, which has included a fourteenth century liturgical drama, a Japanese Noh play and the Eurypides "Hippolytus," which was given in Greek last year.

In case the title seems a bit cumbersome, it may be condensed into "Svapnavasavadatta," for short!

De Valera Charges British Want War

He Claims English Official Predicted Irish Civil Strife Soon.

Limerick, Irish Free State, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—President Eamon de Valera, stressing Britain's hopes that the present Saorstat government will be defeated in the forthcoming election, today quoted the alleged "gleeful" remark of J. H. Thomas, British secretary of State for the dominions, to Sean T. O'Kelly, vice president of the Irish Free State, at the British trade union conference at Ottawa: "We need not have any question of settling with you because you will have another civil war in a few months."

London, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—J. H. Thomas, British secretary of State for the dominions, informed today of the statement of President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State concerning a remark he was alleged to have made at the British trade conference, said:

"I will make no statement at present. Obviously this is too delicate a matter for me to say anything upon until I have had an opportunity to read Mr. de Valera's speech in full."

Culpeper County Denies Clerk's Pay Increase

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Jan. 8.—Appearing before the board of supervisors at their regular January meeting here last week, a group of Culpeper County taxpayers unsuccessfully petitioned the board to increase the pay of the county clerk, C. T. Guinn.

The board declined to grant the increase, leaving the clerk's pay unchanged, and ordering a 10 per cent cut in the salaries of Commonwealth's Attorney R. A. Bickers and Sheriff J. J. Nash. The board also left its own compensation unchanged. The clerk's total compensation for 1932, including the $700 annual pay from the county, will amount to less than $2,000. For 1933, however, he will be subject to a 10 per cent cut ordered by the State Legislature.

PASTOR GIVES TALK ON REALITY OF GOD

Belief That Universe Merely Happened Is Attacked by Rev. C. H. Jope.

For the second of his series of sermons on the "Realities of the Christian Faith," the Rev. Clifford H. Jope, pastor of Ninth Street Christian Church, chose for his subject yesterday, "The Reality of God—Why I Believe in the Reality of God."

"It is a fundamental conception in religion to believe in the reality of God," he said. "You can have morals without a God but not religion. Your religion will be no more definite than is your idea of God.

"There are three dominating reasons why most of us believe in the reality of God. The first reason is because it is the only hypothesis that enables us to explain the universe in which we live; the second, because we have an inner longing for some one to look to, someone to guide us, and the third, because Jesus believed in the reality of God.

"The theory that God is a reality by no means explains everything, but such a theory does explain our existence better than does atheism or materialism. We might as well admit it, there is no mathematical formula or scientific demonstration to prove the existence of a God, but until somebody comes along with a better basis on which to stand I will believe in God."

Mr. Jope continued that it was as ridiculous to believe that this universe merely happened as it would be to say that the construction of a great cathedral or the navigation of a great ocean liner was something that just happened.

CROWD MINDEDNESS RAPPED BY DR. SIZOO

Discovery of Self Is Topic of Presbyterian Minister's Sermon.

"The ability to get away from the crowd is what is needed in the world today," declared Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, preaching yesterday morning.

"It is through the great silences men make the finest discoveries of life," he continued. "The Discovery of Self" was the topic of Dr. Sizoo's talk. It was based on the text, "After saying good-by to them He went up the hill."

Dr. Sizoo said, in part:

"A change of scene, if even for a little while, restores balance and happiness in human life. But this place of peace is not a matter of geography. You need not run away from where you are to find it. Sometimes you find it in a book or a song or simply in quiet meditation.

Melody and Peace.

"It is a wonderful thing now and then to say good-by to the world and then to walk up the hill of life. Sometimes amid the multitudes of men we hear only the raucous voice, but to say good-by to the crowd brings melody and peace. Through silences sympathy, patience and dreams are reborn, and the finer virtues of life are reestablished.

"We welcome the crowd; Jesus of Nazareth welcomed solitude. The attitude of man today is quite different from the attitude of Jesus. We can't get along without the crowd, while Jesus sought the quiet places. We are hypnotized and enchanted by the multitudes."

Dr. Sizoo emphasized characteristics this crowd-mindedness brings to life today. "First, it always standardizes life and destroys personal initiative. The weak man follows the crowd to hide his incompetence. It dictates one's dress. Men put in cold storage the deepest thoughts of life in order to conform. It also dictates our morals. There are many who do things for which they have no heart, simply to keep up with the crowd.

"The danger of crowd-mindedness lies, not only in that it flattens personality, but it oftentimes causes us to lose sight of the finest things in life. How often it has happened that the finest things of life are elbowed into obscurity because of the presence of the crowd! How many of us have allowed the things of the world to crowd out the supreme issues of life! The wonder of Jesus was that He was never absorbed by the multitude, terrorized by the crowd or influenced by praise. A man can not always do his best in the presence of the multitude and He knew there came times when saying goodby to the multitude was necessary."

Cites Calvin Coolidge.

Dr. Sizoo said that what was true of Jesus has always been true of the great of earth. He spoke of the whole world kneeling at the hearthstone of a broken home in New England. "What strength of character was his, what power of thought, what simplicity of purpose! And when you come to ask how you can explain it or how this integrity of spirit and nobility of purpose was born, the answer is in the silence of life. Saying goodby to the multitude Calvin Coolidge came to nobility.

"A better day will never come until we who are terrorized and robbed by the multitude go into the hill alone. Are you able to send the crowd away? Have you courage to climb the hills of life alone? Have you the courage and the patience to go into the silences of the soul alone? Are you able to say goodby to the crowd?"

4 Loudoun Banks Declare Dividends

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 8—Dividends announced Saturday by the boards of directors of four of the six banks in Loudoun County showed no deviation from totals for the last six months period, the total amounting to $11,000. The Loudoun National Bank, Leesburg, announced a semiannual dividend of 4 per cent and the distribution to stockholders of checks totaling $4,000.

The Peoples National, Leesburg, declared a semiannual dividend of 3 per cent and wrote checks aggregating $3,000 to its stockholders. The Purcellville National Bank, Purcellville, voted its usual semiannual dividend of 6 per cent, and mailed out checks for $3,000.

The Round Hill National Bank, Round Hill, voted a semiannual distribution of 2½ per cent, for a total of $1,000. Stockholders of five of the banks will meet Tuesday to elect officers and receive reports from their directors.

Loudoun School Board to Meet.

Purcellville, Va., Jan. 8 (Special)—The next meeting of the Loudoun County School Board will be held at the office of the superintendent of schools, O. L. Emerick, here, Tuesday, at which time it is expected the length of the current term will be fixed. The uncertainty of this matter is due to the reduction in State aid to schools and the lowering of the tax rate in Loudoun.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Mr. Cecil B. De Mille, in transcribing this rugged old drama into terms of the cinema, has been true to his medium. "The Sign of the Cross" is always superbly and unequivocally a motion picture and never merely a photographed stage play dependent upon its lines for either comprehensibility or impressiveness. In its unbroken flow of movement, its stupendous spectacle and the effective utilization of great masses of people, it stands as perhaps the most overpowering example of the spaciousness, the vividness and the grandeur of cinematic art the screen has known.

So completely and graciously has Mr. De Mille surrendered to his familiar penchant for glamour, gorgeousness and the grandiose that many of the most daringly sadistic episodes, with which the action is so generously punctuated, are endurable only because their vicious import is largely lost in the enormous panorama of their fabulous background and its strident pandemonium.

It is one of the peculiar paradoxes of the De Mille school of creative artistry that it should employ a religious theme as an excuse for a minute exposition of not only the sadistic but the Lesbian excesses of a decadent paganism that placed no curb upon either its depravity or its indulgence.

This extenuation, it may be presumed, is provided as a balm to those sensitive consciences which might otherwise revolt at such spectacles as an African pigmy skewered and held aloft upon the dripping scimitar of a white Amazon from the north; an almost nude Christian virgin lashed to a stake as the helpless victim of a giant gorilla; the mutilation of defenseless captives by huge elephants; the torture of an adolescent youth by fire; the tearing asunder of a hundred Christian martyrs by an arena full of ravenous lions, and the other comparable barbarities staged in the Circus Maximus to make a Roman holiday for a sated emperor and a degenerate court.

These terrifying incidents, of course, do not form the picture's major narrative. Their presence in the development of the simple story of Christian faith and the strange love between the Christian girl, Mercia, and the Prefect of Rome, Marcus Superbus, is dwelt upon in some detail only because these are the high points in a tale of horror, lust and sublime belief and trust in the Nazarene which will stick in the memory long after the drama's gentler moments have been forgotten.

It is a high tribute to the capability of the players intrusted with the principal roles in this Gargantuan undertaking that they are not completely overwhelmed by the massive proportions of Mr. De Mille's prodigious pageantry.

Charles Laughton betrays a further indulgence of his proclivity for stealing spotlights by making his Caesar Nero, despite his infrequent appearances, memorable as a sensuous, vacillating and voluptuous weakling, wholly under the thumb of his empress, Poppaea, whom Claudette Colbert, first introduced in her sumptuous bath in the milk of asses, contrives to make a superficial and sirenic coquette, at no time either commanding or imperious.

Fredric March, as Marcus Superbus, and Elissa Landi, Mercia, pursue a course of cumulative romantic interest and poignant dramatic effect in their depiction of the pagan Prefect and the innocent Christian, who could no more be swayed from her faith by the promise of immunity from death than she could by the physical temptations held out by Joyzelle Joyner in her "Dance of the Naked Moon" during the licentious progress of one of Rome's wildest orgies. There is epitomized in these two the power of the faith that was newly born into the world in 64 A. D., the play's one abiding source of inspiration and uplift.

There are too many others entitled to commendatory mention for tasks well performed to make possible complete justice to a long and well-chosen cast, but some account must be taken of the excellence of Ian Keith, as the plotting Tigellinus; Harry Beresford and Arthur Hohl, as the leaders of the Christians, Favius and Titus; Vivian Tobin, as Dacia; Tommy Conlon, as the persecuted youth, and Nat Pendleton, as Strabo, spy and killer.

And a word must be said, too, for the superlative beauty of Karl Struss' photography which, from the opening scene of the burning of Rome, while Nero sang an appreciative roundelay, self-accompanied on the fidicula, to that last moving moment when Mercia and Marcus mount the dungeon stairs to their death and everlasting life, is one of the conspicuous virtues of a picture that is at once hauntingly beautiful and unforgettably harrowing.

HARVARD AND PRINCETON RENEW GRID RELATIONS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

IT seems to this department that Mr. Clark Griffith, boss man of the Washington Ball Club, indulged in a bit of profit taking by trading Roy Spencer to Cleveland for Luke Sewell, with our old friend Cash tossed into the deal by the Indians to bind the bargain.

The Cash that accompanied Sewell to the Nats was announced as merely a small-sized bundle, and there is little doubt of the veracity of that report inasmuch as the Spencer-Sewell deal shaped up as an even swap on its face. But Mr. Griffith's profit taking was done in another direction, according to the slant on the trade that I am forced to take.

For many months the watchword at Griffith Stadium has been added hitting strength in the catching department, and when Mr. Griffith trades the man he says is the best defensive catcher in the league for another catcher who has a lifetime batting average of only four points more than his man, it behooves me to poke around a bit for the Senegambian in the wood pile.

Tribe Figures Spencer Best.

Cleveland, at least, thinks that Spencer is a better catcher than Sewell, with the cash payment to the Nats as an acknlwledgment of that fact, so how come Mr. Griffith thinks he is strengthening his catching department by acquiring an inferior, or at least no better, catcher than Spencer?

It seems to me that Mr. Griffith is doing a bit of retrenching in the deal. Spencer was becoming a rather risky investment, what with his legs showing unmistakable signs of slowing him up. He underwent an operation at the close of the season, but Del Bissonette, of the Dodgers, underwent a dozen operations last season to no avail.

In exchange for Spencer the Nats received a perfectly sound receiver in Sewell, without weakening their catching staff. That represents an adjustment in favor of Mr. Griffith, but there is the fact, too, that Spencer, who worked in only 102 games last year, had not yet been signed for 1933. The contract that he was to receive from Griffith undoubtedly would have called for a sharp revision downward, inasmuch as Mr. Griffith pays his athletes on a performance basis. Spencer in the past has been one of the club's most notable holdouts, but Mr. Griffith has now transferred the responsibility of signing Spencer to the Cleveland club.

Myatt May Be First String.

At Cleveland, it is quite possible that Spencer will not be the Indians' regular catcher. Manager Peckinpaugh has also available Glenn Myatt and the promising rookie Frank Pytlak.

Myatt last season divided the bulk of the work with Sewell, each figuring in 80-odd games, with Pytlak working in 12. Myatt's batting average of .206 was identical with Spencer's, and his fielding record of .988 was 10 points better. On the attack, however, Myatt's bat was more powerful, as evidenced by his achievement of 100 total bases from 62 hits, while Spencer made only 90 total bases from 78 hits, which is no inconsiderable margin.

This department was informed several weeks ago that Myatt in reality was the catcher the Nats had sought from Cleveland, but were forced to accept Sewell in a compromise. Myatt's acquisition would have indeed strengthened the hitting prowess of the catching department, for he boasts a lifetime average nearly 20 points higher than Spencer or Sewell.

Cronin Capable of Carrying On.

With the appointment of Joe Cronin as manager of the Nats, the question immediately arose as to the effect of his managerial duties on the shortstop's playing ability.

These duties, which are supposed to weigh heavily on a playing manager, and often dull his playing play, it seems to this department. For the past five years, as a player in the ranks, Cronin has been in the game incessantly, supporting every questionable decision, trotting from his shortstop position to the plate and the pitchers' box at every excuse, and otherwise burning up his excess energy.

His new offices should not find Cronin cast in an entirely new situation. As field captain last year he experienced a large share of a playing manager's duties, and his abundance of nervous energy may be better salved by the fact that now all decisions are his own to make.

Guest's 139 Leads Field On Coast

New Jersey Pro Adds 69 Round to Top $5,000 Open.

Hunter Earns Tie for Second With 68; Diegel in Form.

By BRIAN BELL.

WILSHIRE COUNTRY CLUB, Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Charlie Guest, straight-shooting New Jersey golf pro, was 3 under par at the end of the second round of the Los Angeles open today and a stroke ahead of the rest of a big field with a 36-hole score of 139.

A crowd officials estimated at more than 5,000 saw him shoot a 69 to shave a stroke from his 70 of yesterday to come through in front for the first half of the competition for more than $5,000.

With a double round tomorrow to attract many additional customers it seemed certain the total receipts for which the players are shooting will exceed the $5,000 guaranteed for their efforts.

Guest, a former Californian now resident at Deal, N. J., was hard pressed by three other experienced professionals. Leo Diegel, representing Old Mexico; Craig Wood, fellow townsman of Guest, and Willie Hunter, of Los Angeles, were only a stroke away, compiling 140 for the two days' play.

Hunter Turns in Sparkling 68.

Hunter turned in the best round of the second day with a sparkling 68, getting a par 4 on the home hole after visiting two barrancas on the way to the green. Hunter, always a deliberate player, came out of the last ditch to within 3 feet of the cup and then had to wait even longer than usual to send the ball into the cup. The movement of the big crowd around the green disconcerted the former British amateur champion and he walked up to his ball three times and walked away just as many times before he could stroke it with safety.

Diegel, who can have good and bad rounds with golfing abandon, confused the experts by being consistent, adding a 70 today to the same brilliant score yesterday.

Wood added a par 71 to his 69 of Saturday.

Mark Fry, of Oakland, Calif., had a 69 today, and so did Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., and Harry Bassler, a home pro.

Gene Sarazen, United States and British open champion, could not get going today, and was only a stroke better than his first round, his 36-hole total standing at 147, 8 strokes behind the leader. Gene started with a rush, scoring birdies on the second and third holes, but had a bad 6 at the par 4 sixth hole, later picked up a 5 on the par 3 tenth and finished by three-putting the home green for a 5.

Cooper Shoots Himself Out of Play.

Harry Cooper, who won the first Los Angeles open, shot himself out of the contest by adding a 78 to 77 yesterday. Mortie Dutra, with a total of 153, and Johnny DeForrest, British amateur champion, on with the same score, also failed to qualify.

The final competition tomorrow at 36 holes will be limited to the low 50 and ties, thus reducing the field to 52 who scored 150 or better for the first 36 holes.

Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, with a good 73, had a total of 144 and led the amateurs. Four other amateurs qualified to continue in the play, Irwin Goddard, of Pasadena, Calif.; Charles Seaver, of Los Angeles; Lester Bolstead, of Minneapolis, and Cliff Baker, of Portland, Oreg.

Gwynn Bowen, Los Angeles pro, furnished a thrill when he made a hole in one at the tenth, but his two-day scores of 151 failed to qualify him.

Chick Rutan, Pasadena, pro, ran into an argument with a paper bag and won it under difficulties. His second shot on the fifteenth hole trickled past the green and rolled into an empty bag which had contained peanuts. The player took no chances on possible disqualification and played the bag with the ball in it. He knocked the ball on the green 20 feet from the cup and had to take two putts, getting down in five. He also did not qualify.

MacDonald Smith, defending champion and three times winner, finished today with a score of 73 and a total of 145, again finding trouble on the home hole where he took a six yesterday.

The greatest single shot of the tournament thus far was made by John De Forrest today when he slammed a full iron on the eighteenth green to within less than 2 feet of the cup. The ball almost rolled in from more than 200 yards away.

Penn and Yale Play Grid Game in 1934

Babe Ruth Picks Nationals To Finish in Second Place

"Who's Going to Beat the Yankees?" He Asks; Nats Came Out Second Best in Trades, Bambino Opines.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The evidence of Babe Ruth on the 1933 baseball season must be taken gently in view of the fact that the Bambino, from the start, is widely in favor of the Yankees.

But on one proposition with which he has no personal concern his words not only are interesting, but a trifle shocking. He thinks the Washington Nationals got all the worst of the winter trades that the rest of the baseball world believed boosted Joe Cronin's warriors into the thick of the American League pennant fight.

"They're going to miss that Sam West in Washington," says the Babe. "Don't think he couldn't go and get 'em. And he was always on base against us. He's a 'Jewish hitter.' He bargains for 'em. He doesn't bang the ball around much, but how he pokes 'em through and beats 'em out."

The Babe doesn't question that the Nationals have picked up two crack southpaws in Earl Whitehill and Wally Stewart, but he feels that left-handed Lloyd Brown and the big right-handed relief star, Firpo Marberry, were quite some price to pay.

"That Brown," says the Babe, "always bothered me. He's a real pitcher. There aren't many work horses around like Marberry."

Of course neither the Babe nor anyone else can question the moves that brought "Goose" Goslin back into the Washington fold. The "Goose" can slug, with or without the Babe's sayso. Particularly did he slug in his earlier years with Washington, and most certainly will he slug again.

But that means nothing to Mr. Ruth as far as the Nats' chances are concerned.

"They'll all look the same again," he said. "All of them fighting for second place. That's about where the Nationals will land.

"We're first again, right now. We've got the hitting, we've got the pitching. Young fellows like Johnny Allen will be all the better next season for a year's experience.

"Who've they got to lick us, anyway?"

$821 MUTUEL RECORDED AT AGUA

Only 2 Tickets Sold on King Jack, Winner of Eighth.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A new record mutuel price was hung up at the Agua Caliente Jockey Club track here today as King Jack, a 10-year-old brown gelding from the stable of J. Schultz, won the eighth and final race of the day and paid $821 for each $2 mutuel ticket.

King Jack won by half a length from Maxwell M. with Lord Vale getting the show. The race brought out a field of twelve selling platers at a mile and one-sixteenth.

Two winning tickets were sold on the horse, track officials announced, one to Patrick V. Boise, Los Angeles, and the second to a woman who gave her address as Pasadena, but did not disclose her identity further.

$821 Mutuel Record At Agua.

The mutuel price is a record for the course here, but does not exceed the all-time mark set by Wishing Ring in a victory at Latonia June 17, 1912, of $1,885.50 for each $2 mutuel ticket.

King Jack's time was 1:47. Maxwell paid $4 and $3.40 and Lord Vale paid $9.40. King Jack rewarded at $73.80 to place and $15.60 to show.

Sundot carried the colors of Norman Church to victory in the Beverly Hills Handicap, featured race of the afternoon at 5½ furlongs. Sundot scored his third straight victory in the Church colors in taking the race by two and one-half lengths from Hey Diddle Diddle. Alexander Pantages got the show.

The winner ran the sprint in 1:05, just a fifth second off the track record. Five started in the handicap, Golden State declaring out of the overnight field.

The track record for a mile and 20 yards, broken Saturday, was lowered again by Wirt G. Bowman in the fifth race of the afternoon, when he ran the distance to win in 1:40. A mark of 1:40 1-5 was set Saturday by Prince Pest.

Mack Sold Stars Because of "Laws"

Sunday Ban Forced Him to Sell Dykes, Haas and Simmons.

Camden, N. J., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said today Pennsylvania's "blue laws," prohibiting Sunday baseball, were partly responsible for the recent deal which took Al Simmons, Jimmy Dykes and Mule Haas to the Chicago White Sox.

Attending a meeting of the Holy Name Society of St. Joan of Arc's Catholic Church, the leader of the A's was given a series of questions to answer, among them the questions why he sold the three players.

"Poor business," was his answer. "Our financial problems are due almost entirely to our not being permitted to play Sunday ball on our home grounds.

"Figures from other cities where Sunday games are allowed show that those clubs total more attendance at a Sunday game than on the six week days."

Mack said he disliked losing the three players and praised the abilities of each. "Simmons is a great ball player and it will be hard to fill Jimmy Dykes' shoes, too," he said.

Asked whether Dykes would manage the Sox, Mack replied that, in his opinion, Jimmie would make a better player for three or four years without having managerial worries. When Dykes' playing career ends, he said, he will have "every qualification" for a successful manager.

Borotra and Brugnon Top French Net Pairs

Paris, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The French Lawn Tennis Federation today accorded the team of Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon first place in its annual men's doubles ranking.

The combination of Henri Cochet and Brugnon was ranked second, with Cochet and Marcel Bernard placing third.

Mme. Rene Mathieu and Mlle. Rosambert were given top ranking among the French women doubles teams, with Cochet and Mlle. Rosambert taking first for the mixed doubles aggregations.

SEASON OPEN ON DIAMOND HOLDOUTS

New York Clubs to Set Pace in Salary Slashes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Contract forms from Commissioner K. M. Landis' office were slated to arrive at local baseball clubs tomorrow, whereafter, the "wailing season" for major league players should be launched in a big way.

The Yankees, Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers are expected to set the pace for the major leagues in salary reductions, a general slicing that promises to hatch the biggest batch of holdouts in baseball history.

These three clubs figure to reduce their salary budgets by about 15 per cent, lopping off a grand total of about $100,000. Typists will be busy tomorrow and Tuesday mailing out the bad news to players throughout the country.

Loud Lamentations Expected.

Loud lamentations from most of the stars are expected to follow. Many will take one glance at the offending documents and mail them right back.

Keenest interest will be manifested in Babe Ruth's stipend for 1933. Last year the Bam collected $75,000. Most guessers believe it'll be about $65,000. Other Yankees who are expected to be pared are Lou Gehrig, who drew $32,500; Lyn Lary, Ben Chapman, Sammy Byrd, Herb Pennock and Tony Lazzeri. Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, will probably retain his $14,500 intact.

Among the Giants, Johnny Vergez, Travis Jackson, Gus Mancuso, Glenn Spencer, Joe Moore and George Davis, are expected to receive wage cuts.

Deep Slash Seen For Vance.

At Brooklyn, Pitcher "Dazzy" Vance is expected to be shaved from $17,500 to about $10,000. Hack Wilson probably will have his $15,000 reduced considerably. However, "Lefty" O'Doul, "Lefty" Clark, Van Lingle Mungo, Tony Cuccinello and Glenn Wright undoubtedly will be treated gently.

Official Orders Issued On Army Grid Change

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The official orders relieving Maj. Ralph I. Sasse of his duties as head football coach at the United States Military Academy and designating Lieut. Garrison B. Davidson as his successor have just been issued, it was announced today.

Unofficially, Maj. Sasse has not been football coach since the end of the 1932 season as it was known some time ago that he would be shifted to a new post at the end of the current academic year. By the new orders he is assigned to the second squadron of the Tenth Cavalry, stationed here, until the end of his four year detail at the academy, June 30. Further orders have not been issued.

Lieut. Davidson's new assignment does not relieve him of his present duties and he will continue as an aide of Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, superintendent of the academy.

Jersey Offer Is News to Johnson

Would Accept Post But Is Ignorant of Plans Afoot.

International League Head in Favor of His Appointment.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

"IF any plans are afoot to offer me the managership of the Jersey City Internationals, it's news to me," was Walter Johnson's comment last night on New York reports that the deposed Nat leader was lined up for the berth. "No one has ever said anything to me about the proposition. However, I think Jersey City is a good baseball town and would be perfectly willing to take a crack at the job."

According to reports from the Big Town, the International League has called a special meeting for tomorrow, at which time the league will decide whether to take over the franchise from Sam Colacurcio, present head. The club was so far in the red last season, it is said, that there is some doubt as to whether the present administration can weather the financial tornado in which it finds itself.

Appointment Favored By League Head.

Johnson, said the New York Sun, has a good chance of landing the job, no matter what action is taken at tomorrow's meeting. Charles H. Knapp, president of the league, is said to favor the former great pitcher. He not only is convinced that Johnson would make a good leader, but believes that his appointment would add prestige to Jersey City, a team which the circuit wants to build up as a keen rival to Newark.

The Jersey City Club is without a pilot now, and, for the same reasons mentioned above, the league directors intend to urge Johnson's appointment in case Colacurcio continues to head the club, it is understood.

In view of the fact that Johnson has not been approached in connection with his taking over this position, one would infer that the prospects are unfounded. Business is conducted in strange and unusual ways in baseball, however, and President Knapp may have him in mind. The latter is a great admirer of Johnson, knows that he is open to a worth-while proposition, and may be going ahead with his plans confident that he can swing Johnson in line when the proper time comes.

Jersey City Fans Demand Change.

In the past, the "Skeeters" have proven to be a good drawing card and Jersey City is rated as a first-class baseball town. But, like many others, its fans demand a scrappy club, which has some hopes of finishing in the pennant race. The appointment of Johnson, with his record in the national game, which has made him one of its outstanding heroes, would go a long ways toward winning back the favor of the cash customers as a starter, and, if his club should benefit from some good breaks, the "Skeeters" might regain their lost popularity almost overnight, the league heads believe.

And so Johnson finds himself in the unusual position, considering these times of stress, of having a good job "wished" on him, unless the New York writers are doing some mighty fancy pipe dreaming.

Greenleaf Defeats Ponzi in Cue Match

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Although he lost both of the last day's two blocks today, Ralph Greenleaf, national pocket billiards champion, defeated Andrew Ponzi, of Philodelphia, 1,750 to 1,725, in their special match at the Strand Academy.

Ponzi made heavy inroads today into the lead Greenleaf had piled up during the middle of the week. After taking the afternoon block, 324-126, he outscored the champion in the final block tonight, 182 to 120. The block went 14 innings with a high run of 51 for Ponzi and one of 23 for Greenleaf.

The champion won 8 of the 14 blocks into which the match was divided and Ponzi 6.

Love Given Long Count While Teddy Hayes Tells Of Walker's Knockout

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

LOVE is a powerful influence for good, as I have always thought, and it was beautiful to see the change that this emotion had wrought in the life of Mr. Teddy Hayes when I met him in Washington, on a recent evening. Mr. Hayes had that very day been wed to a small, demure lady of the stage and screen, Mlle. Lina Basquette for, I believe, the fourth time, and they were an attractive picture of mutual devotion as they sat at a table in a by-no-means gilded cafe but, on the contrary, a fish house called O'Donnell's, open all night, shore dinners our specialty.

Mr. Hayes' left hand would stray under the tablecloth and enfold the fingers of his bride and they would squeeze. A glazed, absent look would come over his eyes which had looked upon so much strife and sordidness in this world, and he would shake his head and murmur softly, "Honey."

Pickle Spearing Tournament.

Mlle. Basquette, a dancer of elfin grace, black eyed, shy and girlish, turned now and again to smuggle some special morsel of steak to her pet dog, Chief, a descendant of the celebrated Strongheart, the wonder dog of the silent drama. Mine host O'Donnell and I idly speared pickles from the jar, raking them over and over in search of hunks of pickled cauliflower, which count big casino in pickle spearing, and onions, which count little casino.

It was a quiet hour after the theater. A radio utered, in a subdued voice, "Say it isn't So." From a corner behind Mlle. Basquette's chair came a low, steady crunch as Chief nagged a T-bone brought him with the personal compliments of the proprietor. His occasional growls as the colored waiters came inching up to the table, apprehensive and ready to run, brought from the bride of Teddy Hayes the assurance that he really wouldn't hurt them. That was just his way.

Mr. Hayes and Mlle. Basquette had been married to one another more than once before, but I would not have you infer from that that any rift had ever occurred in their lute—which reminds me that some day, when I am not so rushed, I must look up that figure of speech. I always thought a lute was a musical instrument, like a banjo or ukelele, and I just don't see offhand how it could suffer a rift. Another one I must look up is fusillade, which I pronounce as though it were the name of a drink made from the juice of the fusil, without knowing whether that is right or wrong.

For Publicity? No, Indeed.

No, the Hayeses have been continuously wed ever since the laws of God and the State of California united them for the first time, but they are so devoted back and forth and so horrified by the thought that some oversight, some flaw in the law or the ceremony might dissever them against their will that they get married every now and again in the course of their travels. These supplementary weddings make a fair sort of photograph for the Sunday rotogravures, but I am really ashamed to have brought that up lest it implant an idea that publicity is their desire.

I tell you that Mr. Hayes, the old prize fight manager, late assistant manager of Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker, and manager in chief to many prize fighters of his very own in the course of 25 years in pugilism, is in love, and I advise you also that this love has cost the prize fight profession one of its conspicuous adornments and given him to the drama. Mr. Hayes is lost to pugilism. As he said there in Washington as he buttered an oyster cracker with a dab of horseradish while waiting for the crab Burgoo, his future lies backstage. Henceforth the shrewd efficiency which hoisted many pugilists to eminence and wealth will be sworn to the artistic and professional advancement of his bride.

This being the case, I asked Mr. Hayes if he now felt at liberty to tell me exactly what had taken place in Louisville, Ky., that Derby eve a few years ago when Mickey Walker was unexpectedly knocked out—though he was not counted out—by an unknown character named Paul Swidersky. This was an exciting mishap which filled the house with confusion, the ring with brawling seconds, managers, principals and police, and the hearts of many devotees with doubt.

"Just what happened there?" said I.

"Much happened," Mr. Hayes said. "I shall tell you all.

"I was in Chicago, in charge of Walker, and Jack Kearns was in California when I received an offer from the Louisville promoters for Derby eve, $7,500 and transportation, for ten rounds, no decision. Walker held the middleweight championship and this was not to be at stake.

Swidersky Picked As Opponent.

"We discussed this opponent for him and that one and could not agree until, finally, as a favor to Swidersky's manager, my friend, Tommy Walsh, of Chicago, who wished to make some funds, I agreed to let Walker fight Swiderasky. I had a feeling at the time that this was an error in judgment. Swidersky had often sparred with Mickey in the gymn and I was afraid that if it came to be known that he was fighting his sparring partner the affair might bring discredit on the sport.

"However, I took the match and neglected to tell Mickey the name of his opponent until we were starting for Louisville. He was always very casual about such matters anyway. We would tell him we were going some place to fight a guy and very often he wouldn't even ask, 'Who is the guy?'

"On the railroad platform in Chicago Mickey happened to see Swidersky and he said to me, 'Where dya suppose that guy is going?'

"'Why, he is going to Louisville,' said I. 'That is the guy we are fighting.'

Mickey Seems Displeased.

"Mickey did not seem pleased, as Swidersky was in shape and he was not. Mickey had been going out socially of late and was very big around and very short in wind. He told me, 'Teddy, I hope that guy is going to behave, because I am not sure I can gallop that far.'

"I assured him that the guy would behave strictly, because Walsh was my friend and I had no real misgivings. Mr. Kearns came on from California and was in the corner and all seemed prepared for a spirited exhibition of boxing between two beautiful human bodies trained to the minute, as they say.

"But at the first bell, Swidersky walked over and what did he do but bust Mickey a straight right hand dead on the chin and knock him over? It was foul ingratitude, but as Mickey fell he brought up his left and swiped Swidersky along the jaw, knocking him over, too. A double knockdown, you see. But Swidersky was able to get right up, whereas our Mike took nine seconds and then barely made it.

"They fought with great abandon to the end of the round, and when Mike came back to the corner, Kearns was abusing me savagely. 'I thought you said it was all right,' he said scornfully, and you may imagine my embarrassment.

Mike Goes Down Again.

"Starting round two, I said to Kearns, 'If Mike does another fall I am going to hop in there and break this up.' Just then Mike went down again. I reached over with a metal object which I happened to have in my hand and hit the bell a loud lick, ending the round, although only 30 seconds had elapsed.

"I then hopped through the ropes to pick up Mike. Swidersky's other manager, Harry Lenny, the one I hold solely responsible for that evening's perfidy, rushed out of their corner to claim the fight on a knockout. I hit him in the mouth as he came on, hoping to stir up some confusion. In this I was successful, for several persons started swinging at me. Kearns moved

Ancient Foes To Oppose In 1934

Student Publications Brought Break Following '26 Game.

Rivalry Born in 1877; Financial Angle Is Aid in Peace.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, tonight announced a renewal of football relations with Princeton. The first game between the Crimson and the Orange and Black since 1926 will be played at Harvard November 3, 1934, Bingham said.

The official statement announcing the renewal was signed by Bingham and Thurston J. Davies, supervisor of athletics at Princeton. It said: "Arrangements have been completed for two football games between Harvard and Princeton, the first at Cambridge November 3, 1934, and the second at Princeton November 9, 1935."

This arrangement involves a postponement of the game between Princeton and the United States Naval Academy, originally scheduled on the date of the 1934 game with Harvard.

Navy Moves Aside To Aid Peace.

In connection with this, Davies said, "We are grateful to the athletic officers of the United States Naval Academy for their willingness to intermit the Navy-Princeton series in 1934."

Although present plans call for only two games, it was expected the series would be continued indefinitely.

Today's peace culminated a growing demand on the part of the students of the two institutions, fostered by the undergraduate newspapers of both. Financial considerations hastened the renewal also, athletic officials indicated.

The last encounter between the Crimson and the Orange and Black, held in the Harvard Stadium November 5, 1926, resulted in a 12-0 victory for Princeton.

The first Harvard-Princeton football game was played in 1877. In the 29-game series, Princeton has won 17, Harvard 9, and 3 have resulted in tie scores.

The Harvard football schedule for 1934 is: October 6, Bates; 13, Brown; 20, Holy Cross; 27, Dartmouth; Nov. 3, Princeton; 10, Army; 17, New Hampshire; 24, Yale, at New Haven.

The playing of the Princeton game at Princeton in 1935 will make it necessary for the Crimson to go on two trips that season, the Army game being scheduled for West Point.

Princeton Grid Coach "Very Much Gratified"

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—With a feeling of cordiality that contrasted sharply with the ill-will of six years ago, Princeton heard the announcement of the end of its football feud with Harvard that had been carried on since November, 1926.

The break, which came shortly after the Princeton-Harvard game that year, came from the combined results of bad feeling among the undergraduates of the two universities and of Harvard's athletic policy which guaranteed a place on its schedule only to Yale. The Tigers demanded equality with the Elis in Harvard's schedule arrangements, feeling that casual games with Harvard meant playing only when Harvard saw fit to admit them to a place on the schedule.

"Fritz" Crisler, Princeton's new football coach, summarized the general attitude when he said he was "very much gratified" with the announcement.

"Since the two universities have already renewed relations in all other sports," he said, "it is natural and commendable that an agreement should be reached enabling them to meet once more on the football field."

Undergraduates were especially pleased in view of Friday's announcement of renewed football relations with Dartmouth, forming an unofficial "big four" of Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Dartmouth, and restoring the old "big three" in spirit if not as an actual body.

Yale Head Congratulates Harvard and Princeton

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Malcolm Farmer, Eli chairman of athletics, extended Yale's "hearty congratulations" tonight on the renewal of football relations between Harvard and Princeton.

"With the announcement of the renewal of football relations between Princeton and Harvard there passes out of athletics a situation that clouded the intercollegiate atmosphere," he said. "Yale extends its hearty congratulations over this happy decision which brings the two universities together again."

HANDLERS TO MATCH WITS DURING SANSTOL-MACK FIGHT

Highly Rated Advisors in Corners

Johnston Brothers to Coach Sanstol Tomorrow.

By DAVE HERMAN.

WHEN Pete Sanstol and Jimmy Mack square off at Portner's arena in Alexandria tomorrow night in the eight-round feature scrap, a battle between some of the shrewdest handlers in the fistic game will be going on in opposite corners.

In Mack's corner will be Johnny Loftus, one-time trainer of the great Stanley Ketchell, who recently joined hands with Max (Boo Boo) Hoff's Philadelphia staple; Joe Ferguson, who discovered the little bantamweight flash, and Eddie Burns, an efficient second. They are being sent here by Hoff with instructions to see that Mack wages a winning fight.

Loftus Helped Ketchell To Top.

Veteran boxers will recall that it was Loftus who helped hoist Ketchell to the front ranks, having trained him for all of his bouts, including the one with Jack Johnson in California.

Over in Sanstol's corner will be Charley Johnston, brother of the Madison Square Garden promotor, assisted by another brother, Eddie, a veteran handler and trainer of fighters. It was the affable Charlie who discovered Benny Schwartz's weakness shortly after the Norwegian champion swung into action against the Baltimore battler at Portner's a few weeks ago.

"He's weak downstairs," Johnston whispered into Sanstol's ears when the fighter returned to his corner after the third round. "Center your attack in that spot."

For the next five rounds Sanstol shelled Schwartz's body with monotonous regularity, and the game Jewish fighter staggered drunkenly from corner to corner.

Victory Means Much To Mack.

Backers of Jimmy Mack are of the opinion 1933 will be a banner year for the little Irishman, and predict that in a few months he will be up with the leaders. A victory over Sanstol, ranked second to Panama Al Brown, elongated bantamweight champion, will be one of the stepping stones in Mack's climb up the pugilistic ladder.

Mack's triumph over Matty White last week in Philadelphia proved that he has ripened into a good bantamweight prospect. Young and strong, he is a hard-hitting, two-fisted puncher. Against Billy Landers, Mack smothered the Norfolk boxer with body and face blows, winning by a technical knockout in the seventh when the latter's manager refused to permit him to continue in the face of an injured hand.

Mack holds a decision over Schwartz. He not only trounced the Baltimore boy, but had him down for a count in Wilmington, Del., some time back.

Joe Chaney, conqueror of Roy Manley, will clash with Lloyd Phelps, Jimmy Erwin's Arizona product, in the eight-round semiwindup. Izzy Caplan, sensational young Baltimore featherweight, appears in the main six-round preliminary with Doug Swetnam, of Washington. Young Gentile meets Eddie Compton and Whitey Saylor takes on Izzy Raines in the two four-rounders.

Tickets are on sale at Vic's Sport Shop.

Yale and Harvard Seek Tennis Cup

Combined Team Will Face Oxford-Cambridge at Newport in July.

New York, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—The combined Yale-Harvard tennis team will try to bring back to the United States the Prentice Cup in July when it tackles the Oxford-Cambridge team at Newport, R. I., in their ninth biennial battle.

The British defeated the Yale-Harvard aggregation in their last meeting at Eastbourne, England, in 1931. This victory brought the series into a tie, each combined team having won four of the matches, which are played alternately in England and the United States.

This year the Oxford-Cambridge team will be strengthened by the presence of two capable American players. David Jones, former Columbia champion, is at Cambridge, and Clayton Burwell, of North Carolina, one of the South's ranking players, is at Oxford on a Rhodes scholarship.

The greater part of the British six—three men from each university—will arrive in time to compete in the national intercollegiate championships, in late June, and they also will play in several leading United States tourneys.

The cup was presented by Bernon S. Prentice, former Harvard champion and present chairman of the international intercollegiate committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. The association did not announce the exact date for the Prentice Cup matches.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, JANUARY 8.

I advertised that I was going to pick six winners yesterday but I fell down on the job. I thought I was going to pick the card when the fourth race started. I had Riff Raff, Dollar Princess and Von Sion in a row but Making Bubbles could only get third money in the fourth. However, in the fifth I came back with my exclusive pick, Sandwrack, and he made up for a lot of things with that $14.40 mutuel. Thought I had the last sewed up when Imelda had the lead at the sixteenth pole, but she missed by a neck. I only used nine "I's" in writing this. I (that makes ten) must be slipping.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—TENNYWOOD will like this mile race and may surprise the boys with a good mutuel. Cheatham will do the riding. FINNIC and DR. PARRISH appear best of the others.

SECOND RACE—K. RUSSELL has done right by me and I can't pass him up, despite the prospects of a $4.10 price. I hardly believe that the outside post position will make any difference. This one packs enough speed to get away fast. NOEL'S DRESS gets in light and is improving. MAGNA CHARTER for the show.

THIRD RACE—F. Horn can collect a purse here if he gives BEGUILE the right kind of a ride. Shares top weight of 115 pounds, but this should cut no ice. DEDICATE may have been waiting for a fast track. Third money could go to GOLD MINT.

FOURTH RACE—I'm going to take a chance on BLUE LAW upsetting SKIRL. J. Sand's colorbearer is much improved and will favor the route. At 6 furlongs I would reverse them. THE BREAK for my show proposition.

FIFTH RACE—DROMBO (say it isn't so) took a licking from MODESTO the last time they met. It was by a two-length margin. There was a 3-pound shift in the weights, favoring MODESTO. Tomorrow DROMBO has 6 pounds the best. SEYMOUR can beat the others.

SIXTH RACE—CATINO ran into trouble the last time and had little chance. Clear sailing tomorrow will mean a different story. PROBATIONER'S last was the indicator for another swift effort. SWEEPRUSH may improve in this.

SEVENTH RACE—MONOCLE will hardly see action, being last on the list. I have to name him, however. BAG O' GOLD may draw Parke as the rider and is dangerous. PIECEMEAL for the show end.

Ohio State, Purdue Set Big Ten Pace

Setback of Minnesota Is Surprise; Four Games for Tonight.

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Until further notice, Purdue, the defending champion, and Ohio State may be considered the high ranking favorites for the Western Conference basket ball title.

One round of tests last night saw most of the favorites winning, but two battles produced results of upset proportions. Purdue demonstrated that it is pretty nearly as powerful as last season in trimming Minnesota, 42 to 32, and Ohio did about as expected in defeating Indiana, 35 to 28. Wisconsin had little trouble in taking Chicago, 26 to 17.

Michigan and Illinois, however, got along better than anticipated. The Illini took a sensationally rough battle from Northwestern, 27 to 25, and the Wolverines, after losing four out of five preconference matches, located their stride in time to defeat Iowa, 33 to 25. Iowa did not use Ivan Blackmer and Ed Break, a pair of regulars about whose eligibility there is question, and after holding Michigan even during the first half, folded up.

Wisconsin led Chicago from start to finish in a game in which the biggest feature was roughness. Twenty-eight personal fouls were called, fifteen on the Badgers.

Four games will be played tomorrow night, topped by a tussle between Northwestern and Purdue at Evanston. The two upsetters, Michigan and Illinois, will meet at Champaign, and Iowa will tackle Wisconsin at Madison. Chicago and Indiana will play at Bloomington.

TITLE BOUTS ON WEEK'S CARD

Battaglia-Jeby Meet in Middle Tourney Final Friday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Chicago and New York share the fistic spotlight this week with a pair of bouts of championship caliber, although there is room for dispute in the claims to both titles that are to be fought over.

Manhattan's battle at Madison Square Garden Friday brings together Ben Jeby, rugged New Yorker, and Frankie Battaglia, of Winnipeg, in the fifteen-round final bout of a tournament to decide upon a middleweight champion to fill the berth now vacant in the eyes of the New York State Athletic Commission. Although Marcel Thil, of France, is generally recognized as 160-pound champion, the New York solons have not officially awarded the crown.

Battaglia Holds K. O. Over Jeby.

Jeby, although he was knocked out in one round by the Canadian star in a previous meeting at Chicago, had a much easier path through the tournament. Battaglia got into the final only after a furious struggle with Chic Devlin.

Friday night at Chicago Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, one of three featherweight champions, defends his claims, which are recognized by the National Boxing Association, against Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, over the ten-round route. Miller laid claim to the title last year after his "no-contest" bout with Bat Battalino, who gave up the championship soon afterward because of his inability to make the weight.

Bouts on the week's national schedule include:

TUESDAY—At Indianapolis, Tracy Cox, Indianapolis, vs. Jackie Purvis, Indianapolis, and Frankie Hughes, Clinton, Ind., vs. Young Walker, Los Angeles, all welterweights, each 10; at Philadelphia, King Levinsky, Chicago, vs. Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, heavyweights, 10; at West Palm Beach, Fla., Arturo Godoy, Chile, vs. Cowboy Frankie Negren, Denver, heavyweights, 10; at Alexandria, Va., Pete Sanstol, Norwegian champion, vs. Jimmy Mack, Philadelphia, bantamweights, 8.

FRIDAY—At New York (Madison Square Garden), Ben Jeby, New York, vs. Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg, middleweights, 15 (title); at Chicago (Stadium), Tommy Paul, Buffalo, vs. Freddie Miller, Cincinnati, featherweights, 10 (title); Martin Levandowski, Grand Rapids, Mich., vs. Harry Ebbets, New York, light-heavyweights, 10; Varias Milling, Los Angeles, vs. Johnny Pena, New York, featherweights, 8; Paul Dazzo, Chicago, vs. Johnny Mitchell, Detroit, featherweights, 8; at Philadelphia, Ralph Lenny, Union City, N. J., vs. Pat Ito, Shenandoah, Pa., lightweights, 10; at San Francisco, Babe Marino, San Francisco, vs. Babe Anderson, San Jose, Calif., welterweights, 10.

12 Contests Scheduled By Quantico Marines

An even dozen games, including tomorrow night's fracas with Catholic University at Brookland, remain on the January schedule of the Quantico Marines, released yesterday. The team will make a second appearance on a local court, meeting George Washington University here January 30.

Both teams will return the Devil Dogs' visit later in the month. Games with Baltimore U., Shepherd College, Potomac State and Campbell College are included on the list.

RICHARD'S FIVE AHEAD.

With Hollingsworth and Bowers showing the way, Richard's Colonials, of Hyattsville, scored a 36-26 victory over the Brooks A. C. yesterday at Gonzaga High School. The Colonials ran up a commanding lead in the first half, which ended with Brooks trailing, 18-6. Bobby Mills led a rally that partially closed the gap in the final period.

In a fast, well-played game, the Northeast Boys Club 115-pound team defeated the Baltimore Flashes by a score of 37-21 yesterday on the Washington team's floor. TEDDY HAYES TELLS OF WALKER KNOCKOUT

"The result was that Mike got about 20 minutes' rest in the corner while everybody argued all around. After that he was able to go on and finish the contest, and Swidersky seemed to recover his sense of honor. There were no further untoward incidents.

Swidersky Makes Apology.

"About midnight Swidersky came to our room in the hotel and apologized to Mike.

"'Mike,' he said, 'I can't tell you how sorry I am for what I did ut there, but I tell you I just happened to look up and there was your chin as big as a bag. I don't know what came over me, Mike. I couldn't hold still. I let that right hand go and down you went and I want to tell you I just lost control of myself.'

"'That is all right, Paul,' Mike said, 'but I am going to fight you again and I am going to knock you out. Remember that. I am going to knock you out'."

"But he never did knock him out, did he?" I interposed.

"No," Mr. Hayes said, "but he beat the gracious out of him, and it taught him a lesson."

"Was that the time you used the concrete bandage on him and broke his ribs?" put in Mr. Hayes' charming helpmeet, brightly."

"Ha, ha, ha," Mr. Hayes laughed heartily, giving his bride's hand another squeeze. "Honey, won't you have another steak? Or some more hashed brown? Try some more hashed brown."

Marine Five Downs Warrenton, 39 to 30

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., Jan. 8.—In a hotly-contested game between evenly matched teams, the Quantico Marines scored a 39-30 victory over the Warrenton Athletic Club here this afternoon. The defeat was Warrenton's first of the season.

The Marines exhibited a well knit defense in the second half to protect their lead amassed in the first two periods when Warrenton appeared to be off balance. McGrath, forward, and Tipton, center, were outstanding for the service team.

Bill Benner, Warrenton forward, kept his team in the thick of the fight with a well directed barrage of shots at the basket, which netted seven field goals. He added three from the charity stripe, running his total for the afternoon to 17.

GENERALS TO FACE MD. BOXERS

Captain Pound Leads W. L. in Match for Tonight.

LEXINGTON, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Led by Capt. Pound, who is 155 times as heavy as his name indicates, and, in the opinion of Coach Tilson, 100 per cent better than he was last year, Washington and Lee's Generals are counting on a good boxing team.

How good, the test of time will tell, and the first test comes tomorrow night when the W. and L. mittmen swap punches with the University of Maryland ringmen. The second match—both will be at Lexington—will be against North Carolina State Thursday night.

Pound, who will lead a scrapping staff of Generals against the Terrapins, was a little hesitant about stepping in last year, but this season, says Tilson, "he has returned to form and looks like a real champion."

Tilson, who likes to see his hopefuls "mix it up," believes that Capt. Pound has returned to the form he showed in 1931, when he was an outstanding performer and a contender in the Southern Conference tournament.

Myer Fractured His Jaw.

It was the effect of that tournament, at least, the effect of a well-directed blow, that slowed up the rugged Washington and Lee 155-pounder last year. "Pound was fighting Myers, of Virginia, in the tournament," Tilson recalled, "and, after having him beaten through a major portion of the bout, was knocked out by a last-minue desperate haymaker that fractured his jaw."

But Pound will be in there mixing it up again this season, and, with the help of an able supporting cast, may boost Washington and Lee ring stock considerably.

Against the Old Liners Tilson hopes to use De la Ossa in the 115-pound class, Tucker or Reynolds in the 125-pound division, Seraphine in the 135-pound; Mincher, 145; Pound, 155; Short, 165; Collins, 175, and Martin, heavyweight. De la Ossa, Tucker and Collins, however, have been slow rounding into shape and one or more of them may not be available.

A sophomore scrapper from Panama, De la Ossa is probably the most colorful member of the squad. Although characterized by Tilson as a lad who would rather "box than eat," De la Ossa is having a little difficulty in making the weight, but expects to wear off the necessary poundage before weighing-in time.

Reynolds May Get Chance.

Tucker, with two years of boxing experience to his credit, has been slow rounding into shape and may be replaced by Reynolds, who is fighting his first year. Seraphine, who fought as a 125-pounder last season, and Mincher, another veteran, are ready to go. Martin is representing the Generals in the heavyweight class for the second consecutive year.

Although no effort was made to enforce training rules during the Christmas holidays, most of the scrappers, said Tilson, remained in shape of their own volition.

"While we try to mix offensive and defensive tactics in training," he said, "we have always had teams that are noted for their willingness to mix it, and this year's team will be no exception."

Yale and Harvard Seek Tennis Cup

New York, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—The combined Yale-Harvard tennis team will try to bring back to the United States the Prentice Cup in July when it tackles the Oxford-Cambridge team at Newport, R. I., in their ninth biennial battle.

The British defeated the Yale-Harvard aggregation in their last meeting at Eastbourne, England, in 1931. This victory brought the series into a tie, each combined team having won four of the matches, which are played alternately in England and the United States.

This year the Oxford-Cambridge team will be strengthened by the presence of two capable American players. David Jones, former Columbia champion, is at Cambridge, and Clayton Burwell, of North Carolina, one of the South's ranking players, is at Oxford on a Rhodes scholarship.

The greater part of the British six—three men from each university—will arrive in time to compete in the national intercollegiate championships, in late June, and they also will play in several leading United States tourneys.

The cup was presented by Bernon S. Prentice, former Harvard champion and present chairman of the international intercollegiate committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. The association did not announce the exact date for the Prentice Cup matches.

SOCCER DRAW TIES THREE TEAMS IN RECREATION LEAGUE

Rosedale and Park View End 1-1

Bloomingdale, New York Avenue Are Other Winners.

Heights Grays Take Capital City Feature Game.

A TRIPLE tie was created in the Recreation Soccer League yesterday when Rosedale and Park View battled to a 1-1 draw, while the leading Virginia Avenue eleven idled. Other matches played resulted in a 4-0 victory for Bloomingdale over Raymond, and a 2-1 triumph for New York Avenue over the Dux booters.

Columbia Heights Grays' 4-2 victory over Marlboro featured play in the Capital City Soccer League. Upsets were recorded in the two remaining games of the schedule. Brandywine took Gaithersburg apart to see what made it work, scoring a 6-2 victory, the Columbia Heights Blacks were held to a 1-1 deadlock by Concord, when one of their own number accidentally kicked the ball into the wrong goal.

Park View Underdog In Battle.

Although the underdog in the battle, Park View offered stubborn resistance to the powerful Rosedale attack, checking numerous drives that threatened to produce scores for the Northeast eleven. Both teams scored in the first period, Bennett booting the oval into the net for Rosedale and Jones scoring for Park View.

The Dux kickers almost pulled an upset in holding New York Avenue's highly touted representatives to a 2 to 1 decision. Tony Cortez's team displayed an improved offensive and much better defense than in its previous games, but the determined passing attack of the eventual winners bore fruit.

Raymond proved no match for the hard-running, clever Bloomingdale team and fell an easy victim. Cruchley, with two goals, was spearhead in the winning drive.

Unable to get their attack functioning properly in the first half, the Columbia Heights Grays were kept on the defense by the steady play of the young Marlboro lads. Excellent defensive work of Hoffman, right back, saved the Grays from being scored on more than once.

League Leaders Slow to Get Started.

The league leaders found their stride in the second period and with Jim McBain leading the way assumed the lead. McBain dribbled half the length of the field to score on one occasion. He took Lew Koenell's pass for another marker. Horning and Knight were responsible for the other points. Bailey and Ford tallied the Marlboro points, both close in after short dribbles. Columbia Heights strengthened its grip on the top rung of the ladder by its victory.

Cooper's boot, coming after a corner kick, landed in the Concord net for that team's only score of the game in that team's battle with the Columbia Heights Blacks. Lewis evened the count soon after with a well directed shot from a difficult angle and the game ended without further scoring. Fincham's passing featured the game.

Taking a new lease on life, Brandywine swamped Gaithersburg for its first victory of the season. Dave Zollehofer headed a corner kick into the net for a Brandywine score which was the outstanding play of the game.

Miami Golf Medal To Chicago Amateur

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (U.P.).—John Wagner, Chicago amateur, today won the qualifying medal with a low 75 in the fifth annual Miami Biltmore invitation golf tournament.

Tommy Goodwin, New York State amateur champion, who yesterday won the Miami-Midwinter championship, was second with 77. Tex Newton, of New York, placed third with 78, and Earl Christiansen, of Miami, fourth with 79.

Hudkins Nears End of Long And Brilliant Ring Career

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Wildcat's claws have been trimmed. Ace Hudkins, one of the greatest of near champions the boxing world has ever known, is about through.

A hard hitting young light-heavyweight from Portland, Oreg., Wesley Ketchel, sounds the knell to the departed title hopes of the once ferocious Nebraska Wildcat, as Hudkins is known in the ring.

It was a courageous Hudkins who faced Ketchel, but he was only a fragment of the fighter who once was a threat for the title in the light, welter and middleweight divisions.

Only the fighting instinct of this young-old man of the ring saved him from the knockout he never has known. In the tenth round of this last fight Hudkins went down for the count of 9 from a hard left to the body, but he staggered to his feet and lasted it out.

Afterward it was discovered three ribs had been cracked. "Jus' like a tooth ache," grinned Ace. "Now don't go around popping off, else the folks will think the Kitty is out with another alibi. I got myself a good lickin from a tough guy, that's all."

Started as Lightweight.

For almost a decade Hudkins has been one of the most colorful figures of the ring, growing from a lightweight to heavyweight proportions. Sammy Mandell never gave him a shot at the lightweight crown, although he was rated as the leading contender.

Then he graduated into the welterweight ranks, but Joe Dundee left him waiting in the ring at Wrigley Field here in what was to have been a title bout, because the guarantee was not met by the promoter.

He met Mickey Walker twice for the middleweight title, losing a close decision in Chicago and by a wider margin at Los Angeles a year later after Hudkins had started on the down road.

He went to the fistic marts less frequently after the second beating at the hands of Walker, but did campaign as a light-heavyweight and a heavyweight with some success.

Beat Levinksy Twice.

Ace beat Battling Levinsky in Chicago twice, and returned to Los Angeles to gain a decision over Dynamite Jackson, California Negro. A year later they coaxed him into fighting tough Lee Ramage, and he was badly beaten.

ACE HUDKINS,
of Lincoln, Nebr., one of the greatest fighting men of the generation, is doomed to leave the ring without having won any of the four titles he battled for.

Many thought that should have been his last fight, but Hudkins failed to save the hundreds of thousands of dollars that flowed in for his fistic efforts, and he tackled youthful Ketchel.

He may fight again, and if he does the faithful will be at the ringside.

"I saw Hudkins when he came in," remarked a spectator at his last bout, "and I want to see him when he goes out."

SPEAKING OF TENNIS

By BOB CONSIDINE

I have seen a stunning sunrise
Spring from the dank horizon
I have seen a sunset golden
Whose beauty from heaven was stolen
I have regarded with mingled emotions
A shelf of the best liquor lotions.
I have swum in the sea of Bermuda
(With an eye for the narsty baracuda)
And looked upon great canvases
Created by the brushes of geniuses
Yea, manifold has been beauty in my time.
But the sight that moves me to raptures
Is the sight of a shot that captures
The last doggone inch of white lime.

Mr. William T. Tilden, the twice,
Care of Tilden Tennis Tourts,
Tilden Tennis Courts, &c., Inc.,
New York, N. Y.
Dear William:

I see by the papers that you have announced your retirement from active tennis, to take effect at the close of the coming season, and if you don't mind I would like to interpose a friendly notation that the professional end of tennis has gifted you with a veneer of hoss sense you never exhibited as an amateur. Your move possesses elements of sound reasoning and acute business acumen.

You know, Bill, you had a pretty rough time of it these last few years. You were beaten now and then by players whom you would have crushed like soft-boiled eggs back in 1923 or so. But nevertheless you're still the ranking No. 1 legendary figure of American tennis. If you gracefully step aside now your fame will grow with mushroom agility. The mediocre matches of your heyday will, as they are told from mouth to mouth, take on the cloak of epic battles, and your great matches will become greater. Vines, unless he reforms and begins, we'll say, a decade of consecutive national championships, won't be able to hold a candle to you in the race for "the greatest player of all time" crown.

If you had been like a number of fighters, baseball players and others who outlive their legs (and we thought you were going to fall into that sort of thing) you would have drifted into a self-imposed eclipse. Generations to come would know you only as a doddering, weak-kneed old boy trying to play in the company of kids who might be your sons. You are, indeed wise to quit when you are still close enough to the top of things to scratch it with an overhead smash.

It's a good business move, too. If you go through with your notion of erecting a string of indoor courts, you must needs keep the name "Tilden" symbolic of tennis greatness, keep the name a sort of oracle to which believers and customers will flock.

YOUR PAL.

P. S.—How about a cluster of indoor courts for Washington?

17,000 Watch Hockey Rivals Play 2-2 Tie

New York, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—The New York Americans came from behind twice tonight to hold the New York Rangers to a 2-2 overtime tie in a National League Hockey game before 17,000 spectators at Madison Square Garden.

It was the first tie played between the teams this season, the Rangers having captured two previous encounters.

Kentucky and Georgia Fives Tied for Lead

Atlanta, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Alabama's Crimsons won four of five basket ball games last week to set the pace in the Southeastern Conference, but Kentucky and Georgia, with two wins and no defeats, are leading the loop.

Alabama received its only setback from Louisiana State, 27 to 32, and evened that score by trouncing the L. S. U. Tigers the next night, 40 to 36. Alabama also beat Tennessee, 43 to 15, and won twice from Tulane.

Zeke Kimbrough's one-handed shot which found the basket in the last minute of play, gave Alabama the first game with Tulane, 28 to 26, but the Crimsons ran wild last night to win easily, 55 to 23.

Both Kentucky and Georgia were idle from conference competition last week, but earlier each had won a pair of contests from Tulane. Tennessee has lost all of its three Southeastern engagements, bowing twice to Tulane, 23 to 31 and 33 to 34, in addition to its defeat at the hands of Alabama.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Kentucky	2	0	1.000
Georgia	2	0	1.000
Alabama	4	1	.800
Louisiana State U.	1	1	.500

Stagg Leaves Hospital Today to Go Home

New York, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Amos Alonzo Stagg expects to leave his hospital bed tomorrow and entrain for his home in Chicago Tuesday.

The 70-year-old dean of American football coaches, who has been ill at Medical Arts Sanitarium with influenza and pneumonia, said tonight his physician had given him permission to "climb out" tomorrow after his week's illness.

"I'm impatient to start moving," said the recently retired Chicago University coach. "I dislike inactivity, although unfortunately it's sometimes necessary."

District League Fives Open at Hyattsville

Two opening games of the Washington Independent Amateur Basket Ball League will be played Thursday night in the Hyattsville Armory. In the first game Griffith-Consumers will face the Boys' Club and in the second game Company F and Barancs will meet.

MARYLAND U. CONFERENCE LEADER

Vanderbilt Defeats South Carolina in Dixie Feature.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan 8 (A.P.).—The University of Maryland, best known in the Southern Conference for its sterling basketball teams, perched today at the top of the ten-team loop, with a decision over V. P. I. to the Old Liners' credit.

Virginia Poly's quintet, reduced by a series of misfortunes that robbed the Techmen of several of their best performers, could furnish but little opposition for Maryland's sharp-shooting basketeers who triumphed, 40 to 20, in the Southern Conference premiere last night.

Vincent Old Line Star, With 16 Points.

With Vincent, wily pivotman, as the focal point, the Old Liners displayed an attack that time and again penetrated the Tech defense. Vincent personally accounted for 16 points.

Meanwhile, down at Nashville, the University of South Carolina and Vanderbilt, the latter one of the group that recently obtained a divorce from the Southern Conference, furnished the spectators an exciting evening in the most closely contested game of the night that required two extra periods to settled. Vandy finally won, 31 to 29.

In other games involving conference members, Virginia defeated Randolph Macon, 41-17; Clemson lost to Georgia Tech, 29-28; V. M. I. whipped St. John's, 26-24; North Carolina State defeated Furman, 34-14, and North Carolina humiliated Davidson, 56-18.

Maryland, V. P. I., Busy This Week.

Maryland and Virginia Poly will participate in all of the five intra-conference games booked for the week. The Old Liners, after playing Duke at College Park Thursday night, will swing south for tilts with V. M. I., at Lexington, Friday, and with Washington and Lee, also at Lexington, Saturday.

V. P. I. will play North Carolina at Chapel Hill Friday night, and N. C. State at Raleigh the following evening.

Throngs Greet Pitt On Return From Coast

Pittsburgh, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Welcomed home by a noisy crowd that thronged the railroad station, Pitt's Panthers, smiling and sunburned, arrived tonight from the Rose Bowl, scene of the debacle that met them at the gates of Troy.

The Panthers were overwhelmed, 35 to 0, by Southern California in the classic Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, January 2.

The jaunty spirits of the players belied their Western defeat, which smashed a season's record of ten straight victories. Some of the boys sported sombreros as the train pulled in; all were smiling.

Coach Jock Sutherland quickly left the main group and made his way out of the jam. The players, however, were caught by the crowd and were kept busy shaking hands with friends and strangers who besieged them.

No one had anything new to contribute to the stinging rout by the Trojans.

3 Games This Week For Hyattsville Fives

Hyattsville High School's basket ball team plays its first game of the campaign bearing on the Prince Georges County title Friday night, facing the Mount Rainier High quint in the latter's gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

Two more games are scheduled for Hyattsville during the week. Annapolis High will be met in the Maryland Capital Tuesday afternoon and Solomons High of southern Maryland will be faced in the Hyattsville Armory Wednesday afternoon.

For the first time since Hyattsville and Mount Rainier started their court games, the latter rules at least an even choice. The Mounts have a veteran team and their record is better than Hyattsville's. Victories have been scored by the District Line scholastics over Kendall School, Takoma-Silver Spring High and Glenburnie High and have lost twice to Tech High, but in both games gave the McKinley quint brisk opposition. Hyattsville, after trimming Kendall dropped four in a row.

C. U. IS HOST TO MARINES TOMORROW

G. W. Five, Maryland Boxers See Action Abroad Tonight.

MARYLAND will inaugurate its boxing campaign against Washington and Lee at Lexington and George Washington's basket ball team will sally forth to Pittsburgh to clash with Duquesne in the only athletic contests scheduled tonight for District college teams, and two of seventeen events which will take place during the week.

Boasting the strongest line-up since boxing became a major sport at the institution three years ago, the Old Liners are pinning their hopes on such stalwarts as Al Farrel, Stew McCaw, Bob McAboy, Bernie Keener, Vic Wingate, Harold Burns, Harry Carrol and Bud Greuver to carry them to victory over the Generals, and thereby vent their spleen for three previous setbacks at the hands of the Lexington fighters.

Colonials Off for Duquesne.

Fresh from a well-earned 34-to-29 victory over North Carolina State, the Colonials of G. W., led by Capt. Ott Zahn, will embark fresh and early this morning for the Smoky City. Other players making the jaunt are Chambers, Fenlon, Parrish, Hertzler, Noonan, Parrack, Burgess and Howell.

Duquesne's players will discover before the game is very old that a wiry young fellow named Wyck Parrack is a very elusive and clever forward and is apt to prove a bulwark of strength from whistle to whistle. Parrack is the Colonials' big shot. In five games, he has tallied 59 points, an average of nearly 12 markers per game. Last year this energetic bagketer finished the campaign with an average of 12 8-10 points for fifteen contests.

Last winter the Colonials split even in two jousts with Duquesne, arresting the Dukes' winning streak here and dropping the second engagement in Pittsburgh. Tonight's game also marks the return of Forrest Burgess, the smallest member of the varsity five, who was relegated to the side lines in the North Carolina State game to save certain Southern Conference rulings.

The Colonials face St. John's at Annapolis Wednesday, and clash with Loyola at Baltimore Saturday.

Only Three Contests Listed Here.

With most of the activity confined to foreign territory, the sports-loving public of the Nation's Capital is offered only a skeleton list of collegiate athletic events to witness hereabouts this week. Unfortunately only three contests will take place before home-town audiences.

Catholic University, faced with hard games on Friday and Saturday, plays host to the woefully weak Quantico Marine basket ball team tomorrow night at Brookland Gym. The following night at Ritchie Coliseum, Maryland's quintet clashes with a terrorizing five from Duke University, a time-honored rival of the Old Liners. There will be added interest in the Maryland-Duke game in view of the appearance in Blue Devil toga of the two erstwhile sharpshooting stars of Western High School, Herb and Jimmy Thompson, both of whom were the mainsprings in their team's victories over George Washington and Georgetown on successive nights shortly before the Christmas holidays.

American University will play Navy Saturday at Annapolis.

Gallaudet on Trip To Virginia.

Gallaudet's Kendall Greeners embark for a three-day trip this week to the Valley of Virginia, meeting Virginia at Charlottesville Thursday, Washington and Lee at Lexington on Friday and V. M. I. on Saturday.

Maryland's dribblers take on V. M. I. Friday and Washington and Lee the following night, both at Lexington.

Georgetown invades Gotham for a game with Brooklyn K. of C. on Friday and then moves over to West Point for a tilt with the Army boys.

YORKES WIN GAME.

Boys' Club Yorkes defeated the Fort Humphreys team last night at the latter's court, 49 to 16, with Cole leading the attack with 24 points.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth and other big shots of baseball are getting the "play" these days as they train for the spring training trips, but don't overlook the biggest Giant of them all.

Lou Comiskey, carrying on the White Sox fortunes for the late "Old Roman," is warming up for the 1933 campaign, too, with the thunder of determination in his eye. He's licking his weight problem, a matter of something like 340 pounds, and is out to haul the club back to its spot in the baseball sun.

When Lou's father, Charles A. Comiskey, died in October, 1931, the son's first impulse was to pick up the reins dropped by the "Old Roman" and run the ball club as he saw fit. But after listening to friends, he decided to abolish any "front office" interference and let Manager Lew Fonseca run the show. It didn't work. Before the season, no less than 50 players wore the White Sox regimentals along the firing line, and the story went around that even Fonseca failed to recognize many of the incoming recruits after days of service.

Changed From Old White Stockings.

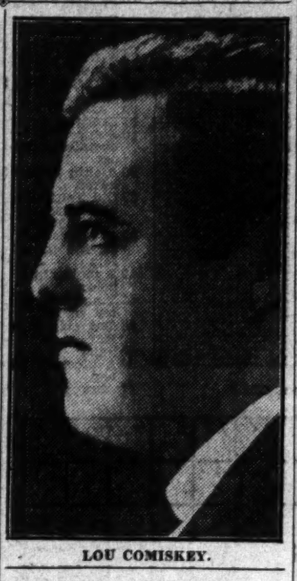
Young Comiskey even went so far as to change the players' stockings from the conventional white to striped sox for a change of luck. The luck changed, all right, but for the worse instead of the better.

As the season ended with the White Sox floundering in seventh place, despite a great pitching staff, Comiskey made up his mind to take charge of the team actively, with the able assistance of his chief lieutenant, Harry Grabiner. These are some of the results of their activities:

Purchase of three stars from the Philadelphia Athletics, Al Simmons, Jimmy Dykes and Mule Haas, who should steady the young team and give it enough punch and defense to make it a hard team to beat.

Abolishment of coaches. It's Comiskey's idea that he will have enough good players on the team to coach the sidelines, including Urban "Red" Faber, Teddy Lyons, Dykes, Haas, Simmons and others.

The new striped stockings were tossed out the window or handed to charity and the old white ones restored. The superstitious had said pale hose brought bad luck; others that they formed an optical illusion, made the players look bowlegged and gave them an inferiority complex. "Bunk!" shouted Comiskey.



LOU COMISKEY.

Fonseca Given Wide Authority.

Front office direction restored, Manager Lou Fonseca was permitted to buy, sell or trade as he saw fit without any opposition from the front office last year. He did plenty of it, and even the Chicago baseball writers couldn't keep up with the changing line-ups. In 1933 a starting line-up will be named and retained until some chosen player demonstrates he can't keep up the required pace.

Training camp was moved from San Antonio, Tex., to Pasadena, Calif., and major league training competition scheduled. Last spring the White Sox trained strictly against minor league competition.

Comiskey has been a keen student of baseball since his childhood days, watching, studying and waiting. That period is over now. He's out to pick the White Sox up, and the American League might watch him.

Suspended Stars With Iowa Five

Break and Blackmer May Play in Wisconsin Game Tonight.

Iowa City, Iowa., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—With their eligibility still a question, Edward Break and Ivan Blackmer, suspended University of Iowa basket ball stars, were en route to Madison tonight with the Hawkeye cage squad.

Both players were taken along by Coach Rollie Williams to be on hand for the game tomorrow with Wisconsin if a favorable report is received from the Big Ten Conference eligibility committee. The decision is expected here tomorrow.

Break and Blackmer were suspended a second time Saturday when Thomas E. French, of Ohio State University, chairman of the eligibility committee, wired Hawkeye officials it would be "unwise" to allow the stars to play until final action had been taken on their cases.

The standing of the players is questioned because of their asserted participation in games with a Cedar Rapids team at which admission was charged.

Meanwhile, student sentiment here was aroused, led by a front page editorial in the Daily Iowan, student newspaper.

The editorial demanded the Iowa Athletic Board cease its "dilly-dallying" and said:

"Those members of the board in control of athletics who are not aggressive enough to uphold the interests of the university in regard to athletics, should resign or be removed.

"If that action fails to do the trick Iowa could justify itself by withdrawing from the Western Conference."

The editorial characterizes the university, through its athletic board, as "an oversealous confessor rushing with a glib tongue and falling at the feet of the conference."

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

OVER a hundred suggestions have been received for a new slogan which Station WJSV hopes to adopt. Because WJSV's transmitter is located in Virginia, it is technically a Virginia station. The reason for its existence, however, is to cover Washington but it can not come right out and say it is a Washington station.

WJSV is in very much the same position as WOR, Newark, which, technically, is a New Jersey station, the transmitter being located there, but which everyone knows is one of the leading New York stations. WOR has its main studios on Broadway, just as WJSV has its principal studios in Washington.

The problem Young Mr. Butcher has on his hands is to get the idea across, by means of a slogan, that WJSV, though located in Virginia, is a Washington station. The reason some explanation must be made over the air is that WJSV is sold to advertisers by Columbia as a Washington station and the time is contracted for because of its ability to cover the National Capital.

Some of the slogans suggested are: "WJSV, a voice from the heart of the Nation!" submitted by Dorothy J. Payne; "This is WJSV, near the homes of Washington and Lee, Alexandria," Louis C. Ellis, 3200 Seventeenth street northeast; "Station WJSV, in the heart of the Nation, Washington, D. C.," Nathan J. Cosel, 4425 Fourteenth street northwest; "WJSV, Alexandria, Va., linking the world with the National Capital, Washington, D. C." or "WJSV, Alexandria, Va., linking the world with the Capital of the Nation, Washington, D. C.," John Randolph Bolling, 2340 S street northwest; also "WJSV, Alexandria, within the original Washington, D. C." or "WJSV, Alexandria, within George Washington's 10 miles square of the Nation," Herbert L. Adams, 3616 Connecticut avenue northwest; "WJSV, Alexandria, in the shadow of our Nation's Capital," John F. Fitzgerald, 11 Third street northeast; "WJSV, Alexandria, originally a part of the Nation's Capital." Betty Strasburger; "This is WJSV, on the Mount Vernon Highway from Washington, D. C., Virginia Sanderson, 807 Eye street southeast; "WJSV, the South's gateway to the Nation's Capital," Mrs. W. E. Worden, 626 North Washington street, Alexandria; "WJSV, where Virginia serves the Nation's Capital," Mrs. E. C. Lowe, 807 Jefferson street northwest, and "WJSV, in Alexandria, Washington's friendly neighbor," or "WJSV, in Alexandria, gateway to the South from Washington," W. M. Hiley, 730 Thirteenth street northwest.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT, star of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will blend the sacred with the secular in his selection of songs on the voice of Firestone program over WRC at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Opening with "Gopak," by Mousorgsky, Tibbett will follow with "I Want to Be Like Jesus," "Thru the Years," from the Youmans' musical production of the same name, and "Eri Tu," from Verdi's "The Masked Ball." William Daly's orchestra will play the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," by Mozart.

With President-elect Roosevelt being given unprecedented and even dictatorial power by congressional leaders to consolidate or eliminate governmental departments, commissions and bureaus, a question being asked is what is he likely to do with the Federal Radio Commission.

Already the commission is under fire by Senator Dill, of Washington, who, in attacking the examiner system, whereby preliminary work of the commission is performed for the commissioners, has declared there is not enough work for the commission to do, let alone examiners in addition. He even went so far as to say that he believed a single commissioner could handle the work of the present commission.

Senator Dill has been hostile to the commission on other occasions, but no particular significance was attached to what he said because he, being a Democrat, was then in the minority. However, with the new Democratic administration coming in, and as one of the original Roosevelt men, very close to the new President, he will be a factor to be reckoned with. Dill may even become chairman of the interstate commerce committee, which handles radio in the Senate, and if he does, it may prove bad luck for the Radio Commission.

Likewise, Senator Couzens, Republican, of Michigan, who, after March 4, will become ranking minority member of the interstate commerce committee, has been quite critical of the commission of late and may prove a thorn in its side. Altogether, it looks as if there may be breakers ahead and members of the commission will heave sighs of relief when they know what their fate is to be.

Apropos of the shift of theaters in Radio City—the larger theater seating 6,200 to be devoted to the movies hereafter and the smaller one, seating 3,700, to put on the music hall and stage show—another readjustment has been reported.

It is that the Radio Corporation of America, which originally intended using several million feet of space for its offices in Radio City, now finds that less than half a million feet of floor space will be sufficient to meet its requirements.

Mary Garden, famous opera star, will be the guest of Claudine Macdonald during the Woman's Radio Review over WRC at 3:30 p. m. Appearing as an American citizen interested in music, rather than in the role of a singer, Miss Garden will talk on "I Like American Music."

IN view of the general interest now being manifested in a five-day week for industry, Senator Hugo L. Black, of Alabama, will discuss such a proposal during the National Radio Forum, WRC, 10:30 p. m. Senator Black already has introduced a bill providing for the five-day week, and it is said that it will have the indorsement of the American Federation of Labor and other like organizations.

Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, declares radio is so instantaneous that the life of a popular song, which before the advent of radio would have lived for a year, possibly two years, is old-fashioned in a few months in the new order of things.

The Metropolitan Opera Company is paid $160,000 a year for allowing its operas to be broadcast.

Another series of adventures will occupy Groucho and Chico Marx when, as "Flywheel, Shyster and Flywheel, Attorneys at Law," they appear in the Five Star Theater, WMAL, 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Walter Rautenstrauch, of Columbia University, will be the first speaker on a series of four broadcasts dealing with the subject of Technocracy to be heard over WJSV, 2 p. m., during the month of January.

"Trelawney of the Wells," the play which Sir Arthur Wing Pinero dedicated to the stage and its characters, will be presented by the Radio Guild (WRC, 4 p. m.).

Love Problem Solved.

Seattle, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Dean Herbert T. Condon, of the University of Washington, says many students give the excuse of "love" for flunking. "Sometime ago one of the students had that trouble, but after a time he asked for readmission," he said. "On the petition blank, the question was asked if the cause of failure had been removed. The student wrote: 'Yes, I married her'."

No Trousers, No Wife.

San Jose, Calif., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Henry George of San Jose, has charged a local stage company with the task of locating a pair of trousers he left on one of its busses, asserting he has lost his wife until they are found. Mrs. George, it seems, recently moved to Los Angeles. George's one notation of her address was in a pocket of the pants.

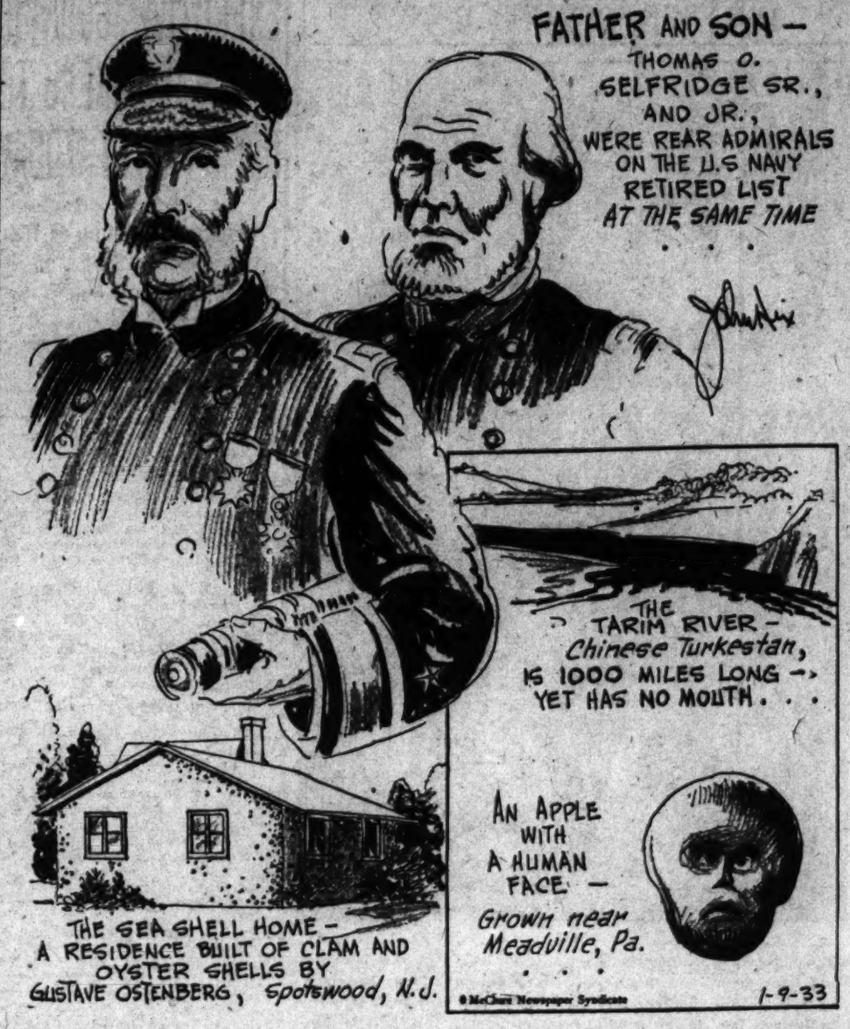
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



FROM February, 1898, to October, 1902, the United States Navy had on its retired list two men of the same name and of the same rank—they were father and son, Thomas O. Selfridge, sr. and jr. Both men were rear admirals.

The senior admiral Selfridge was commissioned rear admiral on the retired list on July 25, 1866. He died in October, 1902. His son was retired as rear admiral on February 28, 1896. He died February 4, 1924. This is the only case where a father and son, both holding the same rank and having the same name were on the Navy's retired list at the same time. One other instance of a father and son being on the retired list at the same time is known, but in this case the men held different ranks and had different given names.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THUNDER IN THE EAST.

THE Japanese are at it again. They sent New Year's greetings to the world through a long range seige gun with red ribbons attached.

* * * *

The new year had hardly entered before Japan had reopened war on China, thumbing its nose at the League of Nations and daring anybody not to like it.

* * * *

They are now inside the Great Wall of China and will probably stage a Japanese acrobatic act on the antique barrier, and demand that the Chinese give them sufficient applause for a dozen bows and encore entitled, "Through China With Pen, Pencil and Machine Gun."

* * * *

Say what you will about the Japanese, you can't beat them for originality. The Japanese commander in chief, after invading the Province of Jehol (pronounced Rey-ho) and attacking Shanhaikwan (pronounced Shan-hi-gwan) immediately demanded that the Chinese commander apologize (pronounced a-pol-o-gize).

* * * *

Clever people, these Orientals! If you invade your neighbor's home, jump on his neck and break all the furniture, make him say he's sorry.

* * * *

Don't let him up or stop smashing the mirrors until he apologizes for your attack on him.

* * * *

Otherwise he will think you are a big softy.

* * * *

The rest of the world is startled and outraged by the Japanese method of beginning the new year, but it is in the position of an invalid watching Public Enemy No. 4 beat up a laundryman.

* * * *

Once upon a time the major nations would have called for their military uniforms and begun bellowing loud threats through long range megaphones. And they would have been prepared to back up their warnings.

* * * *

But that day is gone. The world at large is too sick to play Good Samaritan, Boy Scout, Sparrow Cop or Probation Officer for anybody.

* * * *

The indignation is the indignation of Jacob, but the follow through is the follow through of Little Goody Two Shoes.

* * * *

And Japan knows it.

* * * *

China will have to look out for herself. We are all her friends, but the best we can do is to hope that she bars the rabbit punch and protects herself in the clinches.

* * * *

And she might as well apologize. Some day, when the Chinese lick the Japanese, they can make the Japs apologize. All is fair in love and the Orient.

RISKY BUSINESS.

A Broadway racketeer had 30 cents on him when he was shot the other night, and, business along Bright Light Lane being what it is, Elmer Twitchell thinks it served him right for appearing in public with so much money.

LOCATED AT LAST.

Despite the prospect that it might be called off this year, the Motorboat Show will be held in New York this month. Prosperity is just around the bell buoy.

Gen. Pershing, according to rumors, is to become a radio star in a Henry Ford hour. Both men did their best to shake the world.

Fraternity and Sorority To Hear Egyptian Envoy

Eta Chapter of Delta Phi Epsilon, National Foreign Service Fraternity, will be host tonight to the members of Phi Pi Epsilon, national service sorority, at 9 o'clock, at 1128 Sixteenth street northwest.

Thief, Surprised, Leaps From Apartment Window

Miss Lillian Brookes, returning home after several hours' absence, found the man in her living room. As she hurried to summon aid, the intruder leaped from a window and disappeared.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

The motorist is not always at fault when an accident occurs involving the pedestrian and an automobile, as some people may think.

Children who persist in playing in the streets and who are run over or struck by a car are largely to blame, and the sooner parents realize this the better off they will be.

For the information of parents whose children use the streets to play in, the following paragraph from Article II, Section 13, of the traffic manual, follows:

"Except on streets which may be designated by the director from time to time and roped off or protected by signs, it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to coast, slide, ride or skate on the highways with any roller skates, sleds, scooters, kiddie cars, velocipedes, tricycles or children's wagons."

The accident figures to date are:

Deaths	1	1
Injuries	87	47
Accidents	161	78

"Be Careful!"

Cabman Victor in Battle; Week-End Theft Loot Approximates $1,200.

Holdups, housebreakings and pocketbook snatchings over the week-end totaled nearly $1,200 in loot and resulted in the arrest of a 16-year-old boy who was seized through quick thinking and immediate action by a taxi driver in a deserted section near Chesapeake street and Nichols avenue southeast, after the boy held him up and took $8 and his cab.

The youth, Andrew Pearson, who says he lives in Boston, and who had only been in Washington a few hours, hired a cab driven by John King, of Takoma Park, Md., at Seventh and E streets northwest yesterday afternoon and instructed King to drive to Chesapeake street and Nichols avenue. When they reached that intersection, King told police, he was told to drive on up Chesapeake street. A short distance up the road, the boy stuck a gun in his back and ordered him out of the cab. He took $8 and, telling King to walk home, started off.

King said he ran after the cab and managed to get on the running board before it gained much speed. The taxi driver grappled with the boy and grabbed his gun, which went off in the scuffle. The bullet entered the ground without hitting either of the combatants. Shortly afterward, police, who were summoned by some one who heard the shot, arrived and took charge of the youth. He was booked at the Eleventh Precinct for investigation.

Cash Register Rifled.

Shortly before midnight last night, two armed men entered the store of August Schmidt, at 4420 Georgia avenue northwest, and, forcing him to a rear room, rifled the cash register of between $200 and $300.

Schmidt said the men were well dressed. While one of them remained near the door, he said, the other threatened him with a gun, and after forcing him to a back room, escaped with the money.

Ernest Jackson, night clerk of the Winston Hotel at 116 First street northwest, was held up and robbed of $62 by a middle-aged white man, who first asked the clerk the price of rooms. Suddenly he pulled out a revolver and, ordering the clerk to lie down behind the counter, opened the cash register, took the money and dashed out of the hotel. Jackson said he ran after the robber, but he escaped.

Mrs. J. Rhoda Willie, of Vienna, Va., had her pocketbook, containing $85, snatched from her hand by a colored man while she was in the Convention Hall market at Fifth and K streets northwest, she reported to police.

A pocketbook containing $6 was snatched from the hand of Mrs. Carrie Ford, of 4519 Gault street northeast, by a colored man while she was walking several blocks from her home late Saturday night.

Drug Store Robbed.

A quantity of merchandise including cigarettes, perfume, clocks and fountain pens, valued at $150, was stolen from a drug store at 3901 Fourteenth street northwest. Moe Jacobs, proprietor, told police the burglars had entered some time Saturday night and gained entry through a skylight.

Clothing including a fur coat and an ermine evening wrap valued at $150 was stolen from an automobile owned by Maury C. Metro, of 625 Quincy street northwest, while it was parked in front of 4847 Illinois avenue northwest, last night.

A quantity of clothing valued at $80 was reported stolen from the home of Hugh Sampson, at 834 Concord avenue northwest, late yesterday afternoon. Entry was gained through a rear basement door.

Cigars and cigarettes valued at $20 were stolen from a store at 2106 Tenth street northwest, yesterday. John S. Wilson, proprietor, told police the burglars entered through a rear door.

Home Is Ransacked.

Jewelry and clothing valued at $240 was stolen from the home of Leonard R. Towson, at 3236 Morrison street northwest. Towson told police the thieves had entered through a rear basement window. The entire place had been ransacked.

A pocketbook containing $70 in bills was stolen from the room of Robert Millner, at 515 Sixth street northwest, last night.

A colored man, armed with a gun, entered the grocery store of Thomas Barnick, 801 O street northwest, and, forcing the proprietor behind a counter, robbed the cash drawer of $10. He made his escape in a waiting automobile.

Walter Smith, a taxi driver, of 228 Eleventh street southeast, was held up and robbed of $3.50 by two colored men in front of 2622 Sixth street northwest early yesterday. Smith told police he picked up his passengers at Fourteenth and Riggs streets northwest.

Albert Thompson, 30, a cab driver of 1301 Eighth street northwest, reported to police that a colored man attempted to rob him at Thirteenth and L streets southeast. He said he picked up two colored men at Ninth and H streets northeast. One of the men got out at Fourteenth and C streets southeast, and when he arrived at the destination the other grabbed him around the neck and tried to take his money.

Thompson got away, however, and chased the man up an alley. He got away.

Another cab driver, Frank Bartley, of 1334 Harvard street northwest, reported that he was hired at Fourteenth street and Park road by two men and was ordered to go to Walter Reed Hospital. Upon arriving at Thirteenth street and Spring road they held him up and took $9.

"MILLIONAIRE COP" HELD IN SHOOTING

John W. Greene Accused of Firing at Guest and Throwing Him Out.

The wealthy former policeman, John Willard Greene, who received some notoriety ten years ago as "the millionaire cop" when it was revealed that he had $200,000, was in the toils of the law yesterday after he was alleged to have assaulted a guest at his home.

It was charged that he fired shots at Herbert L. Smith, 38 years old, of Third street near Douglas street northeast, after he had thrown his guest through a plate glass door. The assault took place at the former police sergeant's home, 2540 Fourteenth street northwest.

Smith was treated at Garfield Hospital for lacerations. The police were unable to learn the cause of the fight.

Greene retired from the police department ten years ago when charges of neglect of duty were placed against him. During the controversy between him and his superiors, it was brought out that he possessed $200,000. He had been in the police department 23 years.

Gifts from Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Hoover will be exhibited in the Masonic Temple, Twelfth and U streets northwest. The proceeds will be given to unemployed colored mothers.

Barkley Talks Tonight At Jackson Day Dinner

Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, will be principal speaker tonight at a Jackson Day dinner of the Lawyers Roosevelt-Garner Club, at 7:30, at the University Club.

Other speakers and guests will include Senators Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, and James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, and Representative Henry T. Rainey, Democratic floor leader of the House. A story appearing in The Post of yesterday was in error. It stated the dinner would be held in the Cosmos Club instead of the University Club.

Girl, 15, Badly Injured In Fall While Skating

Fifteen-year-old Mary E. Willis, of 513 Ninth street northeast, suffered a possible fracture of the skull, concussion of the brain and severe lacerations of the back and hands, when she fell while roller skating near Eleventh and D streets northeast last night.

She was taken to Casualty Hospital in a car driven by James E. Titus, of 808 East Capitol street, who was passing when she fell.

ECONOMIC REVIVAL IS SEEN AS REMOTE

Catholic Speaker Declares World Should Look to Religious Recovery.

The return of a universal material prosperity is very far in the future if in sight at all, according to the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, famous Dominican preacher, in the second of a series of nine sermons on "Christ and the Delusions of 1933," on the Washington Catholic radio hour. He declared that the Catholic Church had almost pauperized itself by a thorough relief program.

The sermon was broadcast from the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The Rev Francis J. Hurney presided. Father Smith presided at the enrollment of 64 boys and 61 men in the Holy Name Society of the Church. The music was under the direction of Harry Wheaton Howard, organist, and included Florence Yocum, soprano; Ann Arlen, violinist; and the Boys Sanctuary Choir.

Father Smith said in part: "There are some who believe that even after the depression lifts we shall have between three and five millions of unemployed among us. A job at $25 a week will be a desirable position. At best, the return of the halcyon days of the past is problematical and uncertain. Does it not seem more reasonable therefore to build our hopes and our future on something that is certain and not to base our happiness and our contentment on something that may never come?"

Speaking of the part of the church in the battle for the social reconstruction of the world, Father Smith said: "She has felt the economic depression more than many other agencies and her revenue is 25 per cent less than it was this time last year. But conscious of the demands of the Master, inspired by documents of such illustrious world leaders as Leo XIII and Pius XI, she has almost pauperized herself during this economic crisis in order to carry on her program of relief."

Father Smith said that this program was only incidental to the church's primary mission to protect the teachings of Jesus Christ—the salvation of souls. The world, he said, must look first to the religious development of the salvation of their souls. This must be taken care of whether universal material prosperity returns or not.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF U.S. WORKERS TO OPEN PARLEY TODAY

Members of the executive council of the National Federation of Federal Employes conferred here informally yesterday on a wide variety of problems affecting the welfare of Government workers preliminary to the opening of a session of the council today.

The chief item of discussion at yesterday's informal conferences was the problem presented by charges of injustice and inequities in economy legislation, and this question will receive major consideration during the meeting of the executive council this week.

It was made plain here last night that the executive council will take important steps looking toward broadening the work undertaken by the National Federation of Federal Employes to educate taxpayers of the Nation on the economy act.

Due to Urge Revision.

Members of the council, in close contact with the actual working out of that legislation, are emphatic in their declarations of its failure to achieve an end in keeping either with genuine economy or with principles of sound personnel practice.

A strong stand is expected in favor of drastic revision of the act to remedy abuses and against further inroads upon the pay envelopes of Federal employes.

Reports which are being awaited with keen interest are those of Luther C. Steward and Miss Gertrude M. McNally, president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the National Federation of Federal Employes. The report of President Steward will set forth in detail legislative developments since enactment of the economy law last year. That of Miss McNally will outline the progress of the organization during the past 12 months.

To Plan Convention.

The executive council, in addition to discussing a host of questions affecting Federal employes and their work, here and abroad, will outline plans for the biennial convention of the national federation, to be held this year at Kansas City, Mo. Local No. 29 will be the host union.

The first regular session of the executive council will be held at national headquarters in the Labor Building this morning with President Steward in the chair.

The council includes, in addition to Mr. Steward and Miss McNally, the following: John Fitzgerald, first vice president, New York; Lee R. Whitney, second vice president, Milwaukee, Wis.; Charles L. Wiegand, third vice president, Baltimore, Md.; John P. Thompson, fourth vice president, San Francisco, Calif.; Dr. Walter P. Taylor, fifth vice president, Tucson, Ariz.; John W. Ross, sixth vice president, Norfolk, Va.; Ulrey J. Biller, seventh vice president, Washington, D. C.; William M. Rapsher, eighth vice president, Philadelphia, Pa.; George L. Evans, ninth vice president, Denver, Colo.

Also present in Washington at this time are National Organizers John D. Cloud, Earl R. Hoage, Harry W. Johnson and Matilda Lindsay.

Shakespeare Society To Meet at Gallery

The Shakespeare Society will hold its regular meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at the Corcoran Art Gallery, at which Miss M. E. J. Czarnomska, for many years professor of English literature at Smith College, will discuss the "Origin and Nature of the Sonnet." Dr. J. Q. Adams, of the Folger Library, will discuss the sonnets of Shakespeare.

Miss A. M. Fauntleroy will direct the reading of selected sonnets from Shakespeare by Mrs. W. E. Bryant, Miss Rosemary Arnold, Miss Patricia Hunt, Miss Ada Townsend, Miss Esther Marshman, Mrs. Esther Waldron, Mrs. Eva Hanson Waudby and Mrs. Alice Robinson Griffith. Incidental music will be contributed by Mrs. Duff Green Lewis and Mrs. Charles Ross will be the hostess.

Policeman Operated On After Sudden Attack

Collapsing while on duty at the Second Precinct last night, Policeman Siguard Ostenso was taken to Walter Reed Hospital by fellow officers, where a few moments later physicians performed an emergency operation in an effort to save his life.

Ostenso was stricken with an attack of appendicitis, doctors said, and his prompt removal to the hospital will probably enable them to bring about his recovery.

SCHOOL GYMS ASKED FOR AMATEUR FIGHTS

Veterans' Body and Knights of Columbus Urge Use by Outside Boxers.

Use of public school athletic facilities by amateur boxers was urged upon the Board of Education by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War and the Knights of Columbus in letters written yesterday to the board which is to consider the application of Columbus University for permission to use the McKinley High School gymnasium.

The application, which was denied by the committee on buildings and grounds, is now being reconsidered and is scheduled for a second report at the Wednesday meeting. The university asked that the permission be given for the use of gymnasium for intercollegiate boxing bouts.

The letter from the disabled veterans said the executive committee of the District Department urged the board to encourage amateur boxing by granting the application.

The Knights of Columbus, through State Deputy Fred J. Rice, said the organization "would not look with disfavor upon the use of gymnasiums of the high schools for boxing exhibitions properly handled."

THREAT PRECEDING I. C. C. FIRE BARED

Was Received by Foreman of Carpenters; Sabotage Doubted, However.

A threatening letter was received by the foreman of carpenters on the fireproofing section of the Interstate Commerce Commission new building project about a month ago, it was learned yesterday.

In the face of this, however, detectives and Fire Marshal Calvin Lauber declared that the result of their investigation of the blaze at the Government building Friday night, so far indicated it was of an accidental nature.

A disgruntled carpenter wrote a letter prophesying vengeance to the carpenter foreman, the detectives admitted, but after questioning of the latter and ascertaining the identity of the writer, the receiver of the missive would not prosecute. This resulted in their discontinuing the investigation, they said.

The fire Friday night originated in the carpenter shack presided over by the foreman on top of the building, Marshal Lauber admitted, destroying the tools of 50 carpenters now employed.

Marshal Lauber said, however, that as far as he and detectives could tell, the fire was accidentally started, but he said the probe would continue. He was unable to cite any evidence of the fire's origin beyond the fact that men, presumably smoking cigarettes, had been in the shack three-quarters of an hour before it began.

Insurance and contracting officials last night had not reached any estimate of the damage, although the British insurance firm covering the project has laid aside a $100,000 reserve fund for the damages.

At least one contractor has taken sabotage insurance for his enterprise here since the Interstate Commerce Commission blaze and several others are rumored about to do so.

The Associated General Contractors of America announced from their headquarters here yesterday that a model all-risk insurance policy, including sabotage hazards, would be put forward for consideration at the annual meeting of the organization at Detroit on January 16.

MAJ. BROWN CITES OLD-TIME RELIGION; ASKS RETURN TO GOD

Raps Popular Sunday Radio Broadcasts as Keeping People From Church.

Digressing from the subject assigned to him on "What the Police Department Expects from the District Churches," Maj. Ernest W. Brown dropped his role as superintendent of police long enough last night to tell members of the Centennial Baptist Church about "The Old-Time Religion."

Pointing out that "our purpose in being here is to make the world better," Maj. Brown condemned popular radio broadcasts on Sunday night as keeping people away from church. He emburdened members of the the duty of bringing people back to church who crowded the room with God.

The world in many ways, he said, has progressed too rapidly and people will have to revert to the basic principles of Christianity to maintain a balance. He described his childhood experiences with religion and credited any qualities he might possess to them. Institutions of worship, he stated, were the guardians of morals.

Cites Homeless Youths.

Among the problems facing the church today, he stated, were the thousands of homeless young men who wander about the country, faithless and purposeless.

Explaining the operation of the Police Department, he told of the many special squads organized to uphold the law. He mentioned in detail the efforts of the department to uphold the national prohibition law in the city. Every effort is being made to apprehend violators of this law, he said, and quoted records of the liquor seizures and arrests made by police.

Criticism Is Invited.

The Police Department looks to the churches for moral support, the police chief stated. He invited constructive criticism from them, and said that any civic institution enjoying the cooperation of the church could function with greater efficiency.

The Rev. E. Hez Swem, pastor of the church, assured Maj. Brown of the whole-hearted backing of his congregation. He praised the efficiency of the local department, especially in the handling of the so-called hunger marchers.

Capital New Year Arrests Called 'Petty Persecution'

The arrests of proprietors of theaters and entertainment centers for operating after midnight on New Year's Eve was denounced yesterday by the National Association Opposed to Blue Laws, which characterized the arrests "as petty persecution through the revival of stupid Sunday restrictions that had been forgotten by most people."

The statement was directed against the arrests of the theater owners and the promoters of a dance marathon on a charge of violating an antiquated statute in the District, prohibiting public entertainment between the hours of midnight and 2 p. m. on Sunday.

"This renewed activity in the interest of enforcing a drab and dismal Sabbath proves once more the necessity for eternal vigilance against puritanical regulations and policies," said the statement.

Chinese Escape During Raid; Police Take Still and Rum

Activities attending manufacture of choice Chinese "spirits" were abruptly halted last night, when a raiding party of the First Police Precinct descended on a house at 701 H street northwest.

With the first indication of trouble, several Chinese men, who were said to be occupants of the place, fled through a rear door. The raiding policemen, Privates G. L. Saunders and J. R. Birch, after battering their way inside, discovered the escape of their quarry, but succeeded in confiscating a quantity of alleged liquor and equipment.

In one corner of the room was a 20-gallon copper still, hot and ready for use. A brief search disclosed 140 gallons of alleged mash and 20 gallons of alleged Chinese rice whisky.

At a late hour last night search for occupants of the building had proved futile.
